FLAY BUSINESS TO SET STAGE FOR ROOSEVELT

Congress Will Hear Message Monday.

BY CHESLY MANLY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 30.—[Special.]—With another radio blast against business delivered tonight by Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes, the administration completed the setting of the stage for President Roosevelt's annual message to congress at 1:30 p. m. Monday, when he will discuss his plans for dealing with the new depression.

[Details of Secretary Ickes' speech will be found on page 17.]

Ickes' speech tonight was a continuation of the administration assault on alleged monopolies, begun with two fiery outbursts by Robert H. Jackson, assistant attorney general and official trust buster. Like Jackson, Ickes charged that business, which he limited to the control of 60 families, had gone on a general sitdown strike in a war with the Roosevelt administration and "America's 120 million people."

Sees Threat of Fascism.

Essaying the rôle of the witch of Endor, Ickes conjured up the ghost of Fascism as the inevitable fate of America if the "sixty families" should win the war. He took as his subject, "It Is Happening Here," in refutation of the ironic title of a Sinclair Lewis novel.

The sustained bombardment of business, by which the administration has sought to place responsibility for the new depression on monopolistic practices, has been widely interpreted as evidence that President Roosevelt will strike a similar keynote in his message on the "state of the union" Monday. However, it was learned in official quarters today that Mr. Roosevelt's speech will be conciliatory and appear chastened by comparison with the Jackson and Ickes screeds.

Mr. Roosevelt, it was learned, will impute evils and abuses to a very small minority, and will emphasize his opinion that a great majority, perhaps 95 per cent, of business men are honest, law abiding citizens. This will give him an opportunity to appear calm and dispassionate, in dramatic contrast to the Jackson and Ickes philippics.

Concession to Left Wing.

The setting of the stage with violent denunciations by Jackson and Ickes was a concession to the President's left wing advisers and the radicals in congress, who demanded that he refrain from any appearance of surrender or confession of error in the policies of his administration. Thus with the stage set by Jackson and Ickes, the President can evince a more friendly attitude toward the business community without signaling a retreat from Moscow, according to the administration strategists.

The verbal assaults on monopolies continued to be interpreted in congress today as the framing of an alibi for the new depression—the visible evidence that what the President said "we planned" hasn't turned out "that way."

McNary Sees Alibi Attempt.

"It is an obvious effort to create an alibi and to throw the blame on the business world," said Senate Republican Leader Charles L. McNary. "That is not the way to handle a grave democratic problem, which should be handled in an open and frank manner. It is time for good will and coöperation rather than a group of political speeches aimed at a group of our citizens. If this is kept up it will extend fear and expand the want of confidence until the country is plunged in the depths of depression."

Others who voiced skepticism over the charge that a business sitdown strike brought on the depression included Senator Alva B. Adams [D., Colo.], Senator Frederick Van Nuys [D., Ind.], and Representative Samuel B. Pettengill [D., Ind.].

Fervent administration supporters, while refraining from public comment, were pleased with Jackson's monopoly assaults and generally accepted the explanation that business had ganged up on the President.

Given Secret Warning.

In the midst of all the hue and cry about monopolies it transpired today that Mr. Roosevelt was warned in a secret report last April 1 that a recession was on its way. The report was prepared by Leon Henderson,

30 JAP PLANES BOMB CANTON; 35 DIE, 70 HURT

20 Buildings Razed in Raid on City.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SHANGHAI, Dec. 31.—[Friday.]—A disastrous Japanese air bombing of Canton, metropolis of South China, the continuation of Chinese destruction of Japanese properties in Shantung province, and the assassination of a pro-Japanese leader in Shanghai were added today to stories of increasing chaos in various parts of China.

Thirty-five persons were killed and seventy wounded in the Canton air raid which was described as the worst in weeks. Thirty Japanese planes took part in the bombing attack and destroyed twenty buildings. The chief point of attack was the railway and industrial district in the northwest part of the city. Two buses were machine gunned and several passengers were wounded. Two schools operated by Americans were among the buildings bombed.

Other Japanese planes raided Sian, the capital of Shensi province in West Central China, and Suchow, a junction point on the railway between Nanking and Tientsin.

Fleeing Hordes Meet.

Hordes of Chinese fleeing eastward from Tsinan, the Japanese occupied capital of Shantung, met other hordes fleeing westward from Tsingtao, chief port of the province, which is undergoing systematic destruction to leave little of value for the Japanese when they can capture the city.

Police executed many looters at Tsingtao, one refugee who reached Shanghai said.

"They loaded the looters in buses, drove them through the main streets, and machine gunned them in bunches," he said. "Then they left the bodies as a warning to others. This kept looting in check until police themselves evacuated."

The Japanese advance force was said to be at Changlo, less than 100 miles west of Tsingtao. Gen. Yu Hsueh-chung, commander of the Chinese garrison at Tsingtao, withdrew his troops westward and was reported engaged in a heavy battle with the Japanese at Taishan, the "holy mountain" south of Tsinan.

Large Shipyard Wrecked.

Gen. Yu left about 1,000 troops in Tsingtao and they were dynamiting and burning mills, water front warehouses, Japanese homes and shops, and public service plants. A cloud of smoke hung over the city.

Explosions were heard with frequency. A large shipyard at the entrance to the inner harbor was wrecked. Office buildings near by were burned. A Japanese brewery was destroyed.

British, German, and Russian residents of the city formed a vigilante corps, but Americans were advised by their consular officials not to join. The vigilantes will carry no arms, but will use batons in an attempt to prevent looting and destruction of their properties. The Chinese vandals indicated that the Japanese consulate, and perhaps those of other nations, and the public power plant are the last places marked for destruction.

Refugees Reach Shanghai.

A number of American refugees from Tsingtao arrived here today by rail and on the United States gunboat Sacramento. The United States cruiser Marblehead and the destroyer Pope remained in Tsingtao harbor to be of assistance to nearly 200 other Americans in the vicinity.

The fear of Japanese reprisals in Shanghai also appeared after the assassination of J. Lo Pa-hong, prominent Roman Catholic layman. Lo was head of the recently formed Shanghai Civic association, which was regarded as pro-Japanese and which was intended to coöperate with the Japanese in rehabilitating the city.

Lo was shot by an assassin disguised as an orange peddler. The killing took place in the French concession and the assassin, believed to be a patriot-terrorist, escaped. Lo was the founder of the Catholic Action society in Shanghai and had collected large sums for charity.

Americans Leave Hankow.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 30.—(AP)—The state department has been advised that 167 Americans were among more than 300 foreigners evacuated today from Hankow, China, by special train. They will be taken to

The Tribune Installs 23 Press Units

Yesterday morning THE TRIBUNE began putting in place two new printing presses, comprising a total of twenty-three printing units. The new presses are being built by the Goss Printing Press company. One press will have six black units and one color unit. They will be used for printing the news and feature sections of the daily and SUNDAY TRIBUNE. The other press comprises sixteen color units for printing the Sunday comic pages.

The first mentioned has a capacity of 60,000 forty-eight page newspapers an hour, each containing four pages to be printed in four colors. This is the seventh time that it has been found necessary to increase and improve the mechanical plant of THE TRIBUNE since 1920.

Press Room Under W-G-N.

Not only are the new presses capable of printing in black and white and in four colors but they are built with some of the most unusual architectural and mechanical refinements so far conceived. The pressroom in which they are being installed is under the auditorium of radio station W-G-N. Since radio broadcasting is a delicate operation likely to be disturbed by any unusual vibration, the press foundations are separated from the walls and interior girders of the studio building above.

The presses, which weigh hundreds of tons, are floated, so to speak, on rubber cushions. These rubber cushions prevent the transmission of vibration into the earth and through the earth to the supports of the studio building. As a further insurance against vibration the new presses are built upon ingenious foundations. These foundations contain heavy bars of special steel springs with rubber insulation. The ingenuity of this construction is best understood when compared with a musical pitch. In effect these springs have been tuned to vibrate at a pitch which engineers have found eliminates noise in the radio studios above.

Cost $600,000, Tax $100,000.

The cost of the new presses is $600,000. They are paid for naturally out of the undistributed profits of the year. It is interesting to note that this $600,000 comes out of an undistributed profit upon which a tax of $100,000 was paid. It may be added that this $100,000 is in addition to the regular corporate income tax paid on earnings.

It was pointed out by a Tribune pressman that not only does this installation require the production and processing of raw materials, the construction of the presses and their motors but it also contributes to better printing, more pressmen, and increased facilities for distributing and increasing circulation.

THE SULLIVANS SPEAK OUT OF TURN, SO SAM MOY PIPES THEM DOWN

The ways of the Sullivans were as incomprehensible last night to Sam Moy, Chinese laundryman at 5213 Irving Park boulevard, as his ways no doubt were to them.

Anyway, the Sullivans—Lawrence Sr., 45 years old, an insurance man, and Lawrence Jr., 19 years old, both of 5435 Byron street, called at Moy's laundry for their shirts. But they had no ticket. "No tickee, no shirtee," Moy told them, more or less.

Unable to comprehend this reasoning, the Sullivans simply reached over the counter and grabbed packages to search for their shirts. Unable to comprehend this mode of action, Moy simply whacked each Sullivan on the head with an iron gas pipe. Sullivan Sr. went to the Chicago State hospital for medical aid. Sullivan Jr. went to the Belmont hospital for similar attention, and Sam Moy went to the Irving Park police station for assault and battery.

AILING JAPINO, THE ELEPHANT, TAKEN OFF WPA

New York, Dec. 30.—(AP)—Japino, the elephant, was cut off the WPA rolls today, President Roosevelt notwithstanding.

The rules are that those who cannot work don't belong on work relief and Japino is ailing. She collapsed at a performance of the WPA circus in Brooklyn.

Honest Phil Newton, elephant expert, who was called here from Greenville, Ala., diagnosed her illness as a foot infection. She will be confined to the animal farm at Camp Gaw, N. J., for some time.

When recent WPA pay roll cuts threatened Japino's job in the circus, school children petitioned the government to keep her off the hay line. President Roosevelt ruled Dec. 12 that she could stay on WPA.

Prisoners Name Favorite Song; Judge Likes It, Too

New York, Dec. 30.—[Special.]—Two accordionists arrested for soliciting money on a subway train made a brilliant guess today when Magistrate William O'Dwyer in Flatbush court, Brooklyn, asked them their favorite song. "When Irish Eyes Are Smiling," they replied, and a mendicancy sentence was promptly suspended.

Find Marriage for Love Best Race Builder

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Dec. 30.—Persons who marry for love are the best race builders. Those who marry for convenience, for title or for money, are the most likely to produce human misfits.

These are conclusions of the bureau of human heredity, which is organizing from London a world-wide search for clews which may solve the age-old riddle of hereditary insanity.

The bureau, set up on the suggestion of an international group to give free information on hereditary problems to both medical and private inquirers, is collecting and codifying data in almost every civilized country.

Class consciousness has a new meaning for its investigators, who declare that some dukes might be surprised to find that they actually belong to the lower orders, according to modern scientific standards of heredity.

Nature's Eugenics Law.

"Genuine love between a girl and a man of healthy stock, provided it is accompanied by companionship as well, is nature's law of eugenics," one of the investigators said.

"We are born, not made. Our mental, moral, and physical makeup is decided for us before birth. How we develop naturally also will depend on environment, but the seeds are all there.

"Gardeners know the importance of good soil, but no amount of cultivation will turn a thistle into an orchid. The same rules apply to human beings.

"In education, social service, and medical treatment heredity will, in the future, play a more and more important part.

"Conscience is inborn. There are some people who are color blind to right and wrong, just as others cannot distinguish between red and green.

Treat Condition.

"Our grandfathers' method was to treat the condition and not the patient, whether it was physical, mental, or moral illness," he went on.

"Modern knowledge demands individual treatment in teaching, in correcting maladjustments and in curing disease. A true picture of the person as an individual is needed to prevent misfits and forestall trouble."

"These facts cannot be found without a study of the laws of heredity—a branch of medical science in infancy.

"Crime and disease, particularly insanity, are proved to be transmittable. So, on the other hand, is intelligence."

Ready for Hot Time in Old Town Tonight

BY VIRGINIA GARDNER.

A lively celebration of New Year's eve, with the loop overflowing with merrymakers, hotels doing a capacity business in most of their dining and dancing spots, and night clubs and bars over the city crowded, is expected tonight. Hotel prices are $10 a plate or lower, compared with a top price of $12.50 a person last year.

Hotel men were unanimous yesterday in saying that, while prices were lowered because of the idea the citizenry might have less money to spend, the public response was unexpectedly large. Already reservations in most hotels equal or exceed the final intake of last New Year's eve.

Expect to Break 1928 Record.

At the Stevens hotel reservations were more than 100 ahead of the total number of celebrants on New Year's eve of 1928, which topped all New Year's eves of all times, officials there said.

This year the highest price in the hotel is $7.50, prevailing in the Boulevard room, where 700 reservations have been sold.

At the Palmer house dancers will see a globe of the world trundled onto the floor at midnight, with a child as the new year and Father Time emerging to chase each other about the Empire room. More reservations, 420 in all, had been sold yesterday than the total number who attended last New Year's eve.

Gay Spot at Congress.

The Gold room in the Congress hotel will be a gay spot, a capacity crowd of 450 having bought reservations. Likewise the Pompeian room has no more space to offer, 350 having paid for reservations there.

No more space could be bought at the Old Town room of the Hotel Sherman yesterday, and the College inn was three-fourths sold, with its capacity 600 person-

Five hundred persons had paid $7.50 each for dinner at the Terrace Casino, which the Morrison hotel is opening for the night.

The Hotel La Salle expects a sellout in its Blue Fountain room. The Bismarck hotel has only a few tables left in the Walnut room, and a few more in the more informal Bierstube. The Brevoort hotel has only a few tables left in the Gold room, Mural room, and two ballrooms. Seven hundred and fifty persons had bought reservations for the Marine room of the Edgewater Beach hotel.

Drake Opens New Space.

The Drake hotel has sold out all the space in the Gold Coast room and is opening up new space in the Avenue of Palms. The Blackstone is having no New Year's eve celebration this year.

A real old fashioned New Year party, with German songs and folk dances, will be held in the Germania club, its 72d New Year celebration. It will be the 54th to be held in the club's present building, Germania place and Clark street.

Ten thousand merrymakers are expected to dance in the Trianon and Aragon ballrooms. One thousand will celebrate at the Lake Shore Athletic club, 850 Lake Shore drive.

6 SAVED FROM OCEAN REVEAL MYSTERY FIGHTS

Los Angeles, Cal., Dec. 31 [Friday].—[Special.]—The mystery was lifted early today from a weird drama of the sea in which a wealthy hotel owner was shot to death aboard his yacht, and his slayer, after commanding the vessel for five days like a pirate of old, was killed in turn by two mutinous passengers. During those five days of duress, the wife of the slayer was forced to act as his second in command while he slept.

The entire case, because it occurred on the high seas, was taken over by the federal government last night. The yacht, Aafje, a rakish schooner with auxiliary motor, was impounded after it was towed to port here by a coast guard cutter.

Figures in Strange Drama.

Those aboard the yacht when she sailed quietly out of San Pedro harbor ten days ago, presumably for a two day pleasure cruise to Catalina Island, were:

Dwight L. Faulding, 49 years old, hotel owner of Santa Barbara, owner and skipper of the yacht. He was shot to death during a dispute the first day of the cruise, and buried at sea.

Jack [James] Morgan, 28 years old, a former house boy, who claimed to be an ex-naval officer and engineer, but whose antecedents are little known. He killed Faulding in a fight, seized control of the ship, and five days later was clubbed by a fellow passenger, and thrown overboard.

Mrs. Lillian Casanova Morgan, Morgan's pretty wife, who formerly lived in New York. In spite of her pregnant condition, Morgan forced her to command the ship while he slept, and to prevent an uprising by the others aboard.

Kills Skipper's Slayer.

Robert Horne of Los Angeles, an employé of Faulding, who after suffering five days of tyranny, smashed Morgan on the head with a marlin spike and threw him into the sea.

George Spernak, also of Los Angeles, a friend of Morgan's, who, maddened like Horne, helped Horne lift Morgan's body over the rail.

Mrs. Gertrude Turner of Goleta, Cal., a friend of Faulding, and her son, Robert Tufor, 8 years old.

Miss Elsie Berdan, engaged as a companion for Mrs. Morgan because of her delicate condition.

Ill and near hysteria from their weird experiences that bore the fantastic touch of a buccaneering adventure on the Spanish main, and included not only the two murders but harrowing days without food or fresh water, and heavy seas that buffeted their ill fated ship about, the six survivors were towed in last night by the coast guard cutter Perseus.

Sighted by Navy Flyer.

Mrs. Turner wept bitterly as she landed. Mrs. Morgan laughed deliriously. Miss Berdan appeared bewildered, while the two men looked vacantly ahead. Most unconcerned, apparently, was little Robert.

The yacht left San Pedro on Dec. 20, hired by Morgan from Faulding, with Faulding remaining as skipper, supposedly for a pre-Christmas cruise.

Long overdue—and without radio to keep in touch with shore—no word was heard from her until Wednesday when a navy flyer from San Diego noticed her evidently disabled in rough seas. He dived closer and made out the distress letters S O S painted on her sails. He came down beside her, learned the dramatic story of what had occurred, and then flew to shore for help.

Official Statement on Case.

The Perseus picked up the Aafje 190 miles out and towed it into port here. Federal agents, headed by John Hanson, chief of the Los Angeles bureau of investigation, promptly impounded the yacht and placed the three women and two men under technical custody and arranged to care for Mrs. Turner's son.

Following a day of conflicting reports in which piracy, mutiny and even a duel over women were mentioned, Mr. Hanson issued an official statement, by authority of J. Edgar Hoover, his chief in Washington. The statement, with later amplifications, told of Faulding's murder on the first day of the cruise, of Morgan ruling over the yacht like a tryant, of compelling his wife to act as his chief aide, and finally, of his own fall at the hands of Horne and Spernak.

After identifying the eight on board the Aafje and stating that the yacht sailed on Dec. 20, Mr. Hanson stated:

"Late that evening, after the boat was several hours out of San Pedro, Morgan became involved in an altercation with Faulding, during which time Morgan killed Faulding with a pistol. Morgan then assumed command of the Aafje, and late that night, off of San Clemente Island, Faulding was buried at sea.

"Morgan continued in command of the boat and at a point estimated at about 500 miles from San Pedro Morgan five days later again became involved in an encounter.

Throw Body Overboard.

"Horne struck Morgan from behind with a marlin spike, and without waiting to determine if he were dead Horne and Spernak, a friend of Morgan, dumped his body overboard.

"While Morgan was in charge of the vessel he forced his wife to hold control of the yacht with his pistol during the time he slept. At times others aboard were locked in their cabins.

"On the morning of Dec. 29 the members of the party remaining on the Aafje, realizing their plight, painted an S O S signal on the main sail and a naval aviator from San Diego, observing their condition, landed alongside the Aafje. When the distressed condition of the yacht was determined the coast guard and the federal bureau of investigation were notified, as a result of which a complete investigation now is under way of all the activities."

Strange Story Is Unfolded.

Little by little, the strange story of the ocean drama was pieced together this morning as the survivors told their stories. Morgan's actions were sudden. Without warning, soon after the Aafje started on the trip, Morgan drove Faulding from the wheel. "From now on, I am in charge of this ship," he shouted. Faulding drew back, then started forward. Morgan leveled his pistol. He fired two shots, at least. Faulding, groaning, fell.

From that moment on Morgan dominated the ship as no modern mariner probably ever attempted. He swore, he threatened—he kept his revolver in sight as a warning.

Even Mrs. Morgan, to whom he appeared as a madman, could not reason with him. Yet he trusted only her. Occasionally, when he felt drowsy, and wanted to sleep, he ordered her to stay at the wheel, and to awaken him should any one attempt mutiny.

For about five days this reign of terror, days during which several of the passengers were locked in their rooms, continued. Then one moment as Morgan turned his head, Horne crept up behind him, struck him on the head with a spike. Without seeing whether Morgan was dead or alive, Horne and Spernak threw him overboard.

Yacht Sails 500 Miles.

During this harrowing voyage the Aafje had sailed to a point 500 miles south of San Pedro. Food and water were almost gone; only two days' rations had been taken aboard. After Morgan was killed, somewhere off the coast of Mexico, Spernak and Horne turned northward, trusting in the winds to save gasoline. The following days were difficult for all aboard, first with food and water virtually gone, with winds alternately stormy and dead, and with death constantly threatening.

Mrs. Morgan told federal agents her maiden name was Lillian Casanova and she was from New York. She met Morgan in New Orleans in 1935 and they were married and came here seven months ago. Hanson said Spernack was from Granville, N. Y.

But for the fortuitous approach of the naval flyer from San Diego all, it was admitted, might have perished in another two or three days.

Morgan Central Figure.

Of all those on the ill fated yacht Morgan involved the most speculation. Officials could learn little about him. One report said he was descended from Thomas Morgan, the famous pirate of old, and had dreams of piratical adventuring. "He had visions of establishing a colony of some sort," said one investigator. It is known, however, that he had worked several months this year as a houseman in Long Beach. Where he accumulated enough money to hire Faulding's yacht is a mystery. Morgan is believed, incidentally, to be an assumed name.

Faulding was widely known on the west coast. Since he leased his hotel five months ago he had been living on his yacht, which once was owned by the late Cliff Durant. He and his wife, Etta, are estranged. He settled a large sum on her in her suit for separate maintenance two years ago. Los Angeles society often mentioned Faulding and Mrs. Turner, one of those on the Aafje, as close friends.

BAIL GRANTED 34 OF 36 CONVICTED IN MINE BOMBING

Springfield, Ill., Dec. 30.—[Special.]—Judge J. Earl Major of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals today granted supersedeas bail of $10,000 each for 34 of the 36 defendants convicted for their part in the bombing conspiracy in Illinois coal fields during 1932 to 1935.

The men, most of whom are members of Progressive Miners of America, were sentenced two days ago by Federal Judge Charles G. Briggle to four years' imprisonment and fined $20,000 each.

Government attorneys opposed granting of bail pending appeal of the case to the Circuit Court of Appeals, contending there was no substantial ground for error. Judge Major countered by stating that so long and involved a trial was in itself a ground for review.

Defense counsel said immediate steps would be taken to release the 34 now in the Springfield jail.

Girl Cashier at Movie, Shot by Robber, Dies

Miss Jean Riley, 22 years old, who was shot by a bandit on Dec. 10 as she sat in the ticket cage of the Windsor theater, 1225 North Clark street, died of her wound early today in Henrotin hospital. Miss Riley, who lived at 1222 North Clark street, was substitute cashier for the night. When the bandit approached and demanded the receipts, she thought he was joking and laughed. He fired one shot which struck her below the heart. Then he grabbed $56 and escaped in a car with two companions.

SCIENTISTS MOVE TO CLIP FETTERS OF FREE THOUGHT

Declaration of Intellectual Independence Issued.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Indianapolis, Ind., Dec. 30.—[Special.]—Science stepped out of its ivory tower today to bring a new influence upon distracted human affairs.

Dr. W. C. Mitchell, new president.

The American Association for the Advancement of Science, representing in its membership of a million the spirit, conscience, and knowlege of American science, took an important step toward preserving intellectual freedom among the democratic countries and in the promotion of peace.

Council Adopts Resolution.

The council of the association, composed of the most distinguished scientists in this country, adopted the following resolution:

"Whereas, science and its applications are not only transforming the physical and mental environment of man but are adding greatly to the complexities of social, economic, and political relations; and

"Whereas, science is wholly independent of national boundaries and races and creeds and can flourish permanently only where there is peace and intellectual freedom; now

"Therefore, Be it resolved by the council that the American Association for the Advancement of Science makes as one of its objectives an examination of the profound effects of science upon society; and that the association extends to its prototype, the British Association for the Advancement of Science, and to all other scientific organizations with similar aims throughout the world, an invitation to coöperate not only in advancing the interests of pure science but also in promoting peace among nations and intellectual freedom in order that science may continue to advance and to spread more abundantly its benefits to all mankind."

Dr. Mitchell Elected.

The association also took another significant step in electing as president Dr. Westley C. Mitchell, professor of economics at Columbia university, an expert on business cycles. This is the first time this branch of the association has been so recognized, and it reflects the growing concern of the scientists over the social conditions under which they must work. Dr. Mitchell was born in Rushville, Ill., and was educated at the University of Chicago.

The association first went on record in 1933 on the question of intellectual freedom. It had learned what was happening to its brothers in Russia, where even astronomers have to bend their thoughts to state ideology, and in Italy and Germany.

Dr. F. R. Moulton, secretary of the association, made public today's resolution. The action was first proposed at the Harvard tercentenary in 1936 by Prof. Etienne Gilson of the University of Paris, one of the great scholars of the world.

Stands Out for Right as Judge.

He made a plea for coöperation by scientists and philosophers in teaching that there is a spiritual order of realities whose absolute right is to judge even the state and eventually to free us from its oppression. He would revive the principle that truth, morality, social justice, and duty are necessary and universal in their own right. This is in direct conflict with the totalitarian state, which rationalizes even its most unmoral actions, and declares itself to the supreme law.

Sir Josiah Stamp made a proposal for a democratic world association of science at the last meeting of the British scientists. This now has been responded to in America, and interchange of memberships probably will result. The Royal Society of England and the National Academy of Science in this country already have arranged for exchange of lecturers on fruitful scientific ideas. Dr. Alexis Carrel has proposed a sort of supreme court of science, where men would assimilate and integrate all exact knowledge. It may be said that this movement leads back to Plato's idea of a republic, with philosopher kings as rulers, but that never got beyond the idea stage.

Science Extends Roots.

Regardless of whether this and similar action ever touches the political field directly, science grows through the social body like a plant, extending its roots and tendrils everywhere. This idea was expressed today by Dr. Arthur H. Compton, speaking before the Science Teachers' association.

He demonstrated how the discovery of X-rays had profoundly affected thinking and action, how it has led into the electronic field, influenced ideas of the universe, touched human suffering, and transformed many industries.

All the undercurrent of hope in the world today, he said, the visions of new worlds, has been made possible by the march of science.

Heavy Water Is New Tool.

At this same meeting, Dr. Harold Urey explained how he obtained precipitations of heavy water and how this chemical action here promised a new tool in the field of disease and biology. Dr. W. M. Stanley of the Rockefeller institute gave new hope for a conquest of the virus diseases and the possibility of a new approach to the problem of cancer in an address to the teachers. These diseases include influenza and infantile paralysis.

The viruses are invisible and Dr. Stanley has demonstrated that the virus of the tobacco mosaic disease is a giant protein molecule possessing many characteristics that had been thought to be the exclusive properties of living organisms. However, the virus can only reproduce when it enters a living cell.

May Show Protoplasm Growth.

New light on the conditions under which it reproduces may show how protoplasm grows and thus explain the distinction between the living and the non-living, whether a vital principle is involved or whether it results from a certain combination of substances, as many biologists think. Given this combination and radiation, they say, and life springs up, today as of old.

Dr. Frederick Osborn of New York and Edward C. Lindeman of the New York School of Social Work took part in today's symposium on science and society. Speaking on the utilization of human resources, Mr. Lindeman asked the American scientists to turn the attention of theoretical and applied science to human needs.

"Science will not have fulfilled its proper function," he said, "until the specialized scientists are free to cross into each other's territory whenever the human problem calls for such treatment, and until scientists assume some degree of social responsibility for the consequences of their inventiveness.

Asks Aid of Science.

"A technological age cannot afford to have its values set by persons unfamiliar with the foundations of science and technology. We must ask the scientists to assist us in the very task of outlining programs of welfare and in the even more delicate task of making reasonable tests of all proposed values.

"Germany was once regarded as a nation in which there had evolved an appropriate respect for science and technology as the foundations of the modern state. Alas for scientific Germany! Its ablest scholars and scientists must now seek refuge in those few remaining democracies where freedom is still alive.

"Our American scientists will find themselves in a similar situation if they do not soon give heed to questions of human needs, human resources, and human values, but there will be this difference: by that time there will be no refuge for them unless it be as incognitos among primitive peoples."

TAGALOG TONGUE IS MADE OFFICIAL FOR PHILIPPINES

MANILA, P. I., Dec. 30.—(AP)—Commonwealth President Manuel L. Quezon signed an executive order today proclaiming the Tagalog dialect the basis of a national language in the Philippines. About half of the 14,000,000 Filipinos speak Tagalog.

Speaking in Tagalog, Quezon then addressed by radio a crowd gathered to celebrate the forty-first anniversary of the execution of the Filipino revolutionary patriot, Dr. Jose Rizal, by the Spaniards.

The president said that, although Spanish was the official language more than 300 years, and English for 39 years, neither became the common language of the people. He said a common language was necessary because "we need its power more completely to weld us into a strong nation." He stressed that having a national language did not mean abandonment of either Spanish or English in the schools.

Report New Clew to 4 Missing Illinois Tourists

El Paso, Tex., Dec. 30.—(AP)—Echoes of the mysterious disappearance in May, 1935, of four Illinois tourists near Socorro, N. M., were revived today by a telegram to Gov. Clyde Tingley of New Mexico, asking the amount of a reward that would be paid for information. Tingley, here for the Sun Bowl carnival, tried to telephone to the unidentified Barstow, Cal., sender the reward would be liberal. The missing tourists were Mr. and Mrs. George Lorius of East St. Louis, Ill., and Mr. and Mrs. Albert Heberer, Duquoin, Ill.

Baby Weighing 13 Pounds 4 Ounces Born at Hospital

Mrs. Harold Laughlin of Blue Island gave birth to a girl baby, weighing 13 pounds 4 ounces, Wednesday, the Chicago Lying-In hospital announced yesterday. The baby was her sixth child and is the second heaviest born at the hospital since it moved to the University of Chicago in 1927.

Pelican Penance

Philandering Brookfield zoo pelican sitting on eggs of his new love, a lady of the species from Africa.

The pelican is not such a funny bird as the old limerick might indicate. The love life of one of them at the Brookfield zoo has caused plenty of lifted brows and could have ended pretty seriously.

The handsome pelican from Australia was for two years a great pal of the cute little shelduck from New Zealand and the two were together almost constantly. Then the two African pelicans moved in. The lady appeared to be utterly respectable, but it seems now she wasn't. Her husband and the little shelduck found themselves deserted.

But the Australian finally had to pay the piper. His lady love came up with a batch of eggs and, according to pelican custom, the MALE has to sit on them. This he was doing yesterday—and will be for some time.

PROBE EXPERTS' PART IN AIRPORT LAND VALUATION

Realty Associates Study Ethics of Action.

BY WAYNE THOMIS.

The advisory council of the Chicago Real Estate board and the Chicago chapter of the American Institute of Real Estate Appraisers yesterday began an investigation of the proposed purchase of land by the city for expansion of Chicago airport. If the facts are found to warant it, they may take disciplinary action against their own members involved.

Officers of the two organizations are interested in the parts played in the proposed deal [the transaction was called off after Mayor Kelly declared the city was being quoted outrageously high prices for the 2.78 acres sought] by the men who made an appraisal for the land owner, Raymond E. Herman, La Salle street real estate broker.

May Rebuke or Expel.

It is the intention of the investigating committees, it was said yesterday, to determine whether the men who made the appraisal for Herman violated professional ethics. The two organizations may rebuke the men involved. Expulsion would be the maximum punishment.

The appraisal of Herman's land was made by John S. Fischer, 10 South La Salle street, chairman; John F. Jones of Jones & Kerfoot, 134 North La Salle street; William H. Hart of Hart & Whetston, 1 North La Salle street; Leslie W. Porter of Hodge, Nicholson & Porter, 231 South La Salle street, and Louis B. Beardslee of 100 North La Salle street.

Set $65,323 Valuation.

They made their appraisal as a committee for the real estate board at the request of Herman, and fixed a value of $65,323 for the strip of land sought by the city and for Herman's rights in another strip of land owned by a railroad which crosses his property. The city had offered $20,000 for the ground. A day after the committee appraisal was made known, Arthur W. Kruggel, president of the realty board, said that $27,407 was plenty.

An investigation of the tax records by Assessor John S. Clark disclosed that Porter and Beardslee had appraised Herman's property for Clark's predecessor as worth no more than $1,000 an acre. They also had insisted at that time that the land was nonindustrial. In their recent valuation, however, they declared the ground was valuable for industrial purposes.

All Belong to Realty Board.

All five of the appraisers are members of the real estate board. Several of them also are members of the appraisers' institute. George Quinn, president of the Chicago chapter of the institute, refused last evening to disclose which of the five are members of the organization, but he verified the fact that the investigation by his group is under way.

The city has now dropped the plan to use Herman's land in the expansion scheme. Assessor Clark, declaring he could not overlook new sources of revenue, has raised the valuation of Herman's land for tax purposes from $1,000 to $2,750 an acre. This will increase his tax bill from $3,640 for 1936 to $11,778 for 1937.

NORTHWEST AREA TORN BY FLOODS AND AVALANCHES

Seattle, Wash., Dec. 30.—(AP)—Floods and avalanches isolated half a dozen Pacific northwest communities tonight as the weather bureau here forecast more rain, with fresh to strong westerly winds off the coast.

New avalanches occurred as Canadian National and Canadian Pacific railroads were about to restore services interrupted by earlier slides. Concrete, Wash., railhead of Seattle's Municipal Skagit river line, was cut off by a slide to all except one-way trafic. The Dash Point and Browns Point suburban communities near Tacoma were isolated, except for a roundabout route.

The Columbia river at Vancouver, Wash., reached flood stage as the result of the heaviest rain in 50 years. Bottom lands were flooded. At Salem, Ore., high water ripped dikes, turning the low lands into a vast lake and causing about $100,000 property damage.

BARRINGTON'S BAD BOY HOME; HE'S STILL BAD

Barrington's bad boy, Henry Pattison, has come home and, as Police Chief Ernest Baade ruefully observed last night, very little changed. Pattison is now 16 years old. He left just seven years ago after a brief reign of mischievousness.

Pattison returned two days ago. His first call was on Chief Baade. "I'm a nice boy now," he assured the chief. He seemed shy and contrite, and the chief accepted him at his word. For the last seven years Pattison had been working on farms in Grundy county.

Chief Baade happily told Pattison the town was his. But three hours later the chief received a frantic call from his young niece, Mrs. Florence Baade, that a young man with a toy gun had tried to attack her. Pattison confessed he had menaced Mrs. Baade.

Parolee Confesses Passing Fifty Worthless Checks

Mathew Wilhelm, 36 years old, 1950 Belmont avenue, a paroled convict, confessed yesterday to Lieut. John Buckley of the Sheffield avenue station that he had passed about fifty bogus checks on merchants in the city. The amounts ranged from $10 to $100. He was sentenced to prison in 1930 for a confidence game, police said, and has been sought as a parole violator since last April.

MUNDELEIN TOLD OF SCHOOL GAINS IN ARCHDIOCESE

Enrollment Picks Up at Higher Levels.

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

Substantial gains in schools and colleges of the Catholic archdiocese of Chicago were formally reported yesterday to Cardinal Mundelein by the Rev. Daniel F. Cunningham, superintendent of the Catholic board of education.

High Schools Gain.

The most notable increase reported was a gain of 892 pupils in Catholic high schools over a year ago. A loss of enrollment in grade schools was attributed to decreases in the first grade from 1931 through 1934. Since 1934, however, the Rev. Father Cunningham reported, this tendency has ceased in the parochial, although it exists still in the public school. Catholic kindergartens showed a substantial increase this year.

"The high schools," Father Cunningham's report stated, "continued to show vigorous growth. The total enrollment was 20,480 pupils. This indicates that parents are becoming more and more alive to the need of keeping their children under Catholic auspices beyond the grade school level. Some of our high schools reported that they were unable to accommodate all the Catholic children who wished to enter."

Enter Parochial Schools.

The number of graduates from the eighth grade was reported to be the second largest on record, totaling 18,082. Of 7,508 girl graduates 3,436 entered Catholic high schools and 3,297 entered public high schools. This, the report explained, is the first time since 1931 that more parochial school girl graduates entered Catholic high schools than public high schools.

A total of 195,097 pupils and students were reported as attending schools and colleges of the archdiocese.

N. Y. BOARD MAPS WORKING GIRL'S $196.81 WARDROBE

New York, Dec. 30.—[Special.]—A heavy coat that will last three winters, a light coat that will last two years, eight dresses, twenty pairs of silk stockings, five panties, four slips, three brassieres, and three nightgowns are among the minimum clothing needs, which total $196.81 annually at current prices, for the average working girl in New York, the state department of labor announced today.

The items and costs were determined by the staf of Miss Frieda Miller, director of the division of women in industry, which is seeking a basis for minimum wage standards in each industry.

The eight dresses include one inexpensive party dress. Four pairs of medium quality shoes are necessary each year, and one pair of party slippers that must go through two years' dancing. A new blouse and skirt are needed each year, and a sweater every second year.

Every third year, the state department expects the working girl to buy herself a new wool bathrobe and a new raincoat, every other year a new kimono, bedroom slippers, overshoes, and an umbrella. Three pairs of gloves will be necessary yearly, as well as two handbags, a dozen handkerchiefs, and two undervests.

NAZIS INCREASE SUBSIDIES FOR LARGE FAMILIES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Dec. 30.—A New Year's gift of $108,000,000 annually from the state to large families was announced today. This amount will be distributed by the Nazi government toward support of the third, fourth, and subsequent children born to German parents. The money will be derived from the unemployment insurance fund which, it was said, now shows a surplus because of the reduction of unemployment.

Hitherto each worker earning not more than $480 a year received $4 a month for each fifth and subsequent child under 16 years of age. Beginning April 1 the wage limit will be raised to $2,880 a year. At the same time, each third and fourth child will entitle parents to $4 per month, and each subsequent child $8.

Each worker with ten children who now receives $24 a month from the state for their support will receive $56 monthly in the future.

Return 3 Chicago Youths Suspected of Auto Thefts

Three Chicago youths arrested Wednesday in Mishawaka, Ind., in possession of a car owned by Earl W. Olson, 1729 North Lotus avenue, were brought home yesterday by Chicago police. They will be questioned on a series of automobile thefts in their neighborhood. They are Kenneth McCorton, 15 years old, 1814 North Lotus avenue; Harvey Herman Engel, 16 years old, 5504 Cortland street, and Robert Knepp, 14 years old, 1836 North Long avenue.

ESCAPE FROM VETERANS' HOSPITAL.

Two inmates of the United States Veterans' hospital at North Chicago, John Joseph Burke, 36 years old, of 8148 South Paulina street, and James Serpless, 38, who gave 1509 South State street as his home, escaped last night and were being hunted by police of north shore towns.

ASK 3 MILLIONS MORE IN SCHOOL BUDGET FOR 1938

Total Appropriation Put at $73,312,389.

The tentative school budget for 1938, submitted yesterday to the board of education, recommends appropriation of $73,312,389, an increase of $2,993,539 over the $70,318,850 budget adopted for 1937. This boost is more than accounted for by salary restorations and raises for teachers and other employés of the board.

Teachers' regular day school salary appropriations for 1937 totaled $29,219,293 and for 1938 have been set at $33,311,318, an increase of $4,091,025. Total salaries for 1937—including teachers' regular salaries—were $36,466,577. For 1938 they have been set at $41,640,897. This is an increase of $5,174,320.

Educational Fund Largest.

Of the various funds into which the tentative budget is divided, the educational fund—which includes teachers' pay—is the largest at $53,178,555. The building fund is next, with $11,998,145 asked. The following table compares the proposed 1938 appropriations with the actual ones of 1937:

	Appropriations.
Fund.	1938.	1937.
Educational	$53,178,555	$47,632,000
Building	11,998,145	14,256,500
Free text book	1,002,879	1,274,818
School playground	473,723	316,100
Pension	1,585,543	1,628,827
Bond	3,685,874	3,875,133
Special	50,670	85,470
Lunch room	1,357,000	1,250,000

The report of Howard P. Savage, business manager of the board, which he presented with the tentative budget, estimates resources available for appropriation of $73,317,393, slightly more than the amount asked.

62 Millions from Taxes.

Of this total $62,092,730 is the 1938 tax levy, which includes the $45,000,000 pegged educational levy. Miscellaneous revenue will provide $9,503,974 and the balance—$1,720,687—is a surplus from the 1937 appropriations with which the board will enter the new year.

The budget draft was accepted tentatively by the board yesterday and will be open to public inspection until Jan. 10 when a hearing of protests and recommendations will be held. On the basis of these, the actual appropriation will be decided.

SPEEDY JUSTICE RUNS INTO TWO HORSE PLAYERS

Speedy justice was invoked yesterday against two men whose determination to beat the horse races led them to use others' money.

Chief Justice Cornelius J. Harrington in the Criminal court sentenced Andrew Seeman, 56 years old, formerly a stationary engineer for the school board, to serve from one to ten years in the penitentiary for operating a confidence game.

Evidence showed that Seeman obtained $8,000 from twenty-six persons on promises to get them jobs similar to the one he held.

Seeman was arrested Monday when he was released after serving a Bridewell sentence of ninety days for passing worthless checks. He was indicted on Tuesday and his case set for immediate trial by Judge Harrington, before whom he pleaded guilty.

A true bill was reported voted by the grand jury yesterday against Otto W. Stangohr, 50 years old, 2110 Lake street, Evanston, a real estate dealer, who was arrested a few days ago. Stangohr was charged with passing $1,724 in worthless checks. He admitted he obtained the money illegally because he believed he had a system of winning on horse races.

Ministers, Bookies Get Most Copies of Betting Ordinance

City Clerk Peter J. Brady said yesterday his office has handed out approximately 1,500 copies of the parimutuel track brokers' ordinance passed last week by the city council. He said representatives of handbook operators and ministers have asked for most of the copies. More interest has been shown in the ordinance than in any other since he was elected to office, Brady said.

4.77 PCT. OF 1935 TAX LEVIES ARE RULED INVALID

Few to Benefit from Jarecki's Order.

County Judge Edmund K. Jarecki entered a formal order yesterday sustaining objections to more than $7,600,000 of the 1935 tax levies of major governments in Cook county. The order followed completion of rate case hearings Wednesday.

The objections upheld by Judge Jarecki were equivalent to 39 cents of the $8.37 city tax rate for 1935, or 4.77 per cent of the aggregate levies for the city, school board, county, sanitary district, park district, and forest preserve district. Objections sustained by Judge Jarecki aganst the 1934 levies totaled 4 per cent.

Few Taxpayers to Benefit.

Although nearly 8 million dollars of 1935 levies were held invalid, few taxpayers will benefit from the rulings. The reductions apply only to taxpayers who took their protests to court. Those who paid their 1935 taxes in full without protesting will get no rebate and no reductions will be given to delinquent taxpayers who did not make protest.

For this reason, it is estimated the losses in revenue to the local governments involved will be less than a third of the total invalidated. Much of the illegal taxes already have been collected.

Appeals Are Expected.

Judge Jarecki ruled against all objections to the 1935 levies of the sanitary and forest preserve districts, but upheld objections to $5,325,714 of the city levies, approximately $1,000,000 of the park district, $763,000 of the school board, and $565,000 of the county. The governments are expected to appeal from the adverse rulings, while attorneys for objecting taxpayers say they will appeal on objections turned down by Judge Jarecki.

JUDGE M'GARRY TRANSFERRED TO NONJURY COURT

Judge Eugene L. McGarry of the Municipal court, who has been sitting in the License division where short-weight cases are prosecuted, was transferred yesterday to a non-jury branch where civil suits are heard.

His place in License court will be taken by Judge Lambert K. Hayes. Chief Justice John J. Sonsteby said the transfer order was one of several routine shifts.

Judge McGarry recently engaged in a controversy with the city sealer's office over the manner in which he handled short-weight cases. A citation against Edwin R. Peterson, field director for the Better Business Bureau, to show cause why he should not be held for contempt for alleged criticism of the court's actions, is pending.

COUNTY URGED TO ELIMINATE USELESS JOBS

Warned Pay Rolls Must Be Cut or Taxes Raised.

A survey of county offices to determine the number of unnecessary positions which can be eliminated was advocated yesterday by Douglas Sutherland, executive secretary of the Civic Federation and Bureau of Public Efficiency.

Sutherland, at a public hearing on the county's $35,649,674 budget for 1938, said the county is faced with declining revenues and must effect economies in operating costs. He urged a survey of the employé situation.

He said regular salaries for county employés are at a new all time high in the 1938 appropriations bill. From a previous peak of $8,071,000 in 1931, salaries dropped to $6,560,000 in 1933 but in 1938 will reach $8,954,000, a 36 per cent jump in five years.

Penalties Called Uncertain.

"Penalties on delinquent taxes have enabled the county to maintain its corporate fund in spite of falling tax revenues without suffering the drastic cuts which were necessary in the case of other governments," Sutherland said. "These penalties constitute an extremely uncertain source of revenue and no one can tell how suddenly they will drop to the former normal yield of about $500,000 a year.

The 1938 budget estimates that penalties [all of which accrue to the county] will total $5,300,000 next year. In the last five years income from penalities has ranged from $5,800,000 to $7,700,000 annually.

As this source of revenue dries up, he continued, expenditures must be cut or new taxes added. An increase of 15 or 20 cents in the county corporate tax rate would prove unpopular, he warned, even if it could be added without exceeding the 75 cent constitutional limit.

Largest Since 1930.

The 1938 budget includes appropriations of $21,423,445 for the corporate [operating] fund, largest since 1930 and $2,878,110 above the 1937 appropriations.

An increase in the proposed appropriations for the nurses' training school was requested at the hearing by George B. McKibbin, president of the board of directors of the school. He said an appropriation of $2,094,000 is needed, or $294,000 more than the present allotment of $1,800,000. The 1937 appropriation was $1,630,000.

WOMAN CARRIED FROM FIRE AFTER GIVING ALARM

A 3-11 alarm fire which caused $25,000 damage to the three story store and apartment building at 1541-43 Devon avenue yesterday was being investigated by Fire Attorney Earle Downes. Devon avenue trafic, including Broadway street cars, was tied up for two hours.

Clint Palmer, manager of the Marian apartment hotel occupying the second and third floors, and his wife, Iva, warned forty tenants before she was overcome by smoke. She was carried from the second floor by firemen.

The fire started in a shoe store owned by Charles Cohn, 1508 Schreiber avenue. The owner of the building and of a dry goods store on the first floor is Nathan Rashman, 3800 Lake Shore drive.

PONDER FUTURE OF MOTHER, 12, AND FATHER, 13

Unmarried Child Parents Pose a Problem.

Linton, Ind., Dec. 30.—[Special.]—Legal authorities and most of this community of 5,000 tonight were pondering the unprecedented predicament of an unwed child mother 12 years old and a father 13 years old who love each other but cannot marry and give their baby a name because of a prohibitive law.

Tommy Chapman admits he is the father of the bouncing ten and a half pound boy born Tuesday to little Betty June Lacer. He wants to marry his son's mother. Betty June wants to marry Tommy. But the Indiana law says children under 16 may not wed, even with their parents' consent.

Aside from the possible legal aspects of the case are the larger social issues raised. Most of the discussion centered about the question of whether the baby shall remain nameless, stigmatized by a law which regards his mother and father as too young to marry although they are sufficiently mature to become parents.

Jail Sentence Unlikely.

Circuit Judge J. Raymond Powell, before whom Tommy was arraigned yesterday, has indicated he will not send the young father to jail. It was pointed out that the boy's willingness to marry Betty June nullifies, morally if not technically, the charge on which the case was brought into court.

Observers suggested the young couple could be married in Kentucky or Tennessee, where child marriages have been performed. It was believed they would not be prosecuted if they were to go to one of those states and be married, and then return here to live.

The grandparents of the baby on both sides were willing for the young father and mother to be married when the girl's prospective motherhood was first revealed. But they soon learned the law prevented such a union. Now they are at a loss as to what should be done.

Problem for Families.

Judge Powell took the case under advisement to permit the families to work out some agreement between themselves. Betty June's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ben Lacer, and Tommy's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Chapman, have been friends and neighbors for years. Lacer and Chapman formerly worked in coal mines near here.

Tommy and Betty June started to school together in the first grade and were graduated from the eighth grade last spring. Tommy since has been attending high school in Detroit, where his parents moved last fall.

Both children have avowed their love for each other. As she cuddled her baby in her arms like a Christmas doll, the little mother told of her hopes that everything would turn out all right.

"We really didn't mean to do anything wrong," she said.

Diary Reveals Trysts.

It was disclosed she kept a diary of their dates. They had twenty-five romantic meetings, her notebook revealed. These usually took place, she said, on the front porch of her parents' home or in their family car, parked in the yard.

Tommy, who is large for his age, is very solemn about the matter. He promised that as soon as he can legally do so he will marry his baby's mother and will some day make a home for them. The only money he has ever earned was for delivering newspapers here.

Until the children marry, either now in some other state or when they are 16, it is expected that if Tommy's parents make some provision to pay for the baby's support the case will be regarded as only a childish indiscretion and no legal action will be sought.

BURGLAR ALARM REVEALS GROUND FOR A DIVORCE

On the night of Sept. 30, two policemen from the Grand Crossing station testified yesterday, Edward J. Lillie called them to his home, then at 7136 Ellis avenue, believing burglars were there.

Policeman Harry Dohman went to the rear and found a man crawling out of a basement window. The man said he had just taken the canary down there for the night. Policeman Thomas Mitchell entered by the front door and found a man in the dining room.

He also found Lillie's wife, Mary Ellen, 29 years old. Mrs. Lillie told them, Mitchell said, that she was in love with the canary custodian and that the other man was waiting for her sister. Judge Charles A. Williams granted Lillie a divorce on grounds of adultery and awarded him custody of his children, Mary, 9, and Edward Jr., 6.

Seized After Trafic Mishap, Found to Be Store Robber

Richard Peabody, 23 years old, of 1423 Berteau avenue, was seized yesterday by Police Chief Lorenz Schey of Lincolnwood after Peabody threatened another motorist with a gun following a minor trafic mishap. Peabody confessed four store robberies in Chicago and named Chester Skol, 2621 Cortland street, and Skol's brother-in-law, Arthur La Frana, of the same address, as his accomplices. They were arrested later by the Shakespeare avenue police.

2 Women Electrocuted as They Try to Save a Boy

Wynne, Ark., Dec. 30.—(AP)—Two women were electrocuted here today when they attempted to rescue a 15 year old boy from contact with a 2,300 volt power line. The dead are Mrs. Jesse Perry, 48 years old, and her sister, Mrs. Mary Capshaw, 41. The boy, Mrs. Perry's son Guy, was reported near death. One of his hands was burned.

CITY MUST PAY 1½ MILLION FOR JANUARY RELIEF

$1,887,380 Allotted by State.

The Chicago Relief administration estimated yesterday that the city's relief needs for January will be $3,418,907. The Illinois Emergency Relief commission alloted the city $1,887,380 in state funds, leaving a deficit of $1,531,527 to be met from city funds.

The 1938 city budget will not be passed by the city council until the early part of next month, and it will be the middle of the month before tax warants can be sold to raise cash for the CRA. The council, however, empowered City Controler Robert B. Upham to lend the CRA money from the general funds of the city to meet relief needs until the warants can be sold.

City to Supply $4,128,000.

Under the proposed budget now before the council the CRA will have $4,128,000 to spend during 1938. Of this amount, however, the CFA must give the city $1,250,000 in return for money borrowed during 1937.

"I see no immediate danger of further reduction in relief standards," said Commissioner Lyons of the CRA.

In its estimate to the commission the CRA said it expects to have 92,000 cases on its rolls during the next month. Earlier this week E. E. Ferebee, chief statistician for the CRA, estimated that there will be a total of 88,000 cases on the rolls at the and of December.

Efficiency Test Starts Jan. 15.

Lyons announced that the Canal district office of the CRA has been selected for the efficiency test to be started on Jan. 15. In this test the Canal district will be set up as a model district, with an adequate staf to permit careful examination of the reliefers.

NEW LAW ENDS HONEYMOON OF CHILD BRIDE, 13

Huntingdon, Tenn., Dec. 30.—(AP)—The honeymoon of Ida Bell Thomas, 13 years old, ended abruptly today when Tennessee's new child bride law was invoked to jail her husband.

Magistrate Manuel McCormick said Garfield Taylor, 22 years old, was held for the grand jury on a charge of fraudulently obtaining a marriage license, and that George Campbell, friend of the bridegroom, was held on a charge of falsely attesting the girl was more than 18 years old.

Ida Bell was back today in her parents' home nine miles north of here after a day of marriage. Her mother, Mrs. Lena Thomas, said she would bring annulment proceedings.

U. S. TO QUIZ N. Y. POLITICIAN IN SPY IDENTITY PUZZLE

Revealed by Marinelli as Passport Agent.

New York, Dec. 30.—[Special.]—A minor Democratic politician was expected to be questioned soon by federal authorities seeking to trace the identity of Adolph Arnold Rubens in an unsolved international spy mystery.

The politician, whose identity was kept secret, has been named by Albert Marinelli, resigned county clerk, as the person who asked him to see that passport applications for Rubens and for the mysterious Mr. and Mrs. Donald L. Robinson were handled expeditiously by the county clerk's office.

If he can not tell who Rubens really is, the state department will be almost at a dead end, it is believed. But if he knows and will tell the true identity of Rubens, the mystery will be cleared up promptly.

Name Changing Puzzles.

Interest centered in the method used by Rubens—husband of Mrs. Ruth Marie Rubens, identified as the woman held in a soviet prison with her husband, called Robinson—to acquire the name he has been using. The order was signed in Manhattan City court by Justice Louis W. Keller on Jan. 16, 1935. The petition on which Rubens' name was changed was offered to the tribunal by Edward Blatt, a Union Square attorney.

Rubens stated he wished to drop the name of Adolf Rudewitz—to which he apparently had no right—in favor of one by which he is now known for the sake of literary euphony. He declared it would sound better over his writings.

A remarkable fact about the application to change his name was that Rubens gave little vital information. He omitted answers of importance on two other occasions when he obtained a marriage certificate without giving his father's full name, and when he obtained a fraudulent passport. But in the name changing instance the omission was even more noticeable.

Time of Residence Omitted.

The space in which Rubens, claiming to be a foreign born American citizen through the naturalization of his father, should have mentioned the period of his residence in New York state was left a blank. Not once in his dealings with the government or with county officials and Justice Keller had he revealed how long he has been in the United States.

Rubens' application stated that his original name was Adolf Rudewitz, a statement now disclosed as fraudulent, since the real son of a revolutionary during the czarist era, bearing that name, has been found in Chicago. Rubens gave his age as 32, his residence as 51 Riverside drive, and said he was unmarried. He made the usual statements to the effect that he wasn't in debt and had no financial reason for avoiding the name Rudewitz.

"But," he stated, "the petitioner has been known for two years as Adolph Rubens by his friends and business associates." The court order granting his petition became effective Feb. 25, 1935.

Admits Knowing Rubens.

Blatt admitted he was acquainted with Rubens, and said he had business dealings with the missing man, but insisted he didn't know him intimately.

Meanwhile the safety of Mrs. Rubens—admitted to be a native born American citizen—worried her family.

President Roosevelt was personally asked to intervene on behalf of Mrs. Rubens today by the young woman's parents. Informed by government agents that their daughter had been identified as Mrs. Ruth Norma Robinson, held in the soviet prison, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick G. Boerger dispatched a telegram to Washington from their home in Miami, Fla., where the Boergers are taking care of Ruth, Mrs. Rubens' 8 year old daughter by her first marriage.

HELD 3D TIME FOR ROBBERY OF MAE WEST

Miami Beach, Fla., Dec. 30.—(AP)—Harry O. Voiler, 46 years old, owner of the Palm Court hotel, was arrested tonight on a fugitive warant charging him with robbing Mae West of $15,400 in cash and jewels in Hollywood on Sept. 28, 1932.

It was Voiler's third arrest on the charge, authorities said. He first was arrested in Chicago in 1933, but extradition was refused by Gov. Henry Horner because California authorities would not reduce to $20,000 the $50,000 bond set for his release. Horner said the man was ill. He was arrested in Miami Feb. 21, 1934, but Gov. Dave Sholtz declined to permit his return to California pending disposition of the Illinois case.

2 CONCERNS FACE COURT ACTION ON SMOKE VIOLATION

Silence on Complaints Basis of Cases.

Frank A. Chambers, head of the department of smoke inspection and abatement, yesterday prepared to start immediate court action against two plants in the Clearing industrial district for violation of the smoke ordinance. They are the Amalgamated Roofing company, 6600 South Central avenue, and the Whitaker Manufacturing company, 6723 West 65th street.

When they failed to appear for hearings on complaints that they were creating a nuisance, a report was made to the office of Michael L. Rosinia, assistant corporation counsel in charge of the division of prosecution. Although the plants are outside the city limits Rosinia asserts that they come under the jurisdiction of the Municipal courts.

Four Agree To Help.

Eleven other concerns in or near the Clearing district have been asked to meet with Chambers tomorrow. Four of these have already agreed to coöperate in ending the smoke nuisance. They are Borg and Beck, 6558 South Menard avenue; George H. Morrill company, 6556 South Melvina avenue; Chicago Electric Manufacturing company, 6333 West 65th street, and the Perkins Products company, 6535 West 65th street.

Others asked to appear tomorrow are Wilson and Bennett, 6532 South Menard avenue; Great Lakes Spring corporation, 6401-6461 West 65th street; National Aluminate corporation, 6624 South Melvina avenue; Ohmiac Paint and Refining company, 6550 South Central avenue; Crooks Terminal warehouses, 5967 West 65th street; Serviced Products corporation, 6051 West 65th street, and the Athey company, 6035 West 65th street.

Airport Chief Complains.

The present campaign against the smoke nuisance in the Clearing district was started by a complaint made a few weeks ago by John A. Casey, superintendent of the Chicago airport. He asserted that the plants, situated south and southwest of the airport, were laying down a smoke screen which was perilous to air trafic.

PLAN CAMPAIGN TO WIN NEW YORK MARRIAGE LAW

New York, Dec. 30.—[Special.]—Plans for an intensive campaign to counteract opposition to a legislative bill requiring marriage license applicants to undergo blood tests for syphilis were announced today by Assemblyman Charles Breitbart, coauthor of the bill.

The drive will be launched on Jan. 18 with a conference of religious, medical and social leaders in the Hotel Biltmore. Support will be sought through a program of public meetings, radio addresses and educational propaganda.

Gov. Herbert H. Lehman also will be asked to urge the bill's passage in his annual message to the legislature.

The bill provides a standard laboratory test for syphilis instead of a complete physical examination as originally proposed and fixes the cost of the test at $2.

SCHOOLS ASKED TO GIVE PUPILS SYPHILIS FACTS

Value of Instruction in Tesns Pointed Out.

Children, particularly those in their teens, should be instructed in the prevention and control of venereal disease, health authorities said yesterday. They pointed out that no such training is included in present Chicago high school courses.

School authorities in reply explained that tax supported education must not get too far ahead of public opinion for fear of an unfavorable reaction. According to educators, parents in general have not shown a readiness to have their children receive sex instruction and are even less inclined toward teaching the nature and dangers of syphilis.

Depends on Health Program.

Dr. William H. Johnson, superintendent of public schools, declared that it would be to the public's benefit to give information on venereal disease to older pupils. He said, however, that this would depend on development of the board of education's new health program under August H. Pritzlaff, director of physical education.

"As need for sex education is felt it can be included in the program we instituted last February," said Mr. Pritzlaff. "The same is true of venereal disease."

The first year course in health education is now being completed, said Mr. Pritzlaff. The second year, a continuation, will begin in February. He believed that the venereal disease could best be fitted into the third year course, which includes study of degenerative and communicable diseases.

Divided Into Three Parts.

The present program is divided into health service, which includes voluntary physical examinations; health activity, which includes physical culture and athletics, and health education, which aims to inculcate habits of healthful living.

Dr. Herman N. Bundesen, president of the board of health, declared: "Children as they enter their teens should have special instruction in the nature and widespread existence of venereal diseases and their consequences."

He pointed out that Cardinal Gibbons declared shortly before his death in 1921 that he favored public enlightenment on venereal diseases and sex education at the high school age.

Doctors Indorse Program.

Dr. Louis E. Schmidt, chairman of the mayor's committee against syphilis and president of the Illinois Social Hygiene league, and Dr. Rachelle Yarros, member of the committee and secretary of the league, joined in declaring that sex and venereal disease education should become a part of public school studies.

"The emphasis on syphilis produced by the Chicago campaign provides an excellent opportunity to introduce these subjects in the schools," said Dr. Yarros.

SYPHILIS SURVEY TO BE CONDUCTED AT 144 COLLEGES

A plan to survey the amount of syphilis among students in 144 colleges was announced yesterday by Dr. Charles E. Shepard of Stanford university at the annual meeting of the American Student Health association in the Stevens hotel.

Dr. Shepard, who is chairman of the association's committee on health service, predicted that questionnaires to be sent all members of the health group would show a lower percentage of infection than in any comparable group.

Dr. B. P. Davies of the University of Minnesota reported that among 19,000 Minnesota students examined over a 10 year period only 23 men and 16 women, or two-tenths of 1 per cent, were found to have syphilis. Two cases were found among 3,400 examined at the University of Wisconsin and two among 2,000 at Syracuse university.

ROBERT JUST DOESN'T LIKE TO TALK WITH THE STATION HOUSE BOYS

It was not the ticket Robert Zwikel objected to, but the comments that went with it, he told Judge Eugene Holland in South State street court yesterday. Zwikel, a real estate dealer, 26 years old, of 5135 Kenwood avenue, was explaining why he shut the windows of his car and refused to accept a trafic ticket for making a U-turn on Michigan avenue Wednesday.

Robert Zwikel.

It also came out that the police finally had the Zwikel chariot towed to the police building at 11th and State streets and there smashed a window of the car with a pistol butt.

"This is much too strange for me," said Judge Holland. "I think it is a case for Dr. Rotman." So saying, he ordered that Zwikel be examined by Dr. David B. Rotman, municipal court psychiatrist.

32,000 IN CITY JOIN HOSPITAL PLAN DURING '37

700 Tribune Employes Enjoy Benefits.

More than 32,000 Chicagoans in 1937 joined the Plan for Hospital Care, a not for profit corporation which uses the facilities of 63 leading hospitals for its members. Among the beneficiaries of the plan are nearly 700 employés of THE TRIBUNE.

For a payment of $9.60 members became entitled to a total of 21 days of hospital care in one year, including room and board in semi-private accommodatitons, general nursing service, use of the operating room, obstetrical or maternity care, anesthesia, drugs, medication, X-ray, and laboratory services. Expenses not included are the physician's fee and special nursing.

1,000 Receive Treatment.

The hospitals available for members have been approved by the American College of Surgeons and the American Medical association, and members are being hospitalized at the rate of 50 per week. More than 1,000 have already received treatment.

Perry Addleman, executive secretary of the plan, which has its offices in the Merchandise Mart, said yesterda; that employés of more than 500 Chicago concerns have been enrolled since Jan. 1, when the system began operating. They include brokerage concerns, industrial plants, banks, insurance and law firms, radio stations, newspapers, and department stores.

Subscribe Working Fund.

Chartered by the state of Illinois and under the supervision of the Illinois departments of public welfare and insurance, the Plan for Hospital Care was made possible by a working fund of $30,050 subscribed by a score of leading Chicago citizens in 1936. It was incorporated Oct. 1, 1936. Officers are Taylor Strawn, trustee, Grant hospital, president; J. Dewey Lutes, administrator, Ravenswood hospital, vice president; Charles H. Schweppe, president, St. Luke's hospital, treasurer, and the Rev. Father John W. Barrett, director, Catholic hospitals, secretary.

Two TRIBUNE employés received hospital care under the plan the day after they were enrolled. One suffered a painful injury in an automobile accident and the other was operated on for appendicitis.

Highland Park Boy, Ill Two Months, Dies of Leukemia

Jackie Sheahen, 7 years old, died yesterday in Highland Park hospital after a plucky two-month fight against leukemia, which is rare in children. He was given eight blood transfusions and had seemed to be overcoming the disease, when a relapse occurred. The boy was in the second grade at Lincoln school in the suburb. His father, Raymond, is an employé of the village water department.

Moving Forward

Marshall Field & Company presents here each day observations and opinions intended to be of interest and value to those it seeks to serve.

WHO CAN AFFORD FIELD'S?

By CALEB

A LITTLE woman from a part of our city where yards and rooms are small, accepted compliments on her new coat. "It came from Field's," she quietly remarked.

A friend cried, "Field's! Where do you get the money?"

Then the little woman in the fine Field coat said, "I have so little money I cannot afford things which are not of good quality. I buy upstairs at Field's when I can, and downstairs when I can't, but always I buy at Field's, or nearly always! If I am so very broke that I must buy really cheap things, I regret it keenly because they cost more in the long run and look less well all the time."

Two days before I was told of this incident, a highly cultured woman with a good deal of charm and a very small deal of money told me that although she frequently had to wear shabby clothes herself, her three children are always well dressed in Field apparel. She, too, said, "I cannot afford cheap clothing where long service is necessary."

Buying at Field's, I concluded long ago, is not a matter of the state of one's pocketbook, but rather the state of one's mind. There is a certain discerning type of intelligence which knows quality cannot be had for nothing, or for cheap-goods prices.

People of very low income who must, with the smallest possible outlay, clothe themselves and furnish their homes, can find merchandise at lower prices than we offer. But on the other hand, the vast bulk of our stocks are not selected by us for high income groups.

We aim to make buying here profitable to the great middle class of the people. And since it is assuredly our very own job to do so, we also carry our quality and assortments on up, in order to provide the utmost in quality for those who desire it.

We have no doubt that, as the supplier of not only the city's but many of the nation's most discriminating quality buyers, we know things about building quality into middle price lines which could not be learned in any other way.

Who can afford Field's? It is my belief that only those who cannot afford quality even at its lowest prices, can not afford Field's.

WAR ON BUSINESS SETS STAGE FOR ROOSEVELT RULE

Congress to Hear Annual Message Monday.

economist of the Works Progress administration, and submitted to the President by Harry L. Hopkins, WPA administrator. The report warned of a rising cycle of prices, curtailment of purchasing, a decline in production, and the over-extending of inventories by merchants.

The report specifically ascribed the overstocking of inventories to fear on the part of dealers that labor troubles would interfere with production and boost prices to prohibitive heights. The possibility that monopolistic practices had contributed to sharp increase in prices was mentioned only incidentally.

The country at that time was just emerging from the upheaval of sit-down strikes which began in the automobile industry. Then came the C. I. O. strike in the steel industry, which assumed the proportions of insurrection in some states and in which the Roosevelt administration conspicuously gave its aid and comfort to John L. Lewis. The President personally appealed to the steel company officials not to open their plants and risk the violence which Mr. Lewis had threatened. The C. I. O. leaders openly boasted that four departments of the United States government were supporting them in the steel strike.

High Prices Decree Recalled.

All of this came after the receipt of Economist Henderson's report warning of a new recession. The only action taken by President Roosevelt as a result of that secret report was his famous decree, made at a press conference on April 2, that prices in the durable goods industries were too high. He announced that it was time to discourage federal expenditures of the PWA type for durable goods such as steel and copper, and to emphasize expenditures of the WPA type for consumer goods, such as food and clothing.

Secretary Ickes, in his capacity as public works administrator, and Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau, both complained at that time and subsequently about identical bids on government contracts. The complaints, intimating collusion and monopolistic practices, were referred to Attorney General Homer S. Cummings, who, so far, has reported the findings of no violation of law. In one case Secretary Morgenthau rejected identical bids on automobile tires and made his purchase by negotiation with a large mail order house instead of by competitive bidding.

Scan Jackson's Record.

Mr. Jackson's allegation that profiteering by monopolistic interests caused the new depression led to an examination today of his record as the administration's trust buster since the first of the year. It disclosed that Mr. Jackson has instituted the following eight anti-trust suits:

United States vs. Aluminum Company of America . . . petition filed April 23.

United States vs. Dairymen's Association, Ltd., et al . . . indictment returned Aug. 27.

United States vs. Dairymen's Association, Ltd., et al . . . indictment returned Oct. 8.

United States vs. Ethyl Gasoline corporation, et al . . . petition filed Feb. 19.

United States vs. Frank P. McGlone and Emanuel Romm . . . indictment returned Feb. 11.

United States vs. Ox Fibre Brush Company, Inc., et al . . . petition filed July 30.

United States vs. Western Union Telegraph company, et al . . . petition filed Dec. 1.

United States vs. Postal Telegraph and Cable corporation [Maryland], et al . . . petition filed Dec. 1.

Cases Disposed of.

Mr. Jackson's record of cases disposed of, including some which were instituted before he took charge of the antitrust division, include the following:

United States vs. Dairymen's Association, Ltd., et al. . . . court sustained demurrer to indictment Oct. 5.

United States vs. Dairymen's Association, Ltd., et al. . . . three corporations and six individuals entered pleas of nolo contendere; each corporation was fined $1,000; each individual defendant was fined $250 except one, whose case was nolle prossed.

United States vs. Frank P. McGlone and Emanuel Romm . . . court directed verdict of acquittal on April 14.

United States vs. Ox Fibre Brush Company, Inc., et al. . . . consent decree entered July 30.

United States vs. Union Pacific company, et al. . . . two defendants sentenced to six months in jail each; two defendants placed on probation for five years; defendant company fined $1,000.

Cases Near Conclusion.

In addition the following cases virtually have been disposed of:

United States vs. Protective Fur Dressers' corporation. Restraining and monopolizing trade in rabbit skins. Sept. 13, Oct. 16, 1936, thirteen defendants pleaded guilty. Their sentence is scheduled for Jan. 10, 1938. On Nov. 12, 1936, two additional defendants, following trial, were sentenced to two years and fined $10,000 each. On appeal, judgment and conviction of one was reversed, the other affirmed.

United States vs. Fur Dressers' Factor corporation. Restraining and monopolizing commerce in fur skins. On Dec. 16, 1937, jury rendered verdict of guilty against nine defendants and acquitted two. Sentence scheduled for Jan. 10, 1938.

Interstate Circuit, Inc. Petition alleged that contracts requiring minimum admission charge for second and subsequent run pictures constituted restraint of trade. District court decided in favor of the government.

Arthur Gramlich. Restraining trade in coal by bombing railroads carrying coal from mines not employing members of the Progressive Miners of America. On Dec. 18, 1937, the jury rendered a verdict of guilty as to thirty-six of forty-one original defendants. Each sentenced Dec. 28, 1937, to four years' imprisonment and a $20,000 fine.

Since President Roosevelt took office in March, 1933, only thirty-nine anti-trust suits have been instituted and fifteen of these were against union racketeering of one kind or another. The Roosevelt trust busting record includes eighteen cases won, four cases lost, and seventeen cases still pending.

Gold Rush Ends

Bruno Rojek (left) and Rudy Blaha, would-be gold miners, trapped by professor in extortion plot.

Two youths wanted a grubstake to go west to mine gold. They are Rudy Blaha, 1839 South Ashland avenue, and Bruno Rojek, 1919 Washburne avenue. Both are 21 years old.

Rudy, who considers himself an amateur detective by virtue of three correspondence school lessons, suggested that Prof. Kyle Marlow of Iowa State college at Ames might be a good source of revenue. Rudy remembered meeting the professor at the Zoro nudist camp in Indiana.

So they sent him a blackmail letter, advising him to leave some money for them in a store at Roosevelt road and Wabash avenue. Prof. Marlow told Alois Knapp, head of the nudist camp. Knapp told police. Police arrested Blaha and Rojek. The youths had hoped to squeeze the money out of Prof. Marlow by threatening to expose him as a nudist, but in this they had outsmarted themselves. Prof. Marlow said he visited the nudist camp for only an hour to further his psychology studies—and had kept his clothes on.

HOLD ARMENIANS AS PLOTTERS OF BOLT FROM REDS

MOSCOW, Dec. 30.—(AP)—Eight officials of the Armenian Soviet Socialist republic were accused today of plotting to separate Armenia from the soviet union and establish a protectorate under a capitalistic country. The country was proclaimed a soviet republic in 1921.

The indictment, published in the newspaper Communist of Erevan, capital of Armenia, disclosed that two groups of Armenian government officials had been arrested.

M. I. Ryzhoff, an aid of Commissar Nikolai Yeshoff in administration of the soviet political police, was chosen today to take charge of the timber industry. He succeeds V. I. Ivanoff, whose removal was disclosed Dec. 23.

The recall of Boris Podolsky, soviet minister to Lithuania became known with the announcement that P. N. Krapivintzeff would succeed him.

FOG BLANKETS CHICAGO; STOPS PLANE SERVICE

Dark, heavy fog that blanketed the Chicago area yesterday made motoring difficult and grounded all airliners after 11:43 a. m. A United Air Lines plane took off for the east at 9:12 a. m. and a TWA ship left at 11:43 for the south, but all departures were canceled after that.

The fog was caused by warm air from the south mingling with cold air off the lake. The temperature remained normal throughout most of the day, hovering at 33 degrees. Today is expected to bring rain and warmer. New Year's day will be unsettled with rain or snow and colder weather probable.

ESTRANGED WIFE WINS 2 CHILDREN AFTER MIND TEST

By order of Judge John J. Lupe yesterday Mrs. Edna Nay, 11017 South State street, was given temporary custody of her children, Barbara, 12 years old, and Shirley, 9, pending hearing of her suit for a divorce from Walter Nay. The award was made after a social service report and a mental examination of Mrs. Nay. She took the children from her husband's home at 10411 South Wood street in September. Nay charged her with kidnaping. Her attorney, Norman Becker, said Mrs. Nay took the children when Nay refused to let her see them after her release from an asylum to which she was committed a year ago.

Thug Knocks Out Woman; Leaves Her on Sidewalk

A thug slugged Mrs. Emma Lanse, 25 years old, 3022 Archer avenue, at Cermak road and Archer avenue late last night and fled with her purse containing about $5, leaving her unconscious on the sidewalk. Mrs. Lanse was found early today by Leroy Powers, 3425 South Claremont avenue, a motorist who was driving by. He took her to the People's hospital, where she was revived and told her story.

CROP PROGRAM STIRS NEBRASKA FARM REVOLT

Fight Is Started Against Compulsory Control.

Omaha, Neb., Dec. 30.—[Special.]—An anti-Wallace farm movement is developing in Nebraska as an outgrowth of the Roosevelt administration's compulsory farm legislation proposals. Sixty Cass county farmers, many of them former supporters of the soil conservation program, met this week to organize a fight against compulsory control of crop production or marketing.

Their action is significant, because Cass county is considered to be one of the strongest farm bureau counties in the state, and the Farm Bureau federation is supporting the present farm bill.

Movement Is Nonpolitical.

The nonpolitical character of the movement is illustrated by the fact that the chairman of the meeting was Carl Tefft, Republican chairman for Cass county, and the secretary was Marvin Carr, Democratic county chairman.

The first meeting was to organize sentiment. Three more meetings will be held next week in three Cass county towns, probably to pass resolutions on the proposed farm bill and send them to Nebraska's congressional delegation.

Revolt against the Farm Bureau federation and the proposed legislation has been brewing for several weeks in Cass county.

Refuse to Commit Selves.

Recently a precinct meeting refused to appoint a soil conservation committee on the ground the farmers did not want to commit themselves to a 1938 program not yet enacted. At another precint meeting the entire slate of soil conservation committeemen which administered the 1937 act was voted out and a new group was elected.

"We are holding these meetings of representative Cass county farmers to consider the farm program before congress and to express the real sentiment of farmers themselves instead of the opinion of a farm organization," Tefft declared.

"We believe that Cass county farmers are 90 per cent against the present farm bill or any kind of compulsory crop control program. Most of us have supported the Farm Bureau federation in the past, but do not go along with the bureau's support of the present bill.

Opposition Is 25 to 1.

"I would say that 50 per cent of those at the meeting coöperated under previous administration farm programs, but most of them are definitely against compulsion."

A poll being conducted by an Omaha newspaper so far reveals that farmers stand 25 to 1 against a compulsory program. Farmers from all sections of Nebraska and southwestern Iowa have sent in ballots.

PASS FIFTH DAY AT "12,000 FEET" TO TEST EFFECT

BRUSSELS, Belgium, Dec. 30.—(AP)—Two Belgians today passed their fifth day in a sealed cabin, under atmospheric conditions equivalent to an altitude of 12,000 feet above sea level.

The experiment at Evere military airport is being conducted with Lieut. Jan Steys, Belgian altitude record holder, and Prof. D. R. Abrahams in the cabin compiling data which may benefit air transportation. The two experimenters will emerge Sunday for physical examinations to determine physical reactions to a lengthy stay in high altitude conditions.

Commercial air lines in the United States fly regularly at 10,000 feet in certain parts of the country and many persons live regularly at 12,000 foot altitude.

Detective Gets License in Agency's 50th Year

George Hargrave, carrying into its fiftieth year the Hargrave Detective Agency, 145 North Clark street, yesterday recorded with County Clerk Michael Flynn the license required by a new law which places all private detective agencies under supervision of the state department of registration and education. SPEED PROGRAM FOR U. S. NAVY UP TO PACT LIMITS

Maps Plans for Replacing Obsolete Ships.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 30.—[Special.]—As a result of the tension in international relations the navy department is rushing plans looking toward building the American navy up to the full strength authorized under the naval limitation treaties, which have become scraps of paper by Japanese abrogation.

The plans are being pushed so that if necessary President Roosevelt can call upon the coming session of congress to authorize the replacement of all obsolete vessels in the navy as fast as new vessels can be turned out by shipyards.

No such wholesale order is expected by the navy. However, the navy high command believes the order for the coming fiscal year may exceed that outlined by Mr. Roosevelt earlier in the week.

Hints Larger Program.

On Tuesday the President called on congress to consider at the impending session authorization of the construction of two battleships, two light cruisers, eight destroyers, and six submarines. At the same time he hinted he might send supplementary estimates for starting construction of more ships.

Today the navy has fifteen capital ships. By the end of the year seven of these will be obsolete under the twenty years of life naval experts give such vessels.

Last year construction of two battleships, the North Carolina and the Washington, was begun. These and the two Mr. Roosevelt said he would ask of the next congress will replace four obsolete men of war.

Many navy officers feel that construction should be started on five capital ships in the coming year so that the country will be well on the way toward replacement of all obsolete battleships. They argue that, because preliminary building has changed but little on dreadnaughts, this could be begun on all vessels and other construction timed for a start as funds become available.

Would Add Battleship.

Navy experts hope that at least one more battleship can be added to the building program under the President's advice that congress can expect "supplemental estimates."

They also speculated on the chance that congress might be asked to add ten to fifteen cruisers to the country's shipbuilding program. The navy has 161,200 tons of under age cruisers and one 10,000 ton cruiser under construction. By treaty limitation the United States was authorized to build up to 180,000 tons, which would permit the building of another heavy cruiser.

Of light cruisers the navy's tonnage is 70,500 in service and 90,000 under construction. Treaty limitation on light cruisers is 146,800 tons.

Many of the American cruisers will become obsolete, however, before replacement ships can be built unless they are ordered by the next congress. Experts hope that the President's order may be boosted to ten or fifteen new cruisers so that the new vessels will be ready to take over as older vessels are retired.

Stick to Treaty Limits.

On destroyers and submarines the navy is far behind treaty strength. The navy places emphasis on the dead treaties because the policy of this government is to build up to treaty strength and remain within the prescribed limits of the documents until some other nations may step over the starting line of an armament race.

The navy has thirty-nine submarines under age and fifty-five under construction. The President's contemplated order of eight destroyers is small beside the number needed, according to naval experts. The navy has 158 obsolete destroyers, many of which have seen wartime service.

In submarines the navy also is behind other great naval powers. Of eighty-three submarines in service only twenty-nine are under age. There are seventeen under construction. Mr. Roosevelt's preliminary estimate for the 1938-'39 fiscal year contemplates construction of six more in that period.

Lack Auxiliary Ships.

The navy is lacking in auxiliary ships — tenders of all sorts, mine sweepers, mine layers, supply vessels, and the like. The department plans to have a number of these included in Mr. Roosevelt's "supplemental estimates."

Support for increased naval expenditures was voiced yesterday by J. G. Scrugham [D., Nev.], member of the appropriations subcommittee on naval affairs. He proposed funds for additional trained navy personnel, storage of strategic minerals, increased marine corps strength, and additional airplanes.

Proposals for increased shipbuilding were considered certain to stir a heated controversy in congress. Larger naval appropriations drew strong support from Chairman Pittman [D., Nev.] of the senate foreign relations committee, but criticism from Senator Wheeler [D., Mont.]. Pittman said an increased appropriation would be "the cheapest insurance on earth."

"We can strengthen our navy with a few hundred millions of dollars so that any single nation will be afraid to force us into war," he added.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur Retires from U. S. Army

[Copyright: 1937: By the New York Times.]

MANILA, Dec. 31 [Friday].—Maj. Gen. Douglas MacArthur's retirement from active service in the United States army became effective today. President Manuel Quezon, however, announced that he would remain in the Philippines as a retired full general in control of the destinies of the young Philippine army. He will retain the title of field marshal in the Philippine army and adviser to the Commonwealth government on military affairs. He will carry through his original program of training a conscript army of 400,000 men by 1946.

Plan Permanent Régime.

PEIPING, Dec. 30.—(AP)—Maj. Gen. Seiichi Kita, head of North China special Japanese military missions, said today the Peking provisional Chinese government was working on plans to set up a permanent national government here.

Kita said he thought it likely that [Japanese dominated] Chahar and North Shansi province governments and the Mongol federation soon would join the Peking administration.

He added that he thought it advisable not to claim authority in territory not yet conquered by the Japanese army. He believed, he said, that Tokio would extend full recognition to the new Peking régime, but that inclusion of Yangtze valley provinces depended on "development of peace and order there."

HUNT WEAK SPOTS IN NOTE

BY DAVID DARRAH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Dec. 30.—Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden interrupted his Christmas vacation tonight and returned to London to discuss with advisers the British government's reply to the Japanese note received yesterday.

The Japanese apologized for the machine gun attack on the British ship Ladybird and merchant vessels near Wuhu, China, on Dec. 12. One seaman was killed and four were wounded in the attack. The note was almost identical to that sent to the United States on the sinking of the Panay.

The first British reaction to the Japanese note is against accepting Tokio's explanations of how the British ships came to be attacked. Tokio's version, it is stated, does not tally with London's information.

Depends on Control of Army.

At the same time the Japanese assurances of disciplinary measures against those responsible and guarantees against repetition of attacks both on warships and merchantmen are regarded as satisfactory in Whitehall, although it is emphasized that much depends on whether Tokio will be able to assume control over its commanders in China.

The note declared that the incident occurred because Japanese armed forces took for granted that under the circumstances which prevailed, all foreign warships and other vessels had sought refuge from the Nanking war zone and that there could not be any vessels left except those of the enemy.

"There is no room for doubt that our forces never attacked the vessels intentionally or knowing them to be British vessels," the note added.

Quickly Halted Firing.

"This is clearly apparent in light of the fact that our naval air squadrons and military units ceased firing the instant they discovered the nationality of the ships and the Japanese soldiers gave assistance in taking care of the dead and wounded on the Ladybird."

Regarding an assertion that the Japanese military commander spoke of having received an order to fire on all vessels on the Yangtze [the British charged that Col. Kingoro Hashimoto, senior Japanese military officer then at Wuhu, had made such a statement], the note declared that "the Japanese government has established that the alleged order applied only to all vessels used for military purposes by the enemy and was never meant to apply to vessels of a third power."

NAVY WILL FERRY 18 NEW BOMBERS TO PEARL HARBOR

Washington, D. C., Dec. 30.—(AP)—Navy officials indicated today that next month's ferry flight of patrol bombers to the Pearl harbor, Hawaii, base would be the largest of the kind in the navy's history.

Eighteen of the long range, twin motored flying boats, instead of twelve, as previously announced, will undertake the nonstop flight of 2,400 miles from San Diego, officials said.

Describing the flights as routine, officials noted the navy has ferried its planes to Hawaii and the Canal Zone for the last two years instead of shipping them, as a measure of training and economy.

Navy records disclosed the new bombers will increase to seventy-eight the number of long range patrol planes at the mid-Pacific base, aside from eight naval utility and the army's fighting planes.

SPANISH TROOPS DYNAMITE TWO REBEL CITADELS

Fear Hundreds Are Dead Under Debris at Teruel.

HENDAYE, Franco-Spanish Frontier, Dec. 30.—(AP)—Spanish government forces besieging the garrison of rebel "holdouts" trapped within Teruel, eastern Spain, today blew up the seminary and Bank of Spain. It was believed hundreds of persons—rebel soldiers, women and children—were buried under debris.

The besiegers resorted to dynamiting in a desperate measure to end the last resistance by rebels within the provincial capital as rebel rescue troops, supported by tanks, heavy artillery, and an aerial bombardment, were reported to have smashed through government lines northwest of Teruel and captured a number of positions.

Black Smoke Clouds City.

Half of Teruel was clouded with black smoke as government soldiers blew up the seminary and bank. Some rebels escaped to the cellars of the old Santa Clara convent, near the seminary, and some to the civil governor's palace, near the bank.

The government made no attempt to attack the convent and palace, officers saying they would give the rebels another chance to surrender first. The original number of rebels who held out after the loyalists captured Teruel a little more than a week ago was placed at 3,000 troops and as many civilians. They hid in strong walled buildings and the many caves under the city.

Large quantities of silver were reported found in the cellars of the Bank of Spain and assault guards were posted around the ruins to prevent looting.

Capture Village of Campillo.

The rebel offensive northwest of Teruel, described by Gen. Francisco Franco's headquarters at Salamanca as "the most extensive operation" of the 17 months' old civil war, occupied the village of Campillo and closed in on Concud. Adjacent positions also were taken.

A rebel communique asserted that retreating government troops had left more than 1,000 dead. The rebels said a quick flank movement after the capture of Campillo resulted in the capture of a number of government units, including a commanding general, his entire staf, and 300 soldiers, adding that "in several sectors, fearing encirclement, the enemy has taken to flight."

The rebel infantry charged behind a fleet of 27 tanks and the battle was fought in sub-zero cold. Eight government planes were reported shot down as aerial fights took place over the battlefield. The rebels admitted the loss of one plane. Squadrons of black bombers, escorted by silver fighters, raided the government lines and rained hundreds of bombs on government artillery emplacements.

Claim Loyalists Lose 6,000 Men.

The rebels at Salamanca asserted that government forces had lost more than 6,000 men since Gen. Miguel Aranda began his drive to relieve the rebel "holdouts" at Teruel.

Government headquarters admitted the loss of "several positions" in the Teruel sector, but declared that the nearest rebel lines to the city still were more than six miles distant.

Border advices from government sources said rebel operations were under way not only at Teruel but along the entire Aragon front. Air and infantry forces were reported active north of Huesca, at Puebla de Alborton, Sarinena, and Colon.

Loyalist Refugees Escape.

MADRID, Dec. 30.—(AP)—Groups of Spanish government sympathizers who lived in the thousands of caves beneath Teruel during the rebel occupation reached nearby villages today. They told of risking their lives to keep in touch with developments of the government side of the civil war.

When rebels seized the city in July, 1936, one of the first orders made possesion of radios illegal. House to house searches were conducted and scores of radio sets were confiscated. Government sympathizers, however, succeeded in hiding a few sets which served throughout the occupation to keep them in touch with Madrid.

Teruel's many caves increased the difficulty of mopping up rebel bands after government forces entered. Many times government lines were attacked from the rear by rebels who used underground passages to get behind them. Often fighting raged beneath the street.

U. S. WAR GAMES SET FOR ISLAND OFF PORTO RICO

Washington, D. C., Dec. 30.—(AP)—The navy department disclosed today that every branch of the nation's military forces would join in war games to start the last of January at Culebra Island, off Porto Rico.

The coast guard will participate for the first time, but otherwise the maneuvers will be similar to those held there annually for the last four years, officials said. Culebra Island is a naval preserve.

Probably 6,000, or more, officers and men will join in the maneuvers, which will be based on the military problem of landing forces from the sea.

Rear Admiral Alfred W. Johnson, who is scheduled to take command of the fleet's training detachment Jan. 5, will be in general command.

Japanese Suicide Rate Drops as Result of War

TOKIO, Dec. 30.—(AP)—For the first time in years Japan has a decline in the suicide rate and the official report attributes it to the spirit attending the Chinese-Japanese warfare. The 1937 suicide total was 380 less than the 2,681 recorded last year. Double love suicides dropped from 139 to 96.

Battle for Teruel

(Story in adjoining column.)

Spanish rebels (moving in direction of arrows) yesterday opened general offensive to recapture Teruel. They captured Campillo and closed in on Concud. Loyalists within Teruel dynamited two buildings to break the resistance of besieged rebels.

FRANCE ENDS TWO STRIKES, MINERS START ANOTHER

Fear 16,000 Will Join New Walkout.

PARIS, Dec. 30.—(AP)—The wave of strikes threatening the stability of the Popular Front government today spread to the rich coal mining region of northern France. One thousand miners at Anzin, near Valenciennes, walked out in protest against the discharge of three workers. Officials expressed fear all 16,000 miners of the Anzin company would join in a sympathy strike.

The coal region about Anzin and Valenciennes [shaded] is scene of newest French strike.

Department authorities in the north, under direction of the interior ministry, tried to arbitrate the miners' dispute.

The new strike followed by a few hours the settlement last night of the one day strike of 120,000 municipal public service employés in Paris, which stopped transportation, cut to a minimum gas, light and water service and halted garbage collection.

Food Handlers Out.

One other strike—that of newspaper truckmen—also was ended in Paris when drivers agreed to return to work tomorrow morning. They had occupied garages while army trucks were used to distribute newspapers to wholesale newsdealers. Terms of the settlement were not discussed.

The labor ministry still had other walkouts besides that of the miners on its hands, however. It continued negotiations with food handlers and rubber workers who left their jobs.

Employés at suburban Nanterre occupied the local gas works but left the plant after a truckload of gendarmes arrived. The workers remained on strike, protesting their employers' alleged failure to fulfill a pension agreement.

Threatens Mobilization.

Political circles wondered whether the government would meet the mine strike—considered a threat to one of the nation's chief industries—with the tactics it employed to end the Paris municipal employés' walkout. The government brought the strikers to an agreement by threatening to call them to army service and put them back at their own jobs under military discipline. Most of the capital's public service workers are army reservists.

The agreement provided for the immediate grant of a monthly allowance of $2.31 to meet the rising cost of living. A union announcement said the government had promised eventually to obtain $3.30 monthly from the Paris municipal council plus a special rent allowance, or a total of $3.96 a month. The union announcement said the workers "will know how to guarantee prompt and total application" of their demands.

Deny Promises Were Made.

A source close to the government declared Premier Camille Chautemps was maintaining a firm stand and had promised the public service strikers nothing. Minister of Interior Marx Dormoy was understood to have agreed to use his influence to persuade the Paris council to grant the full demands of the public service workers.

Chautemps was said to have resorted to the mobilization threat in order to end the Paris strike before the communists, who were supporting it, could make it an excuse for abandoning their Radical-Socialist and Socialist allies and wrecking the Popular Front coalition.

RIOT IN EGYPT AS BOY KING SHAKES UP GOVERNMENT

New Cabinet Formed with Pro-Italian Members.

CAIRO, Egypt, Dec. 30.—(AP)—King Farouk of Egypt today summarily ousted Nationalist Premier Mustapha Nahas Pasha and installed a government of his liking that included several pro-Italian members.

Angry supporters of Nahas and his dominant Wafd party swarmed outside the royal palace, shrieking, "Down with Farouk!" The king is 18 years old.

Police broke up the demonstration, arresting twenty persons, just before Mohamed Mahmoud, the king's new choice for the premiership, took the oath of office with his cabinet.

A large part of the capital was plunged into darkness tonight when rioting broke out in several districts and demonstrants smashed street lamps. Police arrested the leaders. Disturbances were reported at the same time in Port Said and Mansurah.

British military authorities watched closely the tense situation growing out of the seventeen day deadlock between the boy king and Nahas. Farouk had insisted on dissolution of the truncheon swinging, Blue Shirt Wafdist youth organization and wider ruling powers.

British Are Displeased.

While the British embassy was reported displeased with Mahmoud's ministerial selections because of the pro-Italians included, Britain was understood to have decided against sending army reënforcements unless the emergency became more grave.

Earlier reports said preparations were being made to move British troops from Palestine to protect British interests in Egypt. In Jerusalem, an army spokesman said the continuing tension between Jews and Arabs in Palestine would not permit a single British soldier to be spared.

Mahmoud, 61 years old, an Oxford graduate and premier in 1928-'29, gave no indication he would not coöperate fully in the execution of the Anglo-Egyptian treaty, of which he was a signer.

Wafdists Disbanded.

One of Mahmoud's first acts as premier was to order the 25,000 Wafdist Blue Shirts disbanded.

Nahas bitterly told the executive committee of the Wafd he had been cast off by the young king like an old shoe and the men who served the country best have been dismissed like servants.

Twenty persons were injured when police dispersed a noisy gathering outside the party headquarters. Fifty party leaders were rounded up elsewhere.

Farouk's brusque note of dismissal told the Nationalist leader the king had decided to form a good government to replace one which had been governing illegally.

The king summoned Mahmoud this morning and by nightfall the new cabinet had been sworn.

May Call for Election.

The new premier said he would face the Nationalists in a new election if he failed to get parliamentary backing. His cabinet includes no representatives of the Wafd's big majority in parliament.

Mahmoud took the interior portfolio in the 15 man cabinet, which included ex-Premier Ismail Sidky Pasha, finance; ex-Premier Abdel Fattah Yehia, foreign affairs; Gen. Hussein Rifky, war.

The deadlock between Farouk and Nahas came to a head last night when the cabinet rejected a palace proposal to form a coalition government or submit the crisis to an arbitration commission of the king's selection.

Nahas was said to have considered his authority belittled by the king's appointment of an anti-Wafdist, Ali Maher, as his political adviser. Farouk also had refused to sign a cabinet bill setting aside a secret fund of $195,000 to combat foreign propaganda. He demanded the right to name one-third the senate and control appointment of all senior officials.

Infirmary to Have a Second Christmas on New Year's

ITALY AND JAPAN SIGN AGREEMENT GOVERNING TRADE WITH ETHIOPIA

ROME, Dec. 30.—(AP)—A trade agreement regulating Japanese commerce with Ethiopia today was added to the political ties already binding Japan and Italy. Japanese circles described it as "very important."

The agreement was said to supplement the general commercial treaty between the two countries. It was understood to provide for the exchange during 1938 of $842,000 worth of Japanese goods, mostly textiles, for Ethiopian products, mostly salt. Before the Italian conquest Japan was sending about $3,000,000 worth of cheap cotton goods to Ethiopia annually.

PRO-NAZI REGIME IN RUMANIA MAPS ATTACK ON JEWS

Plans to Seize Their Landholdings.

BUCHAREST, Rumania, Dec. 30.—(AP)—Semi-official sources reported tonight that the two day old government of Premier Octavian Goga, which is friendly to Germany, had outlined a drastic anti-Semitic program which would deprive many of Rumania's Jews of their livelihood.

The anti-Jewish measures, some to be enforced immediately, were reported to include:

1. Ejection of all Jews from the government service.
2. Confiscation of Jewish landholdings.
3. Revocation of the citizenship of all Jews who immigrated to Rumania after 1922.
4. Cancelation of the licenses of Jewish liquor dealers.
5. Forbidding Jews to have any connection with the Rumanian Press bureau, thus closing their sources of news.

Organize 200,000 Police.

To back his régime, Goga's National Christian party already has begun organizing a private "police corps" of 200,000 blue uniformed followers wearing swastikas.

It was estimated that 1,200,000 Jews live in Rumania and will be affected by the new rulings.

[The Statesman's Year Book for 1936 said there are about 900,000 Jews in Rumania.]

The chief of the official press bureau confirmed that three newspapers, the Adeverul, Dimineata, and Lupta, friendly to Jews, have been suspended "temporarily."

Pleads for Support.

The ultranationalistic National Christian party formed the new coalition cabinet under Goga to end a crisis. This had developed when the government of Premier George Tatarescu went out after his Liberal party failed to gain a majority in the chamber of deputies election last week.

Premier Goga pleaded today for support of the reigning Rumanian dynasty and King Carol II. He also urged reverence for the country's new nationalistic spirit. The king will explain the aims of the new government by radio tomorrow at midnight.

Magda Lupescu to Leave.

VIENNA, Dec. 30.—(AP)—Informed Bucharest sources tonight said Magda Lupescu, Jewish mistress of King Carol II. of Rumania, would leave that country shortly and remain away until the present uncertainty about Rumanian political developments had passed. Premier Octavian Goga advised her to do this through an emissary and the king supported Goga's advice, these sources said.

BERLIN, Dec. 30.—The advent of an authoritarian régime in Rumania was accepted here as something like an unexpected year-end political dividend. Official and Nazi party quarters plainly were elated that a cabinet has been formed by Octavian Goga. The German press recalled that the new Rumanian premier is on record as favoring an amity pact with Germany. The press also stressed the speed with which the new régime announced its anti-Jewish policy.

ROME, Dec. 30.—The Italian press was ecstatic with joy today over recent events in Rumania, which was being hailed as the latest addition to the ranks of the Fascist powers. All newspapers recalled Premier Mussolini's phophecy that the present century will be known as the century of Fascism.

Thousands to Ask Divorces Under New Laws in Britain

BY SAM BREWER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Dec. 30.—Thousands of persons will go before British courts with divorce suits when the new liberalized divorce laws replace the present antiquated statute on Saturday, lawyers revealed today. Lawyers who handle the divorce suits of "poor persons" and who are paid by the government said they are deluged with applications and that about 2,800 extra suits have been received already for filing. Inquiries have been stacking up since the new laws were passed in July.

Total divorces in England and Wales were only 6,000 last year—and most of those were not "poor persons"—so the increase is evident. To qualify as a poor person, it is necessary to take a virtual pauper's oath, swearing one's income does not exceed $10 a week and property does not exceed $250.

Desertion Now Cause for Divorce.

In special circumstances the limits may be extended to $20 a week and $500 in property. When a litigant pays his own expenses the cost of an undefended suit is about $350.

Insanity, desertion and cruelty have been added by the new laws as grounds for divorce. Previously adultery provided the sole cause. Under the 80 year old law previously effective, insanity, desertion and cruelty were grounds for legal separation, but not divorce. Before that there was no law providing for divorce, except by special act of parliament. Only 230 such acts were passed in 150 years.

From now on, however, many persons who had to be content with legal separation, will be able to win freedom and a chance for a new marriage.

Attorneys maintain the number of new applications is not the result of laxity in the new law, but of the fact that thousands of British subjects have been tied to husbands or wives from whom they wished to be divorced, but could not.

Services Give Highest Percentage.

Although many were legally separated on ample grounds of cruelty or desertion or other misdeeds, they still could not remarry.

To those who see in the new laws the doom of "the British home," the laws' backers pointed out that similar outcries were raised when the 1857 divorce law was passed. This law now is regarded as out of date by most other countries.

An analysis of the 6,000 divorces granted last year showed that 22 per cent involved members of the army, navy, and air force. This was the largest single group.

Other percentages were as follows: Artistic professions, 18 per cent; leisured classes, 16 per cent; commercial travelers, 14 per cent; poor persons, 12 per cent; business men, 11 per cent; lawyers, 4 per cent; doctors, 2 per cent, and the clergy, 1 per cent.

THE LATEST RECOVERY PROGRAM.

On Nov. 10 in New York Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau declared that "the basic need today is to foster the full application of the driving force of private capital. We want to see capital go into the productive channels of private industry. We want to see private industry expand. We believe that much of the remaining unemployment will disappear as private capital funds are increasingly employed in productive enterprises." He then pledged the government to do its part toward achieving that end by balancing the federal budget.

About that time the President was holding conferences with a number of business leaders, including public utility executives, bankers, and the heads of building material concerns. Coöperation and good will were being expressed. This was on the eve of the assembling of congress for the special session. Leading members of congress united in attributing to the surplus earnings and capital gains taxes a large measure of the responsibility for the downward plunge in business.

Washington's attitude in November was that its contribution to a new uptrend was to be cooperation with business; to remove the obstructions which had been put in the way of capital expansion by the utility companies, to foster a revival of home building, and to repeal the laws which forced corporations to bleed themselves of funds which should be retained for expansion and modernization.

Before any part of the November program has been carried into effect Washington has embarked on a new policy which is exactly the reverse of the other. Nothing is now being said about the tax laws. The balancing of the budget is out the window. And the encouragement of business to "drive ahead" is gone. Instead, big business men are being denounced as having caused the depression. They are being called before new investigating committees, they are to be prosecuted, and congress is to be asked to pass a new law placing under license every corporation engaging in interstate commerce or whose business affects interstate commerce. The law is to make it possible for the government to say who can engage in any line of business in this country. It is to bestow upon the government greater power over business than is exercised by any government with the exception of Russia. Washington doesn't love big business in December as it did in November.

Assistant Attorney General Jackson led off with an enunciation of the new policy in a speech over the radio last Sunday. He followed it with another speech more violent than the previous one at Philadelphia on Tuesday. Secretaries Wallace and Roper and Attorney General Cummings already have sounded off to the same effect, and Secretary Ickes was scheduled for a speech last night. Meanwhile the President has let it be known that he is for the federal licensing of corporations.

The explanation of the turn about face in the attitude of the administration must lie in the fact that the President has been made aware that the people who believed him when he said that he had produced the recovery are holding him responsible for the recession. He must find a goat and big business is it.

Unless congress pulls him up shortly the President's latest moves can turn the rout of the past four months into the worst disaster. The harassing and denunciation of the utilities has made it impossible for them to get billions of dollars they have needed for buying new equipment. This has denied jobs to many thousands. The broadening of the object of administrative wrath and regulation to include all business casts a cloud over the outlook for recovery in the new year.

MAX LITVINOV WILL BE NEXT.

While Max Litvinov, Russian commissar for foreign affairs, was attending the Brussels conference—to get Japan out of China before Christmas—a number of his ambassadors and ministers were recalled. Litvinov left for home in a hurry, looking worried, and with good reason. It is now announced that there have been eight executions, five of the victims being diplomatic agents.

Among the eight was Leo M. Karakhan, ambassador to Turkey. He was formerly Litvinov's vice commissar and was well known in Chinese affairs of an earlier day. The others were veterans of the revolution and of soviet official service. They are alleged to have confessed that they were guilty of terrorist activities and of betrayal of Russia to an unnamed Fascist state, Germany or Japan.

The friends of Max Litvinov may expect the announcement any day that he too has met the firing squad. He failed to save his subordinates from Stalin's calculating ferocity, and he would now be a wizard if he saved himself. It is well known that the confessions of the accused are false. The only terror in Russia is that imposed by Stalin. The minor official Kirov was killed by a young assassin. His reasons never were learned. It was a fatal act because it has been the excuse for the massacres ordered by the savage Asiatic at the head of the Russian government.

The purge in Russia is not completely recorded in the known executions. The list of missing men is even more dreadful. The dead may be more fortunate than the living. Bukharin and Rykov are among the missing. They were among the founders of the soviet union. Rykov was Lenin's presumptive successor. Bukharin was the most brilliant doctrinaire. After Stalin had judicially murdered Kamenev, Zinoviev, Piatokov, and the other old bolos, he seized Rykov and Bukharin. Russian justice has not dared put them on public trial. They have disappeared.

Trotzky's young engineer son, Sergei Sedov, a youth who foolishly thought he was immune because he was a teacher of science not interested in politics, has been lost in the hands of the secret police, an ingenious method of torturing his mother and father, exiled in Mexico. No one knows the full number of the dead and missing in Stalinland. The estimates, although incredible, are probably short of the mark rather than over it.

Americans who support or consort with communists are obviously in open league with murderers.

ART AND LIBERTY.

Thomas Mann, the great German novelist now in exile, has sent a message to American authors and artists on the well worn subject, shall a practitioner of any of the arts concern himself with political and social controversies of his time?

Herr Mann declares that "in the present situation, the individual must openly and definitly state his position on the entire problem of man and his relation to humanity." This, he says, has often exposed him to attacks and to more or less candid censure. In fact, it has driven Herr Mann into exile. Continuing, he remarks that "one frequently hears it said that the artist should stick to his own craft and that he merely cheapens himself when he descends into the political arena to participate in the struggles of the day." He considers this a weak objection because of his realization that the different spheres of humanity, whether artistic, cultural, or political, are really inseparable.

Probably there will not be much disagreement on these generalizations. Their practical application depends, we suspect, on the artist. Shakespeare produced some excellent plays on political themes and, though they are not his best, at least one of their persons, Falstaff, is a creation of the first water. Milton was in the thick of the struggle for free institutions, a very active contributor to its polemics. He could produce Areopagitica, the great classic on freedom of utterance, and the sonnet on the Massacre in Piedmont and make them undying literature, while his passionate zeal in the great cause of the day did not prevent him from writing Paradise Lost, Comus, Lycidas, L'Allegro, and Il Penseroso and other poems among the enduring classics of the language.

But Herr Mann's opinion can easily lead astray. Great issues of humanity enter politics sometimes and may inspire or color artistic creation if the artist is moved by them. To make his muse the servant of the ordinary tactics of a party is certainly to cheapen it. It has often been done, but it has not produced literature. Worse still are the results of an imposition of political purposes upon the writer, as has been illustrated under the soviet dictatorship. It was inevitable that the communist rulers should abolish all freedom, including first and foremost freedom of utterance. It was obvious that they would commandeer artists for propaganda. In the first flush of revolutionary ardor this met a willing response from writers who were enthusiastic for the revolutionary cause. But the creative impulse will demand freedom or at least resist dictation and in due time the work produced became too dreary and indigestible even for the regimented subjects of the Kremlin. In the end pressure was relaxed and writers were permitted to choose their own topics, so that they did not violate the communist ideology or offend censorship. This is far from the freedom required by the creative urge. It will not produce such literature as Russian genius has produced even under the autocracy of the czars.

As for America, the artists who are so pleased with government subsidy will do well to reflect that subsidy means control. The prospect of great sums to be expended for the support of all the arts looks very like an artistic millennium. But subsidy means servitude in the end and government aid means politics.

Editorial of the Day

LET'S BE EXPLICIT, MR. PRESIDENT.

[Des Moines Register.]

President Roosevelt has recently taken the newspapers to task again. According to his statement at a press conference, the newspapers are "fostering a psychology of fear."

Of course, this is not the first time the President has singled out the newspapers for criticism. Last September in his Bonneville dam speech he referred to newspaper criticism of his regional planning board proposals as follows:

"You will have read here and elsewhere many misleading and utterly untrue statements in some papers . . . that this . . . legislation . . . would destroy state lines. The exact opposite is the truth."

Again, in his October fireside chat, the President was moved to say:

"Five years of fierce discussion and debate—five years of information through the radio and the moving pictures—have taken the whole nation to school in the nation's business."

Evidently, the President didn't recognize that newspapers have given the citizenry reams of information and debate about current social and economic problems.

This continual generalizing on the irresponsibility and exaggerations of "the press" is not a very healthy sign. There are instances, of course of newspapers which color their news columns, which inject editorial opinion into their news stories—but such papers form an insignificant minority. This is undoubtedly known to the President through his press intelligence bureau.

As a result, his dissatisfaction with the press at large cannot be on the general charge of misrepresentation. What is evidently at the bottom of his complaint is the unsympathetic criticism which the New Deal has received from many of the nation's newspapers.

This, obviously, is a horse of a different color. Editorial opinion is the prerogative of editors, and there is no reason why every editor—or even a majority of them—should always see eye to eye with Mr. Roosevelt.

Newspapers do not thrive on "fear," and are therefore more likely to err in the other direction. If they are acknowledging the current "recession"—which at least is a reality in the eastern industrial areas—is that not a part of their obligation as purveyors of information? Or do we just need a scapegoat regardless?

A LINE O' TYPE WELCOMES Front Views and Provines

TRIVIA OF 1937 [the personal side of the year's news].

Good-by, 1937. Sad little year with only a few hours to live. Year when the public again lost its money, read assiduously how to gain friends and influence people and learned to do the Big Apple. Year of baby panda toys, of child marriage jokes, of the record breaking run of "You Can't Take It With You," in which an old gentleman's homely prayer is the highlight of the performance. Year of Mrs. Genevieve Johnson's sitdown strike for maintenance money in a rocker on her father-in-law's front lawn; of a son of the President of the United States squirting champagne on a French mayor; of the rise in popularity of a horrible drink called a boosnooker; and of the discovery of William ⅝ Smith, whose father named him thus to avoid mail mixups.

1937. Year that Gov. Horner's friends finally gave him a cigar store Indian [he had always wanted one]; that Rose Bampton turned out to be a soprano instead of a contralto or mezzo; and that Nino Martini, Metropolitan tenor, operated an elevator during the elevator operators' strike in San Francisco. [He had learned how during the New York strike.] Year of Dali and surrealism in the news, and considerable surrealism in world affairs. Year that a St. Bernard killed a little girl, confusing everybody more than ever; and that the musical comedy of a ladies' garment workers' union made theater history on Broadway.

1937. Year that Freddie Bartholomew was adopted by Aunt Cissie; that Al Jolson was elected mayor of Encino for a third time; that Senator Reynolds was photographed by the Washington press kissing a film star; and that the president of Harvard university broke a collar bone skiing. Year of the McNutt episode in the Philippines over precedence during after dinner toasts. Year that Mayor La Guardia endangered international relations by suggesting Hitler for the Chamber of Horrors at the New York world's fair; and that Ambassador Ribbentrop greeted King George in the Throne room at Buckingham palace with the Nazi salute, a click of the heels and "Heil, Hitler." Year of the Minsky brothers' trouble, the passing of the strip tease artist, and of Gypsy Rose Lee changing her name to Hovick for the movies.

1937. Year that the Stamp Collectors' Fortnightly printed, "Much as we all admired King Edward VIII. . . . it was well known that he was not personally a philatelist." Year that the gangplank of Cornelius Vanderbilt III.'s yacht Winchester slipped, propelling him twelve feet into Biscayne bay. Year that Raoul Dufy completed the largest painting in the world for the Paris exposition; that Dowager Queen Mary passed the Kohinoor diamond along to Queen Elizabeth; and that Mrs. Garner said she was happier if she read only the newspaper headlines. Year that a woman journalist in love with Mussolini told all and fired a shot heard 'round the world.

GOOD-BY 1937. Year that charm became, not an adjective, nor an attribute, but something to hang on a bracelet, and the word recession came to have a new interpretation. We're not really sorry to see you go, 1937. Hail 1938!

PERFORMERS at the Mask and Wig show "Fifty-Fifty" might have been interested to know that the tall, handsome gray-haired man in the fifth row center was Walter Huston, on his way back from a New York visit to spend New Year's at his home in the mountains near San Bernardino. . . . Jean Hersholt of "The Country Doctor" was in town yesterday, too, on his way east. Third picture with the quints to be made in Toronto in June.

CELEBRATIONS, 1937-'38. Patrons in evening gowns and black ties or white ties and tails will ascend the half flight of steps to the Empire room to dance to Shep Fields' orchestra, watch the Abbott dancers in the Bluebird number, and applaud the little lad 1938 when he steps out of a globe lowered from the ceiling at midnight. . . . The antique red brocade hangings and gold pillars of the Drake ballroom will be the setting for midnight merrymaking there, with Herbie Kay's "O. K. Rhythm," called for at intervals, and everybody looking for his film star wife, Dorothy Lamour, who won't arrive until the following day. . . . At the College Inn, the twelve girl dancers will have everybody doing the Big Apple, with individual "shining" at midnight; the men will don funny hats and the women stare at Buddy Rogers' good looks and perhaps admire the star sapphire Mary Pickford gave him for Christmas. . . . Marek Weber will play Viennese waltzes like mad in the New Boulevard room at the Stevens, break into "Auld Lang Syne" at midnight, and perhaps turn out a little Norwegian number if he can, for Sonja Henie is giving a party there for 100 to see the new year in. . . . And every cocktail lounge and night club in Chicago—there are forty-eight on Rush street alone within the radius of a few blocks—will be the setting for a hilarious New Year's eve celebration. . . . But you can have them all. Your scribe is going to a little party of eight in a friend's home.

LADY LINDSAY, wife of the British ambassador to the United States, read her epitaph, written by herself, at the recent dinner at the White House for wives of men attending the Gridiron dinner:

"Served by all, of service to none, she died of the tea hour."

ANOTHER laugh, according to Mrs. Harold Pynchon, who attended the dinner, was Fanny Hurst's quotation of the comment of a friend who said that everything he liked was illegal, immoral, or fattening.

THE INFLUENCE OF NUTRITION.

MAJ. GEN. SIR ROBERT McCARRISON, writing in the British Medical Journal, notes that the healthiest specimens of mankind which he—a world traveler—ever has encountered are found among the tribes of northern India. He lived among these people for a considerable time while conducting researches on nutrition. All—men, women, and children—possessed physiques of unusual symmetry and perfection and many of the diseases of civilization, such as appendicitis, tonsilitis, and cancer, occurred but rarely.

To account for this Utopian state of affairs, McCarrison cites their wholesome plan of living, especially the use of natural foods. Furthermore, he observes that they give their digestive processes a chance to function with freedom from worry and excitement, good general hygiene, and plenty of sunshine and activity.

He lists among the responsible factors the diet—which is rich in minerals and vitamins, and enumerates whole grain cereals or bread made of whole meal; butter, milk, cheese, and curds; eggs; green and root vegetables, peas, and beans; fruit; meat; and—not of the least importance—pure water. Fortunately, the soil contains the necessary minerals, including iodine.

As most of us know, good health throughout life depends in large measure upon the start made in childhood, at least, until the youngster emerges into manhood and womanhood. Particularly is this vital for a strong nervous system. How often have we seen children with finicky appetites, with willful "I-don't-like-this-and-I-won't-eat-that" attitudes develop sleeplessness, habit spasms, even hysterical manifestations.

As we would expect, the list of edibles suggested by McCarrison contains all the recognized vitamins with vitamin A in preponderance. This material is valuable for the health of the skin and the mucous surfaces of the body. Few children receiving an adequate amount in the daily menu will have difficulty with the eyes, intestional infections, or bronchial irritations. Vitamin B is essential to the proper nutrition of the heart, the digestion of carbohydrates, and the normal integrity of the nervous system. Vitamin C is well known for its anti-scurvy properties, and vitamin D—coöperating with the secretion from the parathyroid glands—governs the utilization of calcium and phosphorus which have so much to do with strong bones and sound teeth.

None of McCarrison's Hindus were users of special minerals. They obtained them with their food. There are but few localities in the United States in which recourse to additional supplies of earthy substances will be demanded, but we must recall that calcium is indispensable to the body not only for the growth of bones but for the building of a stable nervous tissue. Furthermore, it plays a leading part in the contraction of the heart and in the clotting of the blood and is of assistance to iron in preventing anemia.

Taking our northern India inhabitants as a model, we marvel that they have hit so accurately upon balanced meals. Ordinarily, few of us have anything to worry about in this respect and the reason we say so much about nutrition is that—with every opportunity for proper feeding—many will starve themselves through using too much of the wrong kind of food or menus that are poorly proportioned.

Sometimes the digestive tract needs attention because people—at least some of them—are perverse or stubborn, neglecting signs of minor disorders. Bad habits of elimination are weak spots in our health armor. Many a child, through fear or embarrassment, ignores the urge to empty the lower bowel or the bladder.

Then again too few of us understand thoroughly the rôle performed by sleep—the period when the nervous system is rebuilt and when the muscles have their stores of food renewed. Especially the higher centers of the brain require a time of relaxation—blissful unconsciousness. The rules of healthful living are simple, but some of us may be heedless and careless.

CASE FOR SPECIALIST.

Mrs. M. T. writes: I have a rash on my arm which has been diagnosed as herpes. Is there any cure for this and if so what is it?

REPLY.

There are a great many kinds of herpes and only a skin specialist can differentiate them. Some are of nervous origin, some are caused by other diseases, and some are caused by infections. Cure depends on the cause.

PROBABLE ANSWER.

E. W. writes: I was called upon to donate blood to a relative. My test was 4-4, but I was not called for the transfusion. What does this mean?

REPLY.

It may mean that both donor and patient have blood of type 4.

ABOUT ROSE FEVER.

M. W. writes: Is there any cure for rose fever?

REPLY.

Rose fever is a form of hay fever. Find out what you are sensitive to, remove it if possible, and—if not—have yourself immunized to it.

MARCH BABIES.

Chicago, Dec. 27.—In view of the prominence and length of the article of James O'Donnell Bennett in THE SUNDAY TRIBUNE of Dec. 26, "Nature Favors March Babies for a Reason," I should like to suggest to those who might take seriously the fallacious theories and fictitious correlations of the geographical school of sociology that they read Prof. Pitirim Sorokin's criticisms in "Contemporary Sociological Theories," pages 138-162, 186-193 of Dr. Huntington's faulty methodology; of which there is abundant evidence in the above mentioned article.

It might be said in passing "Beware of the claims of climatologists and geographers!" Their extravagances are unequaled from Bodin, Montesquieu and Buckle to Gilfillian, Ward and Huntington. Lord Kame in 1788 wrote about "the endless number of writers who ascribe supreme efficacy to climate."

The ancient astrological beliefs in their essence are nothing more than an embodiment of the idea that man's destinies are ruled by stars and geographical conditions. The people's proverbs and "weather lore" of the past are permeated by the same idea. Aristotle said that the people who lived in cold countries were courageous. One Jenkins had a theory of correlation between Jupiter and the death rate. Montesquieu wrote: "In the north of China people are more courageous than those in the south; people are more vigorous in cold climates." Abercromby found the amount of rainfall a vital factor in the spread of Mohammedanism. Bodin believed "the inhabitants of valleys are commonly effeminate and delicate and glut themselves with pleasure." Gilfillian's theory of the "coldward course of progress" and "Ward's equatorial drift" are of the same pseudo-science. "Nature favors March babies" is a variation of Dr. Huntington's favorite theory of the relationship between climate and genius and the progress and decay of civilization.

"There is scarcely any physical or psychical trait in man, any characteristic in the social organization of a group, any social process or historical event which has not been accounted for by this or that partisan of the geographical school. Distribution of the population on the surface of the earth, the density of population, racial differences, the character of economic, political, and social organization, the progress and decay of nations, the character of religious ideas and beliefs, the forms of the family and marriage, health, fertility, intelligence, crimes, suicide, cultural achievements, the number of men of genius, the traits of literature, poetry and civilization, the movement of economic and social life, in brief, almost all social phenomena have been attributed to geographical influences. At the beginning of a study of these theories one is impressed by their brilliancy and originality; continuing the study, one is perplexed and bewildered by their contradiction and vagueness; and finally he is lost in the sea of these theories, not knowing what in them is valid, or what is wrong or doubtful."

And now we have the June conception theory. The eugenists' worries are over. Air conditioning business should skyrocket during July for those who overlook the magic mean, 63 degrees Fahrenheit of June.

Boiled down, the theory amounts to this: March favors babies if babies favor March.

LANDSLIDES AND DEPRESSIONS.

Chicago, Dec. 24.—In 1928 Hoover was elected President by what then was the largest majority known in a presidential election. At the end of the first year of his term of office the country was in the throes of a panic followed by a depression.

In 1936 Roosevelt was elected for a second term by a majority the largest ever known. At the end of the first year of the term of office for which he was elected the country was sinking into a depression.

Did the same forces, political and economic, work to bring about both panics? Did both Presidents yield to the opinions and prejudices of the classes who supported and elected them and neglect the interests of other classes? In doing so was Hoover led too far to the right and Roosevelt too far to the left? Does it not prove that a strong, organized minority is necessary to compel a President to treat all classes equally and justly, not giving special favors to any individual or class? S. C. MOSSER.

SNOW COVERED WALKS.

Oak Park, Ill., Dec. 27.—I had an out of town visitor during this holiday season who was desirous of seeing some of our newest improvements.

We decided to walk. My visitor called attention to the condition of the walks along the river side of Wacker drive and those on either side of the Outer drive. The automobile roads were in perfect condition, but the walks had not been touched.

With all the labor we have on the relief rolls it does seem to me that we should devote a little of it toward doing something for those who like to stroll around.

I have always considered it a civic duty to keep the walk clear in front of my house and think that others should do likewise. PERCY C. WORLD.

HEALTH CAN ALWAYS BE BETTER.

Chicago, Dec. 24.—No one will believe a grocer will work to achieve an ultimate elimination of all grocery stores. Then why do gullible masses with rational faculties seduce themselves into believing doctors will work to an end whereby medicine will no longer be necessary? Existence depends upon perennial commodity wants.

DUDY CAMPBELL.

FROM ACROSS THE SEA

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN.—The theory that a child is the product of its heredity alone and cannot be trained for a station in life for which its racial qualities make it unfit is the principle of Nazi education, according to an article by Dr. Werner Dittrich of Bayreuth in a recent issue of Nazi Education, official organ of the Nazi Teachers' union in Berlin.

"Modern biological research has found it is undeniable that a child is dependent upon his 'racial possessions,'" he writes. "The liberalistic theories which see in a new born child a lump of raw material which can be molded by training to a finished human being have had fatal influence on the racial combination of our people."

Dr. Dittrich says that "the desire to place one's child at any price among the ranks of the 'cultured' has within the last decades cost us an immeasurable amount of racial material, because many German families deliberately restricted the number of their children so that they could give them a 'higher education.' Thus many workers' families gave the nation one good academic man instead of the five or six good workers who remained unborn.

"Education can neither change nor add to the characteristics inherited by a person or a people. But we can compare a new born child with a photographic plate which has already been exposed but not developed. What can be developed has already been decided—I cannot bring out a portrait on a plate which has been exposed to a landscape. But it is possible to develop certain characteristics more strongly."

This development, according to Dr. Dittrich, is the duty of the teacher, who is supposed to develop more strongly those characteristics which are desirable for the nation and suppress those which seem undesirable.

"Education is only possible in any sense because the teacher is of the same fundamental race as his pupil," states Dr. Dittrich. "A Jew cannot be a teacher of German children, just as a German cannot be a teacher of Jews. By reason of this racial unity the teacher naturally has not only to develop reason but also character, will power, discipline, and national outlook on life in his pupils. It is obvious that such a development could never be created by a mere passer-on of knowledge.

"Generally, formations of character, will, and philosophical outlook are the results of moments which psychology calls experiences. Pupils will often forget much of what they learn in school, but they will never forget these experiences. At decisive moments of their lives they will remember what their teacher talked about in those hours of school, and they will take the road which their teacher told them was the right one.

"The born educator must be a fanatic and an optimist, and he must always act with the idea that the borderline of racial restriction lies very far away, for only thus can he develop inherited characteristics to their full depths. It is seen therefore that, within definite limits, a human being can be improved or spoiled. Speaking cautiously, one may say that education cannot change a human being fundamentally, but can make him more—or less—useful for the fight of his people to live."

MARRIAGE AND DIVORCE.

Chicago, Dec. 24.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Would appreciate information as to marriage and divorce laws, local and federal, pertaining to the following situation:

1. Girl married Nov. 20, 1932, in New York City has not seen her husband for four years, at which time [after six months' separation] he told her he had obtained a divorce. Do I need a copy of the decree, or is this verbal statement valid enough to permit her marriage to me?

2. What procedure is necessary to obtain information regarding above from New York City?

3. If this statement was unfounded, what standing would New York marriage to girl have—would it be null and void? Am I subject to prosecution? Is she? How severe? My fiancé told me upon accepting my proposal she had been married and saw her husband four years ago, when he told her they were divorced. However, upon seeking decree she said she never bothered applying for it and was "almost" certain it was so.

4. I feel I must be positive else our union be held invalid or she exposed to charges of bigamy.

5. Does state present these charges or [6] must a plaintiff process them?

Z. A.

1. We advise you not to contract a new marriage in reliance on the divorce without having something more than a verbal statement.

2. If possible obtain from him the name of the court and the number of the case, after which you can obtain a certified copy from the clerk of the court for a small fee.

3. If in fact the divorce has not been obtained you would be subject to possibility of bigamy.

4. We agree with you.

5. Yes, in some cases.

6. Obviously prosecution is more likely if some individual takes the initiative.

BLOCK NEW YORK MAYOR AS MILK PRICE DICTATOR

Farmers, Dealers, Stores Rebel at Scheme.

New York, Dec. 30.—[Special.]—Mayor Fiorello H. La Guardia's attempt to dictate the retail price of milk to consumers cracked up today in the face of open rebellion from independent milk dealers, retail store owners, large distributors, and embattled farmers.

Despite assurances from consumers organizations of complete coöperation and a bid by the mayor for the backing of the farmers, city officials admitted late in the day that no 9-cent a quart milk would be sold from trucks in the city's markets. They still were hopeful, however, that the plan would go into effect after the new year.

This marked the second defeat for Mayor La Guardia's plan in three days. On Monday independent dealers drove into the markets with trucks loaded with Grade B milk to sell at 9 cents a quart, 2 cents a quart below the proposed price.

Stores Chop Prices.

Stores in the neighborhoods immediately chopped their prices to meet the competition. As a result the independent trucks went back to their garages with a large quantity of their milk still unsold.

Then the storm, which had been gathering, washed out La Guardia's experiment. Officials of the union controlling the independent milk drivers charged the company with violating their contracts. They charged nonunion men were being employed and sub-union wages were being paid. The union threatened a stoppage strike unless the conditions were remedied.

Mayor La Guardia declared that the prices charged for retail milk in the city are exorbitant and unjustified. Large distributors like Bordens and Sheffields countered with the argument they are operating at a loss and that their records, now being examined by a state investigation commission, when made public, will reveil a deficit.

Join Against Mayor.

Upstate farmers, local grocers, and milk officials joined hands in opposition to the mayor's proposal. Spokesmen of retail grocers' associations, representing 23,000 stores, condemned the plan, contending that such a move would create serious competition problems and would endanger the livelihood of thousands of merchants and cause dismissal of union labor in these stores.

William J. McKay, chairman of the New York Metropolitan Milk Distributors' Bargaining agency, declared that the plan of milk at 9 cents a quart would destroy improved prices to farmers and the milk trade of thousands of storekeepers at one and the same time.

In Syracuse Homer S. Rolfe, president of the Metropolitan Coöperative Milk Producers' Bargaining agency, invited officials of the Dairy Farmers' union to confer with his group to prevent collapse of prices paid farmers for milk to New York dealers.

Causes Trouble Three Years.

Milk price troubles in New York have kept those engaged in the industry in a turmoil for the last three years and caused many acts of violence. The state started to regulate the price of milk in June, 1934. This control expired in March of this year, and a period of price cutting immediately set in. In May the Rogers-Allen act was passed, which suspended the anti-combination laws to permit producers' associations to establish "producers' bargaining agencies."

Controversy developed over prices, and finally the distributors agreed to pay the producers $2.63 a hundredweight for milk after the farmers had threatened to cut off the New York City milk supply. This made the cost to consumers 14 cents a quart, delivery truck price. In stores quarts of milk now sell for 11 cents.

Such was the situation when La Guardia announced independent concerns would be permitted to sell from trucks at ten locations in the city at 9 cents a quart.

AL SMITH AT 64 STILL CAN SHAVE ON A TRAIN GOING A MILE A MINUTE

New York, Dec. 30.—(AP)—Former Gov. Alfred E. Smith disclosed on his 64th birthday today that he still shaves himself with an old fashioned straight razor.

Moreover, he said he was so adept with the blade that "I can shave myself on a train going a mile a minute."

Smith, grinning genially from around his big cigar and brown derby, received visitors in his office on the 32d floor of the Empire State building.

Concerning politics, he said: "I won't say one word about it or express my opinion about anybody or what they have to say."

PRICE OF FOOD AT SAME LEVEL AS A YEAR AGO

Items Change but Not Chicago Average.

BY FRANK RIDGWAY.

A comparison of retail figures collected weekly by TRIBUNE reporters indicate that the cost of food in Chicago and surrounding suburbs is about the same as a year ago. Some foods are higher, some are lower, while others are about the same as they were.

Figures used in THE TRIBUNE market basket, which averages prices for the entire country, also indicate that costs have balanced up so that the basket of food is about the same as a year ago. On Nov. 16 the cost of the market basket was $4.89; on Nov. 17, 1936, it was $4.84.

Highest in September.

The high point reached this year was in September, when the market basket totaled $5.18. This was the highest since December, 1930, when it was $5.19. The peak in recent years was reached on Aug. 15, 1929, when the basket cost $6.25, dropping to $3.27, the lowest point, on Feb. 15, 1933.

In Chicago and nearby suburbs many foods have been higher during the year than they were at the end of last year and higher than they are now.

Shoppers will find today that most pound loaves of bread are 1 to 2 cents higher. Most dairy products have advanced in price. Butter is up 1 cent a pound; mild American cheese, 2 cents a pound, and milk in retail stores and home deliveries, 1 cent a quart.

Sugar Prices Higher.

Sugar is 2 to 4 cents for a 10 pound sack higher. Celery is up about 1 cent a bunch. Green beans are 8 to 9 cents a pound higher than a year ago. Lemons are up 4 to 20 cents a dozen. Green and dry onions are higher. Spinach costs more—as much as 2½ cents a pound in some cases.

Prices on the different kinds of beefsteak are 4 to 8 cents a pound higher in some shops, while in other markets they are almost identical with those of a year ago.

On the up and down list housewives will find pot roasts of beef up 2 cents a pound in some shops and about the same in others compared with prices asked this time last year. Rolled rib beef roasts are 7 cents a pound higher in some shops and 2 cents a pound off in others. Standing rib roasts of beef are about the same in some places and 3 cents a pound lower in others. Radishes are higher in some stores and about the same in others.

On Unchanged List.

Prices are about the same as they were a year ago on bacon, coffee, cabbages, carrots, grapefruits, green peas, sweet potatoes, fresh tomatoes, cauliflower, and broccoli.

Higher prices on some food items are offset to some extent by lower prices on others. Eggs are off 2 to 9 cents a dozen. Although bread prices are actually higher, flour is 10 to 20 cents lower on a 24½ pound sack. While most dairy products are higher, evaporated milk is slightly lower.

Lard is 2½ to 4½ cents a pound less than a year ago. Potato prices have made one of the biggest drops. They are 12 to 35 cents a peck lower than at the end of last year. In some instances potatoes are less than half the price asked this time last year. Cranberries are 7 to 9 cents a quart cheaper. Cured hams are 3 to 7 cents a pound lower, and fresh pork loins are about 2 cents a pound lower now than at the end of 1936.

Canned Goods Cheaper.

Most kinds of canned fruits and vegetables are cheaper than they were a year ago.

There have been comparatively few changes in retail food prices during the last week, most items remaining at about the same level as on Christmas eve.

Butter—both in rolls and in packages—is ½ to 2 cents a pound lower than a week ago. Most stores have cut their prices on such lunch items as olives, pickles, cookies, salad dressings, fruit juices, and beverages for the convenience of those who wish to prepare midnight snacks for New Year parties. Most stores will be open until later than the usual closing time this evening. They will be closed tomorrow.

Cooking apples are slightly lower than last week in some places. Many stores have reduced prices of bunch carrots, lemons, spinach, and head lettuce. Green beans gradually are coming down, but still are considered high. Fresh tomatoes are lower generally. White potatoes are 2 cents a peck cheaper in a few places.

Egg Prices Unstable.

Egg prices continue to shift, some stores marking them up 1 to 2 cents a dozen and others lowering the price by equal amounts. Green peas are 2 to 3 cents a pound higher. Cabbage and fresh grapes are up slightly in a few stores.

The downward trend in retail meat prices was checked in some shops during the week but continued in others. A few butchers marked up their price tags on round steaks and beef rib roasts and made no changes on other cuts. Both rib and pot roasts of beef are lower in some shops. Porterhouse steaks are down 3 cents a pound in many places, and a few stores have cured hams on sale for today at 6 cents a pound less than last week.

Frying chickens are up 3 cents a pound in some shops and leg of lamb is up 4 cents in others.

Wholesale Meats Decline.

Live stock and most wholesale meat prices continued to go lower at Union Stock yards during the week, according to federal reports. The better grades of beef cattle dropped 50 to 75 cents a hundred pounds and wholesale cuts of beef sold 50 cents a hundred lower.

Live hogs went down 35 to 50 cents a hundredweight, but wholesale pork cuts advanced 50 cents a hundred. Live lambs sold 50 to 75 cents a hundred lower and dressed lamb carcasses dropped $1 to $1.50 a hundred.

Court O. K.'s $60 a Week Alimony for Mrs. Borin

Judge John J. Lupe yesterday approved a report of Master in Chancery Henry L. Burman, directing Nathan L. Borin, wealthy art products dealer, to pay $60 a week temporary alimony to Mrs. Claire Burman Borin, one time beauty contest winner, who is suing for divorce. Her attorney, Abe Marovitz, was awarded temporary fees of $400. Her bill alleges cruelty.

VERSATILITY IS ONE CHARM OF TASTY SHRIMP

[Copyright: 1937: By The Chicago Tribune.]

The shrimp is an accommodating crustacean. He'll lie meekly under a blanket of cocktail sauce to make a piquant appetizer. He'll mingle with celery and pickle, hard cooked egg and dressing to make a salad. Or he'll give everything he's got to make a delectable hot main dish. And in this latter rôle he covers himself with glory.

Creamed Shrimp in Buttercups.

[Serves Five.]

5 slices white bread
Butter to spread bread
3 tablespoons butter [for shrimp]
3 tablespoons flour
1½ cups milk
½ teaspoon salt
¾ cup cooked or canned shrimp

Trim the crusts from the slices of bread, butter both sides of each slice lightly, and press into muffin pans. Toast in an oven set at 375 degrees until the tips of the "cups" are golden brown. Fill with creamed mixture made by melting butter, adding flour and milk to make a sauce, then adding shrimp and salt. Serve hot. The buttercups for the shrimp may be made in advance of serving time, and reheated just before the meal. These cups may be used for any creamed mixture, including chicken, meats, and vegetables.

FRENCH FRIED SHRIMP.

Season cooked or canned shrimp with salt and pepper, dip in flour, then in beaten egg, and finally in cracker meal or cornmeal. Fry in deep hot fat [380 degrees] for a minute until golden brown. Drain on absorbent paper and serve at once. A parsley garnish adds to the attractiveness of shrimp.

No two recipes for shrimp creole are alike, but here's one of the simplest and best ones I know about.

Shrimp Creole.

[Serves Four or More.]

2 tablespoons butter
1 tablespoon flour
2 tablespoons minced onion
1½ cups tomato purée
½ green pepper, chopped
½ teaspoon salt
Few grains cayenne pepper
1 teaspoon sugar
¼ cup chili sauce
2 cups cooked or canned shrimp

Brown the onion in the butter, sprinkle in the flour, and add remaining ingredients except shrimp. Simmer together until sauce thickens and add shrimp from which intestinal veins have been removed. Heat thoroughly and add salt and pepper if needed. Serve with hot boiled rice. A fourth cup of cooking sherry may be added to the sauce if liked.

Shrimp in Cheese Sauce.

[Serves Four.]

¼ cup butter
¼ cup flour
2 cups milk
½ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
¾ cup grated American cheese
Few grains cayenne pepper
2 cups shrimp, cooked or canned

Make sauce by melting butter, adding flour and adding milk gradually, stirring constantly over low heat. Add seasonings and cook until thickened and smooth. Add cheese and allow it to melt. Add shrimp and heat thoroughly. Use additional seasonings if necessary. Serve on toast or waffles.

MILK PRICE DISPUTE ENDED BY CONTRACT WITH CO-OPERATIVE

Cedar Rapids, Ia., Dec. 30.—[Special.]—A price dispute between the Blue Valley Dairy company and local milk producers over shipments of Wisconsin milk from Chicago ended today with an agreement whereby the Blue Valley will obtain its supplies from the Cedar Rapids Coöperative Dairy, as it has in the past

When nearly fifty milk producers protested the Blue Valley's importation of milk, Mayor F. K. Hahn issued a stop order Monday night. Protesting producers cited a section of the city's milk ordinance which calls for inspection of all farms producing milk distributed here.

Dr. A. R. Menary, city dairy inspector, said the milk which the Blue Valley was importing met other requirements of the city's milk ordinance and of the state law.

Day By Day Story of the Experimental Farms

By Bob Becker

The Dead of Winter.

December 30, 1937.

THE silence that is everywhere in the woods is one of the most apparent features of the outdoors at this time of the year. We walked through two stands of oak timber on the farm the other day and the hush that prevails was a mute reminder of how devoid of visible life our timbered areas become when winter grips the landscape. No chattering from the squirrels. No cheery notes from birds. Except for the rustling of brown leaves on some of the oaks there was only silence.

Viewing the lifeless character of the woods it seems hard to believe that all through the timber there are millions of things alive in the ground and in the trees even though our eyes and ears would tell us differently.

We stopped to look at a squirrel nest high in a burr oak tree in the course of our walk. We noticed a hole in a partly decayed limb of the tree. It looked like an entrance to a hive of a swarm of wild bees and probably was, because there are many of these bee colonies in the woods. But there are no signs of life around these tree cavities in which the bees live.

Enjoying a Winter Nap.

Not far away from where we stood beneath the towering burr oak we knew that a fat old woodchuck was hibernating and thus enjoying one of the most satisfactory ways for any animal to go through the cold winter. We have seen this fellow near his den on summer days. All he has to do now is sleep. Nothing to do but sleep day after day . . . until spring comes.

For years we have wanted to find the winter burrow and nest of the little ground squirrel or so-called chipmunk. Every fall we experience this desire when we see these trim little animals start to store their winter supply of food. Not far from where we stood in the woods there probably was a hidden storehouse of a little chipmunk. There may have been a group of four or five of them sleeping together in a common burrow. This is not unusual, as several pairs of these animals may occupy the same burrow and enjoy one big pile of food which they collect and put in their burrow before winter comes. Such a colony of chipmunks whose running and chatter in the woods we miss on winter walks may have as much as a half bushel of acorns or seeds in their winter storehouse beneath the ground.

A Bluejay Calls.

Continuing our walk over the farm we came to a field and again we were reminded of how still and quiet the country is on a midwinter day. Except for the shrill call of a bluejay there was no sound to be heard and no sign of life in the field.

Standing where we could look over the frozen meadow we wondered where the burrows of the ground squirrels or gophers were located . . . the little animals that are hibernating deep in their dens, so lifeless that you might think every animal was dead.

Eating nothing, drinking nothing, all of the ground squirrels are going to sleep right on through January, February, and probably all through March.

ORDER TRANSFER BETWEEN "L" AND WEST TOWN CARS

An interline transfer system between the Chicago Rapid Transit company [elevated lines] and the Chicago and West Towns railways for Oak Park, Cicero, Berwyn, and other western suburbs, will go into effect Jan. 16, James M. Slattery, chairman of the Illinois commerce commission, announced yesterday.

A rehearing was requested by the elevated company which contends the order discriminates against it, but this was denied.

The commission approved rules and regulations governing the issuance and use of transfers between the two systems at twelve elevated stations in the western suburbs, Slattery said. Passengers using the privileges will pay a 15 cent fare for a joint ride. The rider is now required to pay a 10 cent fare to each system.

RUN!

By Patricia Wentworth

[Copyright: 1937: By Patricia Wentworth Turnbull.]

SYNOPSIS.

Delivering a new car to a customer James Elliot, lost in the fog, finds himself on some one's estate. Groping his way to the dark house, he stumbles over a bicycle. The front door is ajar. Entering, his flashlight reveals a girl, who commands him to "Run!" A shot whistles after them as they flee to hide in the hayloft. The girl tells James she was searching for a necklace her dying Aunt Clementa had told her was hidden in the house, called Rere place. The girl vanishes before James can learn more. At his cousin Daphne's party James meets the girl. She is Sally West, the sister of his college chum, Jocko West. She hints of danger to him—because of what he saw—her brother, and herself. Jackson, a rival salesman, takes credit for driving the car the night of the fog and is cut over on the road and killed. Sally is in fear of Ambrose Sylvester, the novelist, who is her guardian and was her aunt's trustee; also his wife, Hildegarde, and the latter's cousin, Henri Niemeyer, who wants to marry Sally. Jocko, after receiving a letter from his dying aunt, was pushed off a cliff. After the accident the letter is missing and Jocko cannot remember its contents. The money Sally's aunt left to Jocko comes next to her, and, if she dies, to Ambrose. Sally and James fall in love, but she tells him it is too dangerous for them to meet. Returning home one night James barely escapes death from falling scaffolding. On his way to deliver a car James offers to drive Sally to Rere place, where Jocko is staying. A driverless motor lorry nearly smashes into them.

INSTALMENT XXXV.

A NARROW ESCAPE.

Sally watched him stooping, bending, moving from point to point, completely absorbed, intent upon his examination. He made it a most thorough one, and long before it was ended her teeth had ceased to chatter. They had chattered at first, because being so near death had made her icy cold. She hoped James hadn't noticed, and presently decided that he had not. He hadn't been thinking about her at all. He had been too much taken up with his precious car.

Warmth came back into Sally, and a sparkle into her eyes. The weakness and fatigue of ten minutes ago had gone. One bit of her was furiously angry with James, and another bit laughed. It was good to be angry and it was good to laugh, and O, how good it was to be alive.

James opened the door on the driver's side and got in.

"Not a scratch," he announced in a tone of relief. "She took the ditch pretty well, didn't she? Of course, I shall have to tell old Pomeroy that he'd better let me take her back to be thoroughly gone over in case anything's been strained. But I don't think so. I think she's all right—I really do think so. It would have been the most frightful thing if I'd had to go and tell him I'd smashed her up."

"If the car had been smashed, we should have been smashed, too, and you wouldn't have to tell him," said Sally. "There's always a bright side if you look for it."

James burst out laughing and hugged her.

"You're not hurt, I'm not hurt, and the car isn't hurt. It's a pretty good day!"

"Darling, why put me first? I know my place. I'm not a car."

"Of course," said James, kissing her in rather an absent-minded manner—"Of course she may have broken a leaf in one of the springs."

"Sally, you'd better tell him exactly what you've been telling me."

They lost quite a lot of time over the lorry. James climbed down and viewed the corpse. The owner's name he made out to be Curling or Gurling.

He climbed up again, and about half a mile along the road another lorry hove in sight. This one appeared to have no desire to run them down. On the contrary, the driver slowed up and shouted, "Have you seen a lorry sir?" upon which James stopped the car and got out. The name of Curling was printed large upon the lorry, which had also stopped. The driver leaned over the side and repeated his question.

"Have you passed a lorry same as this? Someone's been and pinched it."

James looked grim.

"Someone pinched it, did they? Well, its scrap iron at the bottom of Pedlar's Hill now. Ran over the side and nearly took me with it. I went down to have a look, and the name was Curling."

"Bloke dead?" inquired the driver.

"Wasn't any bloke," said James. "She was running loose—no one at the wheel."

The driver whistled.

"That's a rum start! He must have let her get out of control and jumped for it. And what he wanted to pinch her for passes me. They're straightening out a bend about a mile along the road here, and we're delivering ballast. Well, there's a place that sells ginger beer very handy, and we'd gone up there for a drink, the other man and me, and when we come back my lorry was there and his lorry was gone, and all any one could say was that a chap had run past on a motor-bike with another chap up behind, both of them in caps and goggles so that nobody wouldn't know them from Adam. And one of the men that's working on the road says he heard the bike stop and start again, and the next thing there was one of our lorries going off down the hill, and he thought it was all right till we come back. Well, I suppose I'd better go along and look at the damage. How far down the hill did you say? And perhaps you wouldn't mind giving me your name and address."

"Just before you come to the bend," said James. He gave his name and address and went back to Sally.

As they drove on, he said in a meditative voice.

"They nearly got us that time."

Sally turned pale and said, "Who?"

"Ambrose & Co. I think, my dear—and a very clever show."

He told her what the driver had said.

"You see, these lorries are delivering stuff here every day. Quite easy to pinch a lorry whilst the driver's away having a drink. And now we know why some one pretended to ring up for Col. Pomeroy. They had to make sure that I was bringing the car, and when I was starting. I don't know how they managed the timing, but I expect there are places up on the downs where you can watch the flat stretch of road below the hill. If some one kept a glass on it, they'd have been able to do the trick all right. Motor-bike for two. Run pass lorry and drop passenger. Passenger to lorry. Lorry to crest of hill, where passenger drops off, leaving lorry to do Juggernaut and eliminate James Elliot who isn't wanted. The only tricky bit would be the dropping off, but I expect he'd go fairly slow to the last second and then jump for it, leaving the hill to do the rest."

"I wonder who it was," said Sally.

James took no notice. He continued his own line of thought.

"Then the minute the lorry was off down the hill the chap on the motor-bike would pick the other one up and they'd be in the next county before any one had time to think about them."

Sally clutched him with sudden violence.

"James—they went past—when I was waiting—when you were down looking at the lorry!"

"Then you saw them. That's a bit of luck. What were they like?"

"I didn't see them. Maddening, isn't it? I just heard it go past, and I think there were two men, but I couldn't swear that there were. I just wasn't taking any interest."

"Well, that's how it was done," said James in a satisfied tone. "They took a chance, and they very nearly brought it off. And now I expect they're having some light refreshment and thinking out the next stunt. Very persevering people."

James dropped Sally at Rere place at 1 o'clock. Seen in the daylight, the house was quite unlike what he had imagined it to be in the dark and fog. It wasn't nearly so old for one thing. An eighteenth century Rere had built a square Georgian front on the old Tudor house and run a pretentious flight of stone steps up to the hall door. It was down these steps that he and Sally had plunged, and it was at the bottom that they had stumbled over Gladys' bicycle and cut her foot.

"Sally jumped out. He saw her run up the steps, but before she reached the top the hall door was thrown open and Jocko West appeared. James, following Sally, received what he hadn't in the least expected, a delighted welcome.

James frowned and spoke his mind.

"Look here, J. J., I don't like Sally staying here. I've got to deliver this car to Col. Pomeroy at Fieldover, but as soon as I can get away I'll come back. Sally, you'd better tell him exactly what you've been telling me. I mustn't stop now, because I'm late.

LITTLE ORPHAN ANNIE: Town Criers

$800,000 ESTATE LEFT BY FORMER HEAD OF FIELD'S

Most of McKinsey Holdings Securities.

James O. McKinsey, chairman of Marshall Field & Co., who died Nov. 30, left an estate in excess of $800,000, it was disclosed yesterday by Attorney John Bishop, who filed an inventory with Judge Martin C. Decker of the Lake county Probate court at Waukegan.

Mr. McKinsey, who had a brilliant university and business career, became senior executive of Field's on Oct. 6, 1936, after serving as an adviser to the board of management for a year. He formerly was president of James O. McKinsey & Co., business counselors.

Family Gets Estate.

In the absence of a will, the estate will be divided between his widow, Mrs. Alice McKinsey and their twin sons, Robert and Richard, 16 years old. Mrs. McKinsey, who has been awarded letters of administration, maintains homes at 1570 North Waukegan road, Lake Forest, and 1500 Lake Shore drive, Chicago.

Most of the estate consists of securities in twenty-nine companies, including a block of 19,800 shares of Field stock. Most of the stocks, including several in real estate concerns, are not listed on national securities exchanges.

Bishop placed no estimate on several parcels of real estate among the holdings. They include an equity in a 36 apartment building at 7331-39 Coles avenue.

$300,000 Due from Field.

Listed among the accounts receivable is $300,000 due from Marshall Field & Co. under a contract dated Oct. 7, 1935. This is believed to have been arranged as a bonus to attract Mr. McKinsey from his own company. Bishop said, however, that stockholders are questioning the right of the company to make such a contract.

Last September, in lieu of his option to purchase 20,000 shares of company stock at $10 a share, Mr. McKinsey also was given $313,929. According to the inventory, this apparently was reinvested in other securities.

The inventory shows cash on hand of $44,205. Also listed is a provision for Mrs. McKinsey to receive until Aug. 31, 1941, a proportionate share of the profits in three companies in which her husband held a partnership. These are James O. McKinsey & Co., McKinsey, Wellington & Co., and Scovell, Wellington & Co.

Royalties Outstanding.

Mr. McKinsey also had due, the inventory stated, royalties from the University of Chicago Press, Ronald Press, and the South Western Publishing company from his books on accounting, budgetary control, and business administration.

Mr. McKinsey's Field stock, worth $150,975 at the present market, is pledged with the First National ban: for a loan of $169,448, while 150 shares of First National stock are pledged with the Mercantile Trust and Savings bank for a $20,000 loan.

Other stocks are 3,000 shares of Chicago corporation, worth approximately $6,000, and 378 shares of Selected American Shares, Inc. He was a director in both concerns. The only other large blocks were 6,495 shares in the Hamilton Bond & Mortgage company, and 2,503 shares in Lee Kountze Hardware company, of Nebraska.

Remick Estate $303,699.

A final accounting approved yesterday in the Cook county Probate court listed the estate of Mrs. Zella A. Remick, widow of William T. Remick, at $303,699. Fifteen legatees, including two nieces, share the estate.

Emil J. Miller, chief clerk of the city controler's office for 35 years, left a $110,609 estate, an accounting disclosed.

An inheritance tax return filed in the County court valued the estate of Oscar L. Ehlers at $202,362 and listed the state tax at $6,133. Ehlers, an investment counselor, left the estate to relatives.

The body of a man killed by an automobile at Fairfield avenue and Roosevelt road Christmas night was identified yesterday as that of Joseph Westwood, 55 years old, who lived at 31st street and Fairfield avenue. The driver of the car was Miss Clare Scalforo, 23 years old, 1226 61st court, Cicero.

Hurt When Car Hits Truck.

Attorney Harold H. Lawrence, 28 years old, 420 Surf street, and his fiancée, Miss Vera Maher, 26 years old, 3643 North Crawford avenue, were injured yesterday when their car struck a parked truck at Webster and Chicago streets in Joliet. Miss Maher is secretary to Edward Cunningham, night manager of the National Broadcasting company here. Asa R. Backsdale, 5025 Montrose avenue, who was asleep in the cab of the truck, was not hurt.

Zigmund Gadzinski, 9 years old, 9347 Colfax avenue, who was struck by a car in front of his home Dec. 27, died in the South Chicago hospital yesterday. The driver of the car, A. J. Schulze, 7636 Colfax avenue, told police the boy darted into the street from behind a parked car.

Up to 4 p. m. yesterday 1,107 persons had been killed in Cook county by automobiles since Jan. 1. In Chicago there were 849 deaths and 22,791 persons injured in the same period.

BRAUDE'S PLEDGE FOR NEW YEAR'S: HE'LL BE TOUGHER

Makes Some Examples in Drive on Auto Toll.

A new policy of stringent penalties was introduced yesterday by Judge J. M. Braude in Safety court in an attempt to cope with the increase in trafic fatalities and injuries. He served notice of the new policy by imposing more severe sentences on reckless and drunken drivers.

Taking note of the estimated 40,000 trafic deaths in the country during 1937 and 30 deaths in the Chicago area during the holiday season, Judge Braude warned that motorists guilty of drunken driving or leaving the scene of an accident over the New Year's week-end would be sent to jail.

Finds Severity Necessary.

"We've tried education, we've tried pleading, and we've tried minor sentences," he said. "Now we shall begin administering severe penalties."

He then sentenced Morris Estes, 26 years old, 477 Deming place, a Checker taxicab driver, to sixty days in the county jail and suspended his driving rights for one year.

On Oct. 4 Estes' cab injured a pedestrian. It was testified that he drove away, but was seized at Kenwood avenue and 60th street.

Hugh McDowell, colored, 3638 South Dearborn street, was sentenced to thirty days in the Bridewell and denied use of his car for fifty days for drunken driving. His truck hit a car at 36th street and Indiana avenue Wednesday.

Sentenced to Jail.

Albert Bumber of Downers Grove was sentenced to fifteen days in jail and his driving rights suspended for sixty days for driving while drunk. He was involved in a minor accident at Ashland avenue and Roosevelt road Nov. 6.

Clifford Halverson, 1833 West Race avenue, was sentenced to fifteen days in jail and lost his driving rights for sixty days for drunken driving. His automobile struck a parked car in front of 1420 Superior street on Dec. 21.

George Kelly, 4 East Chicago avenue, was sentenced to fifteen days in jail and lost use of his car for sixty days for reckless driving. His car was in a collision Dec. 2.

Wife Pleads with Court.

David L. Stagg, 7123 Schreiber avenue, was sentenced to five days in jail and suspended from driving for sixty days for driving while drunk. His car struck a parked automobile in front of 6019 Northwest highway on Dec. 9.

Stagg's wife, mother of four children, pleaded with the court for her husband, declaring that he suffered from heart trouble.

Edward Ryan, 1514 North Avers avenue, was fined $50 and lost his driving rights for twenty days for reckless driving.

Mayor Kelly's Keep Chicago Safe committee yesterday issued a statement pointing out that the toll of trafic carelessness last week-end should warn motorists to be safe and sane during the New Year holiday.

Trucks to Have Radios to Aid Law Enforcement

Green Bay, Wis., Dec. 30.—[Special.]—Brown county's highway trucks will be equipped with radios this winter to facilitate their response to emergency calls for snow plow service and to make them available for law enforcement work in which they might be used to block roads against fleeing bandits or other law breakers, it was announced today. Drivers of the trucks will be deputized. Calls will be relayed through the county police radio transmitter.

DR. SMETANKA RITES HELD; CZECH ENVOY SPEAKS AT SERVICES

Funeral services were held yesterday for Dr. Jaroslav F. Smetanka, consul general for Czechoslovakia in Chicago, who died here Monday. He was 56 years old.

A service for the family was held in the morning at the home, 7102 Riverside drive, Berwyn. Escorted by Czechoslovak Legion veterans in uniform, the body was taken at noon to the First Presbyterian church in Oak Park. There tribute was paid to Dr. Smetanka by Col. Vladimir Hurnan, Czecholovakian minister to the United States.

Later a military burial was conducted in Bohemian National cemetery. R. J. Psenka, former editor of the Daily Bohemian Svornost, and the Rev. Joseph Sefi, pastor of the First Czechoslovak Methodist church, spoke.

WOODSMEN FELL 1,000 YEAR TREE AS 500 LOOK ON

Gleason, Wis., Dec. 30.—[Special.]—A giant northern white pine, reputedly the oldest living tree in Wisconsin, fell yesterday before woodsmen's axes and was hauled away to a mill. Towering 110 feet, the tree is estimated to be close to 1,000 years old.

The tree was cut by lumberjacks employed by Harry Doering, contract logger for the Yawkey-Alexander Lumber company. Henry Dudley, 91 years old, and Hugh Lee, 67 years old, retired woodsmen, helped lumberjacks saw the tree, a two hour job. About 500 woodsmen, conservationists, county, town, and city officials and their guests visited the camp to watch the work.

The first cut will be displayed at the Marathon county courthouse in Wausau. Because the tree so truly represents the once vast timber resources of the state, the lumber company has received many requests for logs from it.

Milton Weil, 49, Publisher of Music, Dies in Hospital

Milton Weil, composer and head of a music publishing house, died yesterday in Grant hospital following an operation last Tuesday. He was 49 years old and lived at the St. Clair hotel. Mr. Weil began his career as a song plugger. He became head of one of Chicago's largest music publishing houses. He is survived by his widow, Maybelle. Funeral services will be held Monday from the chapel at 4825 North Damen avenue.

Attractive Lingerie Duet

WOMAN'S AND MISS' LINGERIE.

Did Santa Claus cheat you on your quota of lingerie and bring a lot of other pretty things instead? No matter how many lovely items a woman has, she simply cannot do without a large supply of underthings. The pattern today offers panties and uplift brassiere to match. These garments are really easy to sew. The panties have a snugly fitted waistline and enough leg room for comfort, without being bulky and showing beneath your frocks. The two garments may have lace edging or be finished in a tailored manner, and adorned with a feather embroidery motif. The pattern for this is number E-11176, and is available for 10 cents extra.

All the lovely lingerie silks will make up well in this design, and you can indulge in your favorite pastels to your heart's content. If there's a friend or relative who has a birthday in the near future you might get this pattern and make the pretty lingerie set for her as a gift. We can assure you that she will appreciate it.

Style No. 3335 is designed for sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, and 20 years, and 30, 32, 34, 36, 38, and 40 inches bust measurement. Size 16 requires 1¼ yards of 39 inch material, with 3 yards of lace.

New Year's Eve Brings Round of Gay Parties

BY JUDITH CASS.

"NEW YEAR'S eve means nothing to me; it's just another night and I would just as soon stay at home," say many before the last day of the year arrives. But we've noticed that when Dec. 31 rolls around every one who hasn't made plans for a gala evening belatedly begins to plan something.

Tradition has made New Year's eve a night upon which to celebrate, and even though many of the customs that have come down to us from our fathers and grandfathers are dying, making a noise and having "a big time" as a farewell to the old year and a welcome to the new one is still a live and flourishing American institutio...

There will be parties in all the hotels and clubs and many homes; some will go to the opera to hear a performance of "Martha," which will be followed by supper and dancing in the Opera Club lounge, the foyer, and on the mezzanine floor of the Civic Opera house. Others will start the evening's festivities by going to the ballet or the ice ballet, to a theater or to a movie, for real New Year's eve watch parties do not commence until about 11 o'clock.

Adelaide Sweetser Will Bow at Tea.

The last debut party of 1937 will be one of the notable ones of the year, for it will serve to introduce a young girl whose family long has been associated with Chicago's industrial, civic, and cultural activities. The debutante is Miss Adelaide Sweetser, granddaughter and namesake of Mrs. Robert B. Gregory [Adelaide Hibbard] who will receive with her granddaughter from 4:30 until 7 o'clock in Mrs. Gregory's home at 1638 Prairie avenue.

Miss Sweetser's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Sweetser, live in Geneva, Switzerland, but she is attending Sarah Lawrence college in Bronxville, N. Y., this winter and has come west to spend the holiday season with her Chicago relatives.

All of the young women who have been asked to assist belong to old Chicago families, families that were neighbors of Mrs. Gregory in the old days when Prairie avenue was part of Chicago's gold coast. Mrs. Gregory's house is one of the few that still is occupied by its original owner. Mrs. Gregory has lived in it since she was taken there as a bride in 1880. Those whom she has invited to assist at her granddaughter's debut are the Misses Janet Gregory, Nancy Blaine, Mary Paul Welling, Betty Armour, Kay Goodman, Eleanor McClurg, Josephine Zeiss and Mary Gardner.

Mrs. Kenneth S. Templeton will give a luncheon today in her home in Lake Forest for Miss Dorothy MacArthur, debutante daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Telfer MacArthur.

Mrs. Stuart Templeton of Lake Forest is giving a luncheon at the Casino club today for Miss Lorraine Marie Roach, a debutante of this season.

Mrs. Rollin D. Wood and Miss Mery Gordon Wood are giving a luncheon today at their home in Winnetka for debutantes Marion Hall and Janet Gregory.

Miss Joan McArthur, a debutante of two seasons ago, will give a cocktail party this afternoon for Miss Janet Musselman, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. George H. Musselman.

Two Weddings Will Take Place Today.

Two New Year's eve weddings add to an already full schedule for the day. At 4:30 o'clock this afternoon at the Fourth Presbyterian church, Miss Patricia Forsyth Kelly, daughter of the George Arthur Kellys, will be married to John Lawrence Irving, son of Mrs. M. E. Irving of London.

Half an hour later in the chapel of St. James' church, Miss Marian Greenlee, daughter of Mrs. Ralph S. Greenlee, will be married to Detmar H. Finke, son of Mrs. Mary Berkeley Finke, who arrived yesterday from New York for the wedding.

There is to be no formal reception following either wedding. Mr. Irving and his bride and their attendants will return to the Kelly apartment at 1448 Lake Shore drive to drink a toast to the newlyweds, and Mrs. Greenlee has asked some of the family's closest friends to come to her apartment at 70 Cedar street to drink to the happiness of her daughter and son-in-law.

Miss Kathleen Kelly, a debutante of the season, will be her sister's maid of honor, and the bridesmaids include Miss Bertha Erminger, Miss Mary Louise Laird, Miss Eleonore Thompson, and Miss Ellen Allen of Bowmansdale, Pa., formerly of Winnetka.

Edmund L. Goodman of New York will be Mr. Irving's best man, and ushering will be Robert Freeman Thomas of New York, Edward Rosenberg of Rochester, N. Y.; Aldis J. Browne Jr., who is engaged to Miss Erminger; Ralph F. Chatillon, Charles Peter Jaeger, John P. Starbuck, and James Snitzler.

Mr. Irving and his bride will sail next week to spend two months abroad. They will go first to London to see his mother and then to Paris, St. Moritz, Vienna, Rome, and back to England before sailing for home. They will live in Chicago.

Mr. Finke and Bride Delay Wedding Trip.

Mr. Finke and his bride also are going to spend two months abroad on their honeymoon, but they are postponing their trip until the end of February. They will go directly to their apartment in New York after the wedding.

Miss Isabel Fiske of Evanston will be Miss Greenlee's only attendant. Ralph M. Greenlee, a student at the Columbia Medical school, will give his sister in marriage. John G. W.

Looking at Hollywood
By Ed Sullivan

1938—Or, Little Man, What Now?

Hollywood, Cal., Dec. 30.—Don't look now, but I think that's new year rapping at the door. In stage parlance, the newcomer to the bill hasn't a very tough act to follow. No doubt 1937 was in there trying the best he knew how, but he didn't have much on the ball. He laid an egg this big. And I remember when 1937 arrived and tapped timidly on the calendar for admittance. He was a nice, cherubic looking little guy, full of baby talk and soft promises.

Look at him now, slinking into the graveyard of the years, a bum. His last exit was typical—he took Maurice Ravel and Don Marquis with him.

Of course, we might help this infant 1938. Those of us who drive autos could help the little mug considerably. I'm just reading the report out of Chicago that 40,000 pedestrians and motorists were murdered in the twelve months of 1937. So if you want to make a new year's resolution, here's a magnificent opportunity. From now on, when you climb behind that steering wheel, take it easy.

A plane crashes and fourteen people are killed. It is a page 1 story. Five men are injured aboard the S. S. Panay and it becomes a world issue. But 40,000 people are killed in ONE YEAR on the highways of the country and it is not considered spectacular enough to be plastered across the front pages. For auto deaths are no longer news.

Let's dramatize it, then: 40,000 people represent the population of such big American cities as Norwalk, Conn., or St. Petersburg, Fla., or Amsterdam, N. Y., or Perth Amboy, N. J., or Muncie, Ind. If one of these cities were wiped out, the entire population murdered, that would qualify as news, wouldn't it?

No more shocking record is revealed than the record of Los Angales county; 1,000 killed by, and in, automobiles in 1937. It's horrible to think that just a year ago these thousand persons were blowing out the old year just as you and I are doing at the moment.

Discourtesy is the filling station for death on the highways. For auto murderers don't start out on a trip with anything more heinous in their minds than rudeness, or selfishness, or thoughtlessness.

Nobody gets into a car and says to himself: "Tonight I'll go out and kill a pedestrian." But, by hogging the road, or failing to dim your lights, or refusing to stop to let a pedestrian cross a road, rudeness is translated into murder.

There is something about driving a car that achieves a Jekyll-Hyde transformation in people. In ordinary conversation I'm not profane. Driving a car, I curse and mutter at other drivers the full route. The nervous tension of driving in heavy trafic has something to do with this change in people. I've heard prim lady drivers say things, from the driving seat of a car, that would make Mae West's broadcast lily-white by contrast.

Last night, on Sunset boulevard, I honked my horn at the car ahead of me, the automotive way of saying: "Beg your pardon, old boy, but would you move over a bit?" To my angered amazement he leaned forward into his driving mirror, and thumbed his nose at me. Probably out of a car he is a nice, pleasant fellow.

"I thought Sullivan wrote a column about moving picture stars," you're probably grumbling to yourself. "Why do a sermon on automobile recklessness?" Well, I'll tell you, maybe this column will directly or indirectly save ONE life in 1938, and if it does, it's the most important column I've ever written.

To all of you kids of high school and college age I ask you to be good sports on the highways. You're good sports in football and baseball and basketball, with or without a gallery. Be a good sport when you're driving a car.

Sure, it's a terrific temptation to pour it on when your foot is on the accelerator of a car, but the thrill of reckless driving isn't worth a killing. So, you kids—take it easy. If you go through 1938 without an accident you've accomplished something a lot more worthwhile than winning your high school or college letters.

Not that the youngsters are any more culpable than the older drivers. Us older guys like to turn a car loose, too. Older men killed most of the 40,000 people who were murdered on American roads in the last twelve months. Let the older drivers swear off driving when they're drunk. A drunken driver behind a wheel is as dreadful in his potentialities as a hoodlum's gat.

Let's resolve, then, for 1938 that each one of us will turn over a new leaf instead of turning over a car. It would be swell if, a year from now, the national trafic deaths had been reduced even 25 per cent. That's one column I'd really love to write. And now, having had my say, may I wish all of you a happy new year on the safer and saner roads of the country?

Supper-Dance Ends Visit of Triangle Club

BY INDIA MOFFETT.

"Boo-o-o-o-o," cried the two hundred and fifty Chicago men in the new Boulevard room of the Stevens hotel last night when it was announced that "Triangle club members may cut in on any girl on the dance floor."

The boos weren't really from the heart, though, for every Chicagoan likes to have the Princeton Trianglers feel that Chicago has given them the best time of any of the fifteen cities on their itinerary. And they surely had a good time this year in spite of there being no debutante ball last night following the Triangle club's performance in the Civic Opera house.

Orchids to those clever young women of the Eli Bates Settlement house board who thought of having a benefit supper-dance last night, for it provided a gay and festive ending to the evening and kept the Trianglers busy and happy until they departed about 5 o'clock this morning for Detroit.

The visitors weren't the only ones who enjoyed the supper-dance either, for every one of the six hundred present considered it one of the best parties of the season. Neither were the hostesses the only ones who had orchids—they all had them literally as well as figuratively—for almost every girl there was wearing flowers. In her hair, on her shoulder, in the V of her décolletage, or on her wrist; in short, anywhere her fancy chose to have them, and many of the most smartly clad girls had them in two or more places.

And—at least two young men wore flowers to match those their girls were wearing. One who was dancing with débutante Margot Webbe wore a pink camellia on the lapel of his "tails" that matched the two flowers in her dark hair, and another young man had a lavender orchid sticking out of the pocket of his evening coat. His dancing partner, lovely in black velvet, was wearing three on her shoulder. He looked like a football player, too!

The younger generation has its own peculiarities in dress, too, for at the show earlier in the evening several of the "oldsters" remarked upon the prevalence of soft collars, often white silk ones, with dinner jackets.

One young man—he might have been a senior in "prep" school or a freshman in college—wore a red cummerbund instead of a waistcoat. Rather nice, too, it was, albeit very different. One young lady also chose to be different by wearing thick pink woolen mittens as she promenaded during the intermission; a strange note with her blue velvet gown and tiny corsage of pink rosebuds.

"The best Triangle club show I've ever seen," said Miss Suzanne Morris, a debutante of about five years ago and one of the most popular young women in town. "The worst Triangle club show I've ever seen," said another who probably has seen as many as Miss Morris. I don't agree with either. It was a good amateur show with sophisticated lines, so broad that those who have been out of college very long were a trifle shocked; a well trained chorus, and attractive costumes.

The Eli Bates party was not a debutante ball, but all the debutantes were there: Miss Betty Armour in the gold gown she wore at her debut tea at the Casino; Miss Mary Paul Welling, lovely in a brown tulle dress trimmed with narrow gold ribbon, a dress exactly like the one Miss Frances Bell was wearing; Miss Sally Jane Crowder, charming in bouffant white lace with green orchids at her breast and in her dark hair; Miss Betty Lord, smart in black velvet; Miss Gertrude Smith in her beautiful debut gown, and Miss Frances Orcutt.

Other debutantes were Miss Helen Shoemaker with orchids in her hair; Miss Josephine Zeiss, in white tulle; Miss Frances Munson, beaued by young Weymouth Kirkland; Miss Laura Moyer, and all the others who make up Chicago's list of about fifty debutantes this season.

The Castle twins were there, one in pale blue tulle with darker blue ostrich tips in her lovely red hair, and the other in pale green, with darker green feathers in her equally lovely red hair. Which was Caroline and which was Josephine I do not know. Their escorts were young Edmund J. Doering and young Edwin A. Seipp.

Some of the others who enjoyed the party were Miss Evelyn Bouscaren and her fiancé, Malcolm Stevenson; Miss Florence Hermes, escorted by Ralph Chatillon; Miss Anne Rickcords, the young Potter Palmers, the Willett Gorhams, the John Hurleys, Miss Mary Alice Bacon, Miss Dorelle Moulton, the Harold Byron Smiths, Mrs. Reid Chatillon beaued by Alex McWilliams, Miss Frances Jeffery with Charles McWilliams, the John McWilliamses, Miss Evelyn Gordon, Miss Bonnie-Jean Clark, Miss Carol Bush, Miss Virginia Winston, Miss Jean Defrees, the young Barrett Wendells, the Corwith Hamills, Miss Annie May Henry and her fiancé, Michael Cudahy.

A New Dress for Dinner

A new dinner dress from the midseason collections features a flaming red wide suede belt, brief sleeves, deep vee neckline, unpressed pleats in the bodice and peg top fullness to the ankle length skirt. The skirt is slit in front and made with shallow hip pockets.

Sew-Your-Own Brigade Tackles Spring Fabrics

BY RHEA SEEGER.

Every year at this time you are tempted by cottons and linens and other summery stuff put on display to make you ambitious souls start a sewing binge. Making your own clothes is no longer news, but it is important news that more smart women than ever before make their own. So the bolts of new materials are being rolled down to skimpy remnants.

Crush resistant linen, achieved by no end of research, is really wrinkle proof. The salespeople will tie knots in the stuff while you stand and gasp. The colors are exceptionally good. The raspberry red shades are in. Grab them now, for no one but a laggard shopper knows the bitter disappointment of not finding this color available later in the year. Hop-sacking texture [the old gunny sack weave] is out all over the place. Stunning suits and dresses can be evolved with Shantung linen—a linen with a nubbed and thickened thread spaced throughout the fabric. See it in copper, beige, a heavenly shade of blue, and a melon pink if you want a thrill.

Printed linens and coarse cottons are running close to the gaudy silk prints. All the showings are irresistible. These silk prints are so gay and fresh and stimulating that even a beginner with the scissors and pins will essay a daytime dress in the new full skirted models. With a foolproof pattern, good eyesight, and a little imagination, no one need hesitate. The results are worth every cent and effort.

Fashion photograph . . . A wide, flaming red suede belt accents the waistline of this new dinner dress. Dull black crêpe is the material, and it is cut with brief sleeves, a deep vee neckline, and unpressed plaits in the bodice. The skirt has a peg top effect and hip pockets. It reaches the ankles and is slit directly in front. Similar models will be found in midseason showings now on display.

Serkin Exalts Happy Medium in Piano Style

BY EDWARD BARRY.

The final Thursday concert of the old year found Frederick Stock and the Chicago Symphony orchestra playing host to Rudolph Serkin, extraordinary Bohemian pianist, who last evening made his first appearance in this particular series. And for their own account Stock and the orchestra gave a performance of the Brahms Third symphony, which strengthened still further the conviction that the Brahms playing of the resident conductor and orchestra is of a quality to which no number of superlatives can do full justice.

Mr. Serkin's choice fell on the fifth concerto ["The Emperor"] of Beethoven, the very work he used for his Chicago debut at the Tuesday concerts two seasons ago. His conception of it has grown noticeably in warmth. Last night's performance hit an admirable mean between coldly classical playing and the excessive freedom which would spoil the outlines of the first movement and reduce the second to a sentimental nocturne.

This greater warmth is not apparent in tone and tempo alone, but also in a certain direction and intensity which the pianist succeeds in giving to his phrases. There is a powerful sense of movement, of each passage being finely chiseled in itself and yet implying and demanding the one which is to follow.

Mr. Serkin was enthusiastically received and compelled to add an encore. It turned out to be—of all things— the Mendelssohn "Rondo Capriccioso"! The piano students in the hall must have been no more amazed at the tempo of the piece as a whole than by the revelation of what tonal distinction and great clarity could do with the expressive introduction.

The Brahms Third symphony, so shadowed and regretful despite its dominant air of verve and confidence, received a performance which forbore to make brilliant the clouded richness of its tone colorings. This admirable restraint was apparent, too, in Mr. Stock's treatment of the symphony's general movement, in his successful striving for long lines and for tempi which would carry the composer's thought nobly along without pushing or overemphasis.

Lichine Ballet Makes Use of Modern Dance

BY CECIL SMITH.

Last night's performance of "Francesca da Rimini," the third and last in the current engagement of the De Basil Ballet Russe at the Auditorium theater, further strengthened the impression of its power and significance. The ballet, a novelty this year, is the first work of major scope and importance created by David Lichine, young principal dancer of the Ballet Russe.

Not the least remarkable aspect of the new ballet is the unprecedented extent to which it draws frankly upon the vocabulary of the modern dance, that branch of the art elaborated by Martha Graham and Doris Humphrey. Lichine's indebtedness to these innovators can sometimes be seen both in actual steps and in mass choreography. On the whole, however, the relationship is more general. It lies in a general disdain for the insistence upon lightness and elevation found in the genuine ballet style, and in a corresponding attempt to communicate the heavier impact of opposing masses of dancers.

Perhaps "Francesca da Rimini" is a move toward healing the breach that has existed between the art of the ballet and that of the modern dance. What a magnificent theater idiom could be evolved if these two jealous groups could be persuaded to bury the hatchet!

English Cathedral Will Hold Film Service Test

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Dec. 30.—Talkies will be shown for the first time in an English cathedral on Jan. 9 when a movie program will be included in the services at Chichester cathedral. Church dignitaries will attend to decide whether the movie service experiment should be extended to other cathedrals. Religious films are being shown on Sundays in many churches throughout the country.

'Vita Woman' Successor to 'Glamor Girl'

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

[Copyright: 1937: By The Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Syndicate, Inc.]

We hadn't heard that a requiem had been sung over the "glamor girl," but the way that poor word has been overworked would entitle it to a long sleep under the sod. But we have heard there is a new phrase to take the place of the rumored deceased. We don't know how responsible concert star Lucille Manners is for its coinage, but her name is presented in sponsorship. It's the "Vita woman." Vita hardly has the air of lure, mystery and promise that the overworked "glamor" has, but its meaning, it appears to us, has more consistency with the great majority of women.

This vita woman has vitality and vigor. And, we hear, she is the answer to masculine prayers for delivery from the femme who mistook real glamor for dumb inscrutability, little show of intelligence, if any, and a manner patterned after the mystery of a sick cat.

Men are tired of that type, Lucille declares. They want a woman who can laugh with them, talk with them, pep them up. And here's where vitality and vigor will serve you well, girls!

To describe further the vita girl as she is presented to us:

She is not afraid to show her emotions. She laughs heartily and will join in a conversation that is deeper than the crust on the pie. She has animation. She has naturalness. She is buoyant and she keeps up with world affairs.

Naturally, you cannot expect an overnight transition, so the vita person may and does keep on using her makeup freely, but she differs in that it is her clean, freshly scrubbed look in which she takes her great pride and maintains it at an always even keel.

She dances like a co-ed, we learn. And she walks like a panther, and if you want a couple of names typical of the new charmer, Miss Manners offers you Katharine Hepburn and Junoesque Bess Johnson, radio actress.

Anyway, we offer you news as it comes to us in our wanderings, and if you don't like the vita woman you can just go on being the glamorous honey your beloved is convinced you are.

Dr. Luckhardt Awarded Dental Fraternity Medal

Dr. Arno B. Luckhardt, professor of physiology at the University of Chicago and discoverer of the anesthetic gas ethylene, was awarded a medal last night at a banquet of Alpha Omega, dental fraternity, in the Congress hotel. The tolerance medal of Pi Alpha Phi fraternity was awarded posthumously last night to Newton D. Baker at a banquet in the Palmer house. Gen. Charles G. Dawes accepted the award on behalf of the Baker family.

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

There's something about going to bed at night with a net on your hair that's not exactly glamorous. But it is, for most of us, a matter of necessity. And here's one way to take some of the horror out of it: Use one of the pretty perfumed nets that recently have arrived in town. You've no idea, until you've used one, what a difference the delicate perfume and the pretty pastel color make.

These are of fine but strong net, exactly the right design for holding hair perfectly without binding or looking frowzy. They really look quite trim. They're scented with charming fragrances—a perfume you yourself are pleasantly conscious of while you're wearing one and a scent that clings slightly to your locks. You'll feel set up about the whole idea.

The hair shops have been in a terrific dither this week. Seems as if women have been worrying more about the way their hair will look tomorrow night than about their gowns or their good resolutions for the new year.

Gala hairdresses seem to be in demand, with picturesque effects achieved not only with skilful arrangement but with a wide variety of ornaments. Light, airy pieces like butterflies and tiny bows are popular, but fresh flowers seem to be most popular. A single calla lily, tucked in smoothly coiled jet black hair, was a recent sensation.

The supply of iridescent and gold and silver powder is nearly exhausted, but more will arrive fairly soon. And then your hair, like your gown, can be glittering!

Bar Mendelssohn Music in Germany's Shakespeare

LUCKENWALDE, Germany, Dec. 30.—(AP)—Anti-semitism manifested itself again in Germany today, this time knocking out Mendelssohn's time honored incidental music to Shakespeare's "Midsummer Night's Dream." Theo Knobel, young Nazi composer, wrote substitute music which critics said was "folk song like and melodious, avoiding difficult harmonies." Knobel's music is to supplant the Jewish Mendelssohn's throughout Germany.

According to CULBERTSON

STEERING DECLARER INTO A DITCH.

[Copyright: 1937: By Ely Culbertson.]

After a player has thoroughly mastered the technique of bridge [no mean task!] he is ready to move into the even more difficult, but vastly more entertaining, realm of bridge psychology. Here he will find scope for whatever flights of imagination, or mental legerdemain, of which he is capable. He will learn that the soundest technique must, at times, be set aside in favor of so-called desperation plays, these, of course, being attempted only when fighting with one's back to the wall. The play that East made in the hand shown below, for instance, is not one that can be learned from the ordinary textbook.

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 diamond	Pass	1 spade	Pass
2 spades	Pass	3 spades	Pass
4 spades	Pass	Pass	Pass

West opened the three of hearts. East won with the king and made a lightning calculation of his own trick-taking possibilities. From his partner's fourth best lead he could see that only two heart tricks would be available. Dummy's diamond and club holdings made it obvious that tricks in those suits would be out of the question. Thus it became a simple problem of winning two trump tricks if the contract was to be defeated. But East, with the K-J in his own hand and the queen in sight in dummy, realized [a] that declarer probably had five or six trumps to the ace-10-9, and [b] that, with that holding, the correct method of play is to take successive finesses through East. East further knew that the declarer was a good enough player to employ this correct technique. The only way declarer could be talked out of this proper line of play would be by East's introducing a new factor into the picture that would cause the declarer to change to a different and, from his point of view, safer plan of trump play. Needless to say, these cogitations on East's part took only a few seconds. So when East, after winning with the heart king, returned the eight of diamonds directly up to dummy's tenace, the declarer could not know what was in East's mind. East's diamond play strongly indicated a singleton, and East's hope, apparently, was that West could win an early spade trick and give him a diamond ruff.

As a defense against this, declarer did precisely what East had hoped he would do, and what almost every other declarer, expert or otherwise, would do. Capturing West's diamond queen with the king, he played a small spade to his ace and returned the ten in an effort to remove the outstanding trumps as quickly as possible. East gleefully gobbled up his king and jack and cashed the heart ace for the setting trick. Then, unable to resist a little gloating, he showed declarer the other diamond in his hand!

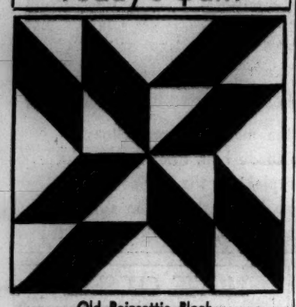
Today's Quilt



Old Poinsettia Block.

Patterns of this design are 5 cents, stamps or coin. Address Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, or call at one of the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street or Tribune Tower.

BY NANCY CABOT.

Now that the rush and roar of the holiday season has passed, it is an excellent idea to prepare for the one to come. "Old Poinsettia Block" is the type of simple pieced design which should be started now to be completed by the time the next holiday season rolls around. There is an undefinable charm about any home when the appointments are in keeping with the season. Since quilts are hand made there is no reason for not having several changes of ped coverlets. The "Old Poinsettia Block" is a 12 inch square which may be pieced with rapidity. It is set together in an alternate arrangement with plain blocks and surrounded by a narrow three inch border and a one-half inch bias binding.

Tale Bearing Friend Must Be Discarded

BY DORIS BLAKE.

[Copyright: 1937: By The Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Syndicate, Inc.]

"I hear strange gossip from a friend about my husband running around with another woman. I can't believe it, and I don't want to believe it, I guess, because we have three children and I wouldn't want them ever to suspect their father of not being right. They adore him now and he is so good to them, I just can't believe that another woman could get him away from them. But he does stay out late on certain evenings of the week, and offers no satisfactory explanation when he returns. I am sick about the whole thing, as I feel there must be something or my friend wouldn't keep telling me what she hears. I couldn't bring myself to follow my husband, but my friend is willing to do this for me and report to me. What is the wisest thing for a wife to do under the circumstances? Mrs. X."

First thing, Mrs. X., that we'd recommend would be to dismiss the informer as a friend. Whether your husband is stepping out or not, a real friend wouldn't come bearing tales to you. It is not the office of a friend. Her function would be to protect you from hearing anything that would cause you unhappiness. We think there ought to be a special law by which such a type of friend would be punished for her interference. She can't have kindly motives, knowing you have your family to protect and that you intend to see your marriage through regardless of a mate's possible misdemeanors.

If she were a friend, she might go to the husband and suggest that he is making you unhappy and plead with him to be more loyal to his home and family. But, even here, it might be better to play the hands-off policy. She is a busybody and a snoop to offer to trail you: man and report. Better get her out of your life quickly. Then fight your problem yourself without letting any one into your confidence.

You know your man best. You know best the way to handle him in an emergency of the sort. You know whether to pretend not to see, hear, or know anything. Or, if he is another kind of character, you know whether to serve notice on him that you won't stand for his flirtations. Maybe that so-called friend of yours is causing your man to seek company away from home. Anyway, think and work your problem out alone, and here's hoping your confidence in your man is restored quickly.

The Modern Housewife

BY EDITH WEIGLE.

Teapots can be temperamental. Some of them won't pour into the cup without dripping on the table. Others have tops that fall off when the pot is tipped. Still others pour and tilt well enough, but refuse to keep the tea hot.

Now there is a new teapot made to conquer these little outbursts. The spout really pours. And the back of the teapot is canted over, slightly, handle and all, so the lid cannot possibly come crashing into your cup. It's all made of pottery, too, so the tea stays hot.

These modernized joys for tea drinkers come in light yellow, in deep blue, in orange, red and green pottery. And they cost much less than $2.

[For information about these items telephone Edith Weigle, Tribune Public Service office, Superior 0100.]

Field Museum Has Good Year Despite Reduced Revenues

Of the 1937 attendance of 1,280,000 visitors to the Field Museum of Natural History only 90,000, or about 7 per cent, paid the 25 cent admission charge required of adults four days a week. Admission is free to the general public on Thursdays, Saturdays, and Sundays.

Clifford C. Gregg, who became director of the institution following the death of Stephen C. Simms in January, said that the most extensive additions to the exhibits were in the zoölogy department. Three groups of African birds and five habitat groups of mammals were completed, including white tailed gnu and klipspringers—tiny African antelopes.

Due to continued shortage of museum revenues, expeditions of the year were limited to comparatively small scale, although highly effective, operations.

The museum will be closed New Year's day.

College Club.

The Chicago College club will hold open house from 4 to 7 o'clock tomorrow at the clubhouse, 196 East Delaware place. Mrs. Edith M. Lewis, president, will receive, assisted by members of the junior group, and tea will be served.

Knollwood Country Club to Welcome New Year

The Knollwood Country club will give a New Year's eve party at 10 o'clock. The reservations have been limited to 125. The Lake Shore Athletic club will have about 1,000 guests at its party tonight. The Beverly Hills Center of the Infant Welfare society is giving a benefit supper party, the Ballyhoo ball, tonight in the Louis XVI. room of the Hotel Sherman.

Finke will be his brother's best man, and ushering will be Walter Boyd of Saginaw, Mich., Friedrich Heineken, George Seaberg, and a cousin of the bride, Robert Greenlee.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Shaw will arrive from Darien, Conn., today for the wedding.

The Charles W. McNears gave a cocktail party yesterday for Miss Greenlee, Mr. Finke, and Capt. and Mrs. S. Warren Towle Jr. [Janice McNear], who are here for a few days from their home in Montgomery, Ala.

Bridal Dinners at North Shore Clubs.

The Onwentsia club gave up its plans for its usual New Year's eve party because of the many other festivities planned for tonight. The only persons who will say farewell to 1937 at the Onwentsia will be the sixty guests of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph H. Poole at the bridal dinner they will give for their daughter, Nancy, and Joseph E. Rich. The Rich-Poole wedding will take place tomorrow.

The Indian Hill club, too, will be the setting for a private instead of a club party tonight, for John Robert Leonard is giving the bridal dinner there for Miss Harriet Leonard and William A. Turpin, who will be married tomorrow.

Mr. and Mrs. Keith Brown have invited about twenty guests to spend New Year's eve with them in their new house in Wheaton.

The Cliff Dwellers will celebrate New Year's eve at the club with a supper-dance.

Miss Abbie Talmadge, whose brother, Tom Talmadge, was president of the Cliff Dwellers for several years, is to be in charge of tea at the club this afternoon. Pouring will be Mrs. Walter S. Brewster, Mrs. Arthur Bissell, Mrs. Henry K. Webster, Mrs. Edward L. Ryerson, Mrs. Frances Badger, and Miss Jessica Hambleton.

Gay Party Tonight at Saddle and Cycle.

The Saddle and Cycle will be filled with merrymakers tonight. The young Potter Palmers, the Robert Stevensons, Mrs. De Koven Phelps, the James Ward Thornes, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert E. Schwarz, the Freeman Hinckleys, the Lynn Williamses, the Bowman C. Lingles, Mr. and Mrs. Hopewell Rogers, and the Joseph H. Kings are among the members who have reserved large tables.

Tomorrow night Mr. and Mrs. Potter Palmer III. are giving a dinner-dance at the Racquet club for about 100.

About 100 will celebrate New Year's eve at the Racquet club, where the John J. Mitchells and their friends, the Lucius A. Mannings, will give a supper party.

"The Candy Pullers," a group of friends which meets every Saturday afternoon all winter to play bridge or listen to football returns, will greet the new year at a dinner-dance at the Fortnightly club. Some in the group are the John C. Pitchers, the Newton Perrys, the Watson Armours, the Hampden Winstons, the Bruce Borlands, Mr. and Mrs. James C. Hutchins, the George Ranneys, and the Frank Hibbards.

Out in Lake Forest a group of friends will hold a Dutch treat supper-dance this evening at the John Payne Kelloggs' home.

A gay party in Winnetka tonight will be one the Lanning and Henry MacFarlands will give at the Lanning MacFarlands' home in Rosewood avenue. The 100 guests have been asked to appear dressed as the characters they would like to be.

The Junior Assembly will be given tonight at the Casino.

Dance for Juniors of Colony Club.

The juniors of the University Colony club will have a dance tonight at the Quadrangle club. Among the dinners being given before the party is one the Quincy Wrights will give for their subdebutante daughter, Rosalind.

The Henry H. Porters are leaving Lake Forest for their home at Lake Geneva for the new year week-end, taking the Winston Eltings with them. They have invited a number of friends up for winter sports on New Year's day.

The junior Robert Whites are others who are going to their country homes for the week-end. They are taking some friends with them to spend several days in their cabin at Dune Acres, hoping to have some good skating.

A great disappointment to those ski enthusiasts who anticipated spending the week-end at La Crosse at the Snow Chase club is the cancelation of the trip because there is not enough snow for skiing. Eighty-four members of the new club had made reservations. Mrs. Reid Chatillon, who had planned a small luncheon at home today for some of the skiers before taking the train, will give her party.

The Philip Wyatt Moores always have open house on New Year's eve, and some of the Snow Chase members will meet each other there tonight.

Mr. and Mrs. John Chester Fischbeck arrive today from Florida to spend the week-end with Mrs. Fischbeck's sister, Mrs. James Allen Turner. Mrs. Fischbeck is the former Ann Mather-Smith. Mrs. Turner will give a luncheon for her sister and brother-in-law tomorrow noon at her home in Winnetka.

The engagement between Miss Veronese Beatty, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ross J. Beatty of Highland Park, and Dudley Nostrand of New York has been broken by mutual consent.

Engagements Announced

Mrs. Henry Paulman of 4845 Kenwood avenue announces the engagement of her daughter, Jayne, to John Flint Dille Jr., son og Mr. and Mrs. John Flint Dille of Evanston. Miss Paulman was graduated from the University of Chicago last June and was a member of Mortar Board. Mr. Dille also attended the University of Chicago.

Mr. and Mrs. James W. Frazier of Charleston, Ill., announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Virginia Frazier of Evanston, to Harry C. Barry, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Barry of Cornwall, Ont. Miss Frazier attended Dana Hall in Wellesley, Mass., and Northwestern university. Mr. Barry attended Syracuse university and received a degree at Admiralty Law, Columbus, O. After their wedding next spring Mr. Garry and his bride will make their home in Toronto.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Babrove announce the engagement of their daughter, Marjorie, to Marvin Bell, son of Mrs. Lena Bell.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph J. P. Cohen, 5472 Everett avenue, announce the engagement of their daughter, Alice Marjorie, to Isadore Edmund Alexander, son of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Alexander, 5110 Kenwood avenue.

FINDS ONE NIGHT STOPS IN TRAILER GIVE NO LEISURE

Keep Busy Making Beds and Washing Dishes.

This is another of a series of articles by Hal Foust, automobile editor of The Tribune, on a trailer trip in the south with his family.

BY HAL FOUST.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Trailer Camp, Sarasota, Fla., Dec. 30.—[Special.]—After a rest of several days in the leisure of trailer camp life the Tribune automobile is prepared to resume travels in the morning, towing the one room cabin behind it. There isn't any leisure in touring with one night stops when you make your own beds, cook your own meals, and wash your own dishes. This was learned in rolling our own 2,360 miles from Chicago.

If, like most of the 25 million automobile owners in America, you've thought about taking a trailer trip without having done so, you can get a good idea of what it is like in your own home. Into a large bathroom or into a kitchenette move two folding beds, a folding table, a cooking grill, a heater, an ice box, a couple of days' groceries, and a supply of summer and winter clothing for two or three persons. Then try living in this one room.

Stop Cooking Noon Meal.

In the first few days of our trailer life optimism charged all inconveniences and annoyances to inexperience. My wife and 9 year old daughter and I studiously applied ourselves to developing a routine that would save time and effort.

The first time saver was to stop preparing our own noonmeal.

In the morning blankets, sheets, and pillows are stowed under the beds. One bed is folded into a davenport and the other into two Pullman seats with a demountable table between them. During these preparations, rather awkward in the cramped quarters, coffee is heating on one electric burner and water on another.

And then the bacon and eggs are tossed into a skillet while I run for another kettle of water to be heated while we're eating. After breakfast, dishes must be cleaned and put away, the groceries packed for riding, the windows all closed, and the electric exterior extension wire coiled and brought in.

Lock Up Trailer; Off in Rush.

We lock the trailer and we're off in a rush—about an hour and a half after having dressed. Bathing and shaving? Well, we did brush our teeth.

In the evening, after finding a campsite, the electricity is connected. You walk for your water. And probably take another walk to buy some missing grocery item. After cooking dinner and washing dishes, the Pullman seats and the davenport must be converted into beds.

Maybe it's just as much work keeping house in a five room apartment or bungalow. But in a conventional residence a husband has a better chance keeping away from these activities.

CONN ANNOUNCES CANDIDACY FOR COURT CLERKSHIP

Springfield, Ill., Dec. 30.—[Special.]—Robert L. Conn of Springfield, for the last five years managing editor of the Illinois Bar Journal, announced his candidacy today for the Republican nomination for clerk of the Appellate court of the Third district in the primary on April 12.

Robert L. Conn.

He has an unusually large acquaintance among lawyers of the state as a result of his service for more than two decades as deputy clerk of the Illinois Supreme court. As the Third Appellate district includes thiry-five counties in a central belt stretching across the state, these friendships are considered a material aid to his candidacy.

Conn is a former newspaper man. In his youth he was employed on Springfield papers and later became editor and co-publisher of the Rantoul Press and, subsequently, publisher of the Mount Pulaski Times. During the world war he was active in the Illinois militia reserve, particularly in recruiting work. He represented the Springfield Rotary club at the Vienna convention in 1931 and in 1932 was elected district governor of Rotary International. He is an officer of the Westminster Presbyterian church and has been active in civic affairs.

Schedule Shanahan Will Trial Despite Conferences

Judge Joseph Burke yesterday scheduled for 1938 the will contest for the $850,000 estate of the late David E. Shanahan, Illinois legislator. After conferring with Mrs. Helen Troesch Shanahan, the widow, and Miss Mary Flynn, a cousin, and their attorneys, Judge Burke said negotiations for a settlement would continue. The first trial of the suit of Miss Flynn and her sister, Margaret, to break the will, which left the estate to Shanahan's death-bed bride, resulted in a jury deadlock.

Ex-Senator Heflin Better; Not Yet Out of Danger

Lafayette, Ala., Dec. 30.—(AP)—Dr. N. A. Wheeler said today former Senator J. Thomas Heflin, suffering from lobar pneumonia, was much improved, but not yet out of danger.

332 Arrested in 1937 by Finger Prints, Say Police

Finger prints in the police bureau of identification brought about the arrest of 332 persons and made possible identification of 115 injured or dead persons during 1937, Chief Inspector Emmett Evans disclosed yesterday in his annual report. Of 41,032 prisoners whose prints were examined, 18,891 were found to have police records. Detectives searched for finger prints at the scenes of 1,987 burglaries, and in 218 cases used them in investigations.

NURSE'S DEATH HELD ACCIDENTAL.
A coroner's jury returned a verdict of accident yesterday in the death of Miss Hildred Seitsinger, 42 years old, a world war nurse, who died in Hines hospital of an overdose of a sleeping drug.

BLACKHAWKS RALLY TO TIE RED WINGS, 2-2

DODSON BEATS HORTON SMITH FOR GOLF TITLE

Shoots 71 to Win by Three Strokes.

Hollywood, Fla., Dec. 30.—[Special.]—Garrulous Leonard Dodson, the cigar smoking youth who has sometimes been called the Dizzy Dean of professional golf, today defeated his one time teacher, Horton Smith, in a special eighteen hole playoff for the Hollywood open championship. The two had tied with 278 at the conclusion of the regulation seventy-two holes yesterday.

Leonard Dodson.

Dodson earned first money of $750 by shooting a 34—37—71, one over par, while Smith, who turned in 38—36—74, took second prize of $550.

Dodson was introduced to golf by Smith while still a caddy in Springfield, Mo., Horton's home town. Smith now registers from the Oak Park Country club of Oak Park, Ill., but Dodson still calls Springfield home.

In the three way playoff for the first amateur prize, Miami's policeman-golfer, Earl Christiansen, shot the best golf of the day, a one under par, 69, to beat out young Bobby Servis of Dayton, O., and Charley Mayo Jr., son of the veteran Long Island professional. Servis finished the eighteen with a 72, while Mayo needed a 73.

Second Important Victory.

Dodson has been a contender in many tournaments, but today marked his second important victory, he having won the 1936 St. Petersburg open. It was the third time this year that Smith's famed putting touch had deserted him in a playoff. Horton lost an extra inning argument in the 1937 St. Petersburg tournament to Harry Cooper and Ralph Guldahl. In September, the lanky Missourian tied Guldahl for the western open crown but was shut out in the playoff.

The cards for the playoff:

Par—Out	435	344	544—36
Par—In	435	343	444—34—70
Dodson—Out	534	344	443—34
Smith—Out	544	445	354—38
Dodson—In	545	344	444—37—71
Smith—In	445	344	444—36—74

Smith's Putting Is Off.

Smith's putter played him false on the front nine and he reached the turn four strokes down to Dodson, who collected three birdies and a bogey going out. Leonard hooked his tee shot into the trees at the tenth, and yielded a stroke, but the remaining holes were halved with six pars and two bogies.

The $550 second prize boosted Smith from sixth to fifth place in golf purse winnings for 1937.

Smith's $8,448.73 total sent him ahead of Johnny Revolta, but left him far behind the $14,138.69 earned by Harry Cooper, the year's low average scorer.

Cooper averaged 71.62 strokes for eighty-two P. G. A. approved rounds of golf. Cooper won five tournaments—the Los Angeles, Houston, St. Petersburg, True Temper [Philadelphia], and Canadian opens—and shared first place with Smith in the Inverness and Oklahoma City fourball meets.

Metz Makes Good Showing.

Fred J. Corcoran, P. G. A. tournament bureau manager, who released the final figures, said six golfers earned more than the $7,800 Smith did last year in leading the pro caravan.

Corcoran said the finest showing of all, however, was made by Dick Metz of Chicago, who did not finish among the top twelve money leaders. Metz won $4,100 after being out of action almost six months as the result of an automobile accident.

Final figures for the twelve leaders:

Harry Cooper, Chicopee, Mass.	$14,138.69
Henry Picard, Hershey, Pa.	10,866.58
Sam Snead, White Sulphur Springs, W. Va.	10,243.73
Ralph Guldahl, Coral Gables, Fla.	8,672.23

FARRAGUT BEATS HARPER IN LAST MINUTE OF PLAY

Von Steuben, Tilden and Parker Win.

Tourney Facts

YESTERDAY'S RESULTS.

Parker, 20; Calumet, 16.
Tilden, 31; Tuley, 26.
Von Steuben, 28; Crane, 21.
Farragut, 21; Harper, 20.

TONIGHT'S GAMES.

7 o'clock—Parker vs. Tilden.
8 o'clock—Von Steuben vs. Farragut.

Parker, Tilden, Von Steuben, and Farragut reached the semi-finals of the University of Chicago High school basketball tournament by victories yesterday afternoon and last night. The climax of the quarter-finals was Farragut's 21 to 20 triumph over Harper.

The Harper-Farragut game was the background for a battle between two cutstanding players of the tournament, Capt. Euvin Dusak of Farragut and Harper's captain, Eric Plahn. With the score 20 to 20 and ten seconds to play, Plahn fouled Dusak. Calmly stepping to the free throw line, Dusak sank the shot for the first one point victory of the meet.

Dusak Gets 13 Points.

Dusak made 13 of his team's 21 points, many of his shots being one handed throws which evaded Harper defensive tactics. His total is 39 points, the highest individual score for the three rounds of play.

Farragut took a 7 to 3 lead in the first quarter, but dropped behind, 11 to 8, by the end of the half. At the three-quarter mark Harper still was ahead three points. Keying up the pace in the last period Farragut managed to tie Harper.

Farragut Faces Von Steuben.

Farragut will meet Von Steuben and Parker will face Tilden in the semi-finals.

Von Steuben overcame Crane, 28 to 21, in the first game of the evening after trailing 15 to 13 at the half. Neither team was outstanding but both played a hard consistent and rather careful game. The Von Steuben victory was a reflection of a well balanced team with a strong defense which the Crane quintet was seldom able to pierce.

The driving force of the Von Steuben offense was Bernard Weksler, husky center, who made seven points. Ivan Hechtman of Von Steuben led the scoring with ten points.

Parker Beats Calumet.

In the opening game of the quarter finals, Parker upset Calumet, the defending champion, 20 to 16. Parker, slated to be the underdog, played a fast consistent game throughout. After trailing for the first three quarters, a drive early in the last period gave Parker six more points to bring the score to a 16 to 16 tie. With one and one quarter minutes to go Jorgensen of Parker sank a long shot and a few seconds later his teammate Black added another, leaving Calumet four points behind.

Don Budge Is Voted A. A. U. Trophy for Sportsmanship

New York, Dec. 30.—[Special.]—Don Budge, the world's greatest amateur tennis player who was voted the outstanding athlete of the year, today was declared the winner of the James E. Sullivan Memorial trophy for 1937. This award annually is given by the Amateur Athletic union to the one who by his performance, example and influence as an amateur and as a man has done the most during the last year to advance the cause of sportsmanship.

Don Budge.

The decision was reached by a tribunal of 600 sportsmen throughout the United States. The results of the poll were announced by the Sullivan Memorial committee. The balloting was not even close. Budge drew 1,393 points, almost twice that attained by his runner-up, Don Lash, the distance running star, who, in turn, had almost a corresponding margin over Miss Katherine Rawls, versatile swimmer.

Committee Cuts List to Ten.

The voting was on a 5-3-1 basis with members of the tribunal expressing a preference for their first three choices in order. Originally the tribunal had submitted 29 names, but the committee pared that down to ten, arbitrarily eliminating those who either had insufficient preliminary ballots or who otherwise did not come up to requirements.

Budge, invincible during the regular campaign, during which he won the Davis cup for the United States almost single handedly, made a runaway of the competition as he obtained the highest number of votes ever cast, with the exception of Bobby Jones in the year in which the golf star scored his grand slam.

Budge's citation emphasized not only his victories, at home and abroad, but characterized his "general demeanor on and off the tennis courts as a big factor in promoting international good will."

"His perseverance and courage," it was added, "were demonstrated in the interzone Davis cup final at Wimbledon when, with the count at two sets all and Baron Gottfried von Cramm of Germany, leading in games by 4-1, Budge rallied to win the match and enable America to challenge England for the cup.

"Budge has upheld the amateur code in the face of flattering offers to turn professional."

How They Were Rated.

Here is the final order:

1. J. Donald Budge, American and Wimbledon tennis champion, 1,398.
2. Don Lash, holder of indoor and outdoor world two mile records, 704.
3. Katherine Rawls, most versatile woman swimmer in A. A. U. history, 425.
4. Archie San Romani, Olympian and one of the world's greatest milers, 293.
5. Adolph Kiefer, the Olympic back stroke champion and world record holder, 164.
6. Ralph Flanagan, America's outstanding distance swimmer and world record holder, 161.
7. Bill Sefton, co-holder of the new world pole vault record, 156.
8. Stewart Iglehart, top ranking polo and ice hocky player, 122.
9. Hank Luisetti, brilliant Stanford university basketball player, 109.
10. Ben Johnson, intercollegiate sprint champion, 89.

Centenary Is Beaten, 53-26, by De Paul

The De Paul university basketball team passed the halfway point in its current season last night by defeating Centenary college, 53 to 26, in the De Paul gymnasium. Of the eleven games played thus far De Paul has won seven and lost four. Ten games remain to be played.

Centenary enjoyed a first minute lead of 1 to 0 on Bill Snyder's free throw, but Pat Howlett's basket overcame that advantage, and from then on it was merely a question of how high the De Paul score would soar.

It had mounted to 24 to 13 proportions at half time, with Howlett and Ed Norris the most effective factors in the attack with three baskets each. Snyder, who prepared for collegiate basketball by playing in high school at Evansville, Ind., offered most of Centenary's resistance, sinking three shots and adding another free throw to his successful opening attempt.

De Paul resumed its attack in the second half and, but for frequent substitutions, might have accomplished an even higher total. Centenary, in the midst of a prolonged midwestern tour, plainly showed the effects of that travel. Bob Neu was high scorer for De Paul with eleven points. Snyder led Centenary with sixteen. Lineup:

O-O-F! LONDOS IS BACK—AND DOES BRUNS KNOW IT!

Jim Londos, former heavyweight wrestling champion, threw Bobby Bruns of Oak Park with an airplane spin at the Coliseum last night. The time was 43 minutes 41 seconds. A crowd of 4,333 watched the show.

The victory was the eleventh Londos has scored in twelve appearances he has made in this country on his current comeback tour. Londos, who was introduced as the champion of Europe, was making his first Chicago start in nearly three years.

Shows Old Skill.

The match had gone only a few minutes when it was apparent that the ex-champion possessed all of his old skill. He broke hold after hold to keep the upper hand most of the time.

Throughout the match, which was scheduled for one hour and a half, Londos worked on his opponent's legs, taking turns at clamping stepover and double toe holds.

Londos retained his old showmanship too. Consequently Bruns made an impressive showing.

Lee Wykoff, Kansas City, Kas., defeated Fred Grubmier in the last of the preliminary bouts. Grubmier conceded the match after 20:41.

Jim McMillen Wins.

Jim McMillen threw Pat McCleary in 14:56.

In other matches Ruffy Silverstein tossed Rudy Kay in 7:58, Chief Thunderbird pinned Whitey Govro in 8:35, and Jack Conley and Al Williams went 20 minutes to a draw.

NOTRE DAME FIVE TO INVADE N. U. COURT TONIGHT

Wildcats' Lineup Changed for Game.

The Northwestern-Notre Dame basketball rivalry will be renewed tonight at Patten gymnasium before a capacity crowd of 6,000. Tickets will be available until game time, according to Ted Payseur, university ticket manager.

Tonight's game will be the 22d in a series that started in 1927 and which finds Notre Dame holding an edge of 11 victories to 9 for the Wildcats. One game ended in a tie. The Irish added to their lead by winning last week's game at South Bend by a score of 30 to 27.

Few athletic rivalries have produced the thrills of the Wildcat-Irish series. Fifteen of the 21 games have been decided by margins of four points or less. The total points scored by the two teams finds Notre Dame leading, 547 points to 546.

N. U. in Scoring Slump.

With John Moir and Eddie Sadowski setting the scoring pace, Notre Dame rolled up six victories this season before being stopped by Illinois. Paul Nowak, 6 foot 6 inch center, has been another strong cog in the Irish attack.

Northwestern has been in an offensive slump ever since the Pittsburgh game three weeks ago. After losing to the Panthers, 27 to 22, the Wildcats dropped successive games to Notre Dame and Butler. The Northwestern attack has bogged down ever since the first game of the season when it rolled up 53 points against Carleton.

Some of Northwestern's reverses can be attributed to injuries. The team has been without the services of Mike McMichael, accurate shooting forward, who sprained an ankle in a touch football game last fall. Jake Nagode, veteran center, sustained a hip injury in the Pitt game that kept him on the sidelines for several games and now Jim Currie, star guard, is incapacitated by a sprained ankle.

Smith Moves to Forward.

Coach Dutch Lonborg plans to make several changes in the Wildcat starting lineup in an effort to instill more punch into the attack. Jean Smith, regular center, will start at forward while Nagode will be moved into the starting pivot assignment. This pair will join with Capt. Fred Trenkle in the Wildcats' front line.

With Currie on the injured list the starting guards will be Bob Voigts, a letterman, and Ad Vance, a sophomore. The Wildcats have turned in a tight defensive game all season, holding opponents to 30 points or less despite the tendency to high scores as a result of the elimination of the center jump.

WISCONSIN VS. MISSOURI

Madison, Wis., Dec. 30.—[Special.]—Defeated in three out of five games so far this season, the Wisconsin basketball team will face Missouri in the fieldhouse tomorrow night.

The Badgers have lost twice to Marquette and once to Notre Dame. They defeated North Dakota and Pittsburgh. Coach Foster said this afternoon that Ernie Davis will replace the veteran Lee Mitchell at guard in the starting lineup.

It's Hotel Man Zuppke Now; Buys Share of Inn

Phoenix, Ariz., Dec. 30.—(AP)—Robert C. Zuppke, University of Illinois football coach, has purchased a block of stock in Camelback Inn, desert resort near here. For several winters Zuppke has come to Arizona to rest and paint desert and mountain scenes which have been widely exhibited.

In the Wake of the News

BY ARCH WARD.

THE Cubs and Sox will play almost everywhere except in Phoenix, Ariz., this spring. . . . Last April the Cubs stayed in the Phoenix Biltmore [minimum rate, $23 a day] and the theory has been presented that their blood was thickened by the delightful experience. . . . It is feared that they became sluggish and dreamy as a result thereof, so weakening themselves that they couldn't last out the 1937 championship campaign. . . . Tommy Jordan, Notre Dame's senior guard, is eagerly anticipating tonight's game with Northwestern at Evanston. . . . He tossed the winning basket for the Irish last New Year's eve to give Notre Dame a 24 to 23 victory. . . . His timely toss started a winning streak which has seen the South Bend five win 23 of its last 25 games. . . . John Reed Kilpatrick, big boss of Madison Square Garden, quoted Virgil while serving as toastmaster at a testimonial dinner for Frank Calder, president of the National Hocky league, on Dec. 22. . . . Half of his listeners knew about Virgil and the other half suspected he was a right winger from the Canadian amateur ranks. . . .

Sammy Baugh calls his Washington teammate, Cliff Battles, the greatest football player he ever has seen. . . . The University of Washington's freshman football star last fall was a full back named Bob McKeown, who stands 6 feet 4 inches and weighs 280 pounds.

First night gum-ups must be a terrible thing on the nerves of sports and other amusement impresarios. . . . There was an example at the recent opening of Sonja Henie at Chicago Stadium. . . . Jim Norris Sr., millionaire owner of the big red hall and backer of the Henie ice shows in Chicago and elsewhere, has passed through a hundred grain market flurries without batting an eye. . . . But as one thing after another went wrong at the ice show the first night, Mr. Norris was pacing up and down the ailes, scampering up and down steps, and on at least one occasion climbed over a box rail. . . . Walter Bates, Kansas City referee who has officiated in 4,406 boxing and wrestling matches, is I. J. Eagle, president of a large printing company, in private life. . . . Navy Bill Ingram, former coach, describes California's Rose Bowl representative as a team without a weakness.

Never Again.

We were crowded in the tavern,
Not a soul gave thought of sleep.

Big shots switched from gin to wine.

As the New Year kept on ageing
And my head began to sway,
I was carried out in silence
And knew nothing till next day.

What a headache I had gathered.
Even kittens stomped their feet.

Raised my right hand 'bove my ear,
Swore I'd never cup another—

Detroit, Mich., Dec. 30.—(AP)—For two periods tonight the Detroit Red Wings, National Hocky league champions, appeared headed for their fourth victory of the season. Then the Chicago Blackhawks launched a five man offensive that created a 2 to 2 tie which endured through a scoreless overtime session. The game was played before 8,000, the smallest crowd of the Detroit season.

The Red Wings, cellar occupants in the American division of the league, presented a tight defense, bolstered by the return of the injured Ebbie Goodfellow, and dominated play for the first half of the game. Alex Motter, recent acquisition from Boston, scored the first goal at 13:32 of the first period, and Syd Howe made the second, his first of the season, 1 minute and 28 seconds after the second period opened.

Hawks Open Up.

Meanwhile Norm Smith, the league's leading goalie last year, was performing brilliantly after a slump, and the Red Wings visioned their first victory in eight games. Manager Bill Stewart sent the Hawks on five man rushes even before the second period ended, and these drives brought results.

Paul Thompson started the Hawks' rally at 9:34 of the third period on a short shot while Smith was out of position after stopping Mush March's shot. Louis Trudell tied the score about three minutes later on another short shot that caught Smith's goal wide open.

Thereafter the Blackhawks successfully defended their tie despite Roger Jenkins' penalty in the overtime period for tripping Howe.

Motter Scores Goal.

Detroit started with a rush and Goalie Karakas was forced to make a dozen hard saves in the first three minutes. When Liscombe was penalized for tripping Brydson, the Hawks assumed the offensive, but alert Detroit defenders prevented them from getting a shot at Goalie Smith.

The Red Wings took the lead at 13:32. Goodfellow, playing his first game since mid-November, fired a long shot that bounced off Karakas' pads, and Motter skated in to poke home the rebound. Then Smith made a brilliant save on a shot by Gottselig after Jenkins had passed across the goal mouth. Motter almost had another goal on Hudson's rebound just before the first period ended.

Howe scored his goal at 1:28 of the second period to double Detroit's lead. Beattie passed the puck out from the corner and Howe caught Bruneteau's rebound.

Hawk Attacks Halted.

Trudell nearly beat Smith on a fast solo dash. The Detroit goalie dived out to smother the puck, but it rolled away and before the Hawks could get to it, Smith's defensemen cleared it. The Hawks got a chance when Orlando was penalized for interference, but Smith made an amazing stop on Gottselig's shot.

The Hawks opened the third period with five-man rushes but Smith blocked shots by Seibert and Thompson. Thompson finally broke the Chicago scoring famine at 9:34, poking the puck into an open net after Smith had smothered March's shot. Romnes also got an assist. Trudell shot the tying goal at 12:50, a short poke on passes from Dahlstrom and Jenkins.

SILVER SKATES! AN OPPORTUNITY FOR UNKNOWNS

Equality of Opportunity Proves Magnet.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

The major skating clubs which are now preparing for the meets tomorrow and Sunday at Humboldt park also are getting their list of entries ready for the Silver Skates Derbies, which will be held Jan. 15 and 16 at Garfield park lagoon. More than 500 boys and girls will be nominated by the Olympic Skating club, Midwest Skating club, Catholic Youth organization, Northwest Skating club, and Tilden Technical High school. The Latko Skating club already has submitted the names of twenty-three boys who will compete in the five boys' age classes.

The municipal playgrounds, board of education playgrounds, and the park playgrounds conducted by the Chicago Park district will back up this entry with more than a thousand contestants. While many of these organizations do not have Class A or Class AA skaters as designated by the Illinois Skating association, they will send many contestants into the lower age classes where experience is not required.

The forty major prizes, eight of them silver skates, will be won principally by skaters who until these prizes are awarded scarcely are known outside of their immediate neighborhoods. This equality of opportunity is the magnet which annually attracts the largest entry list for any skating event in the country.

Gold Medals to Be Given.

More than half of the list of contestants in Silver Skates each year do not belong to any club or organization. They enter not so much with expectation of winning a pair of skates, although frequently the boys' midget or juvenile championship goes to an unattached skater, but because the winner of each preliminary race is awarded a gold medal. More than 250 of these gold medals will be given to the boys and girls who win their preliminary races at Garfield park. Each contestant who reports for his qualifying trial also will receive a bronze button regardless of whether he qualifies for the semi-finals or finals.

The Illinois Skating association has the same age limitations for midget, juvenile, junior, intermediate, and senior classes as Silver Skates. THE TRIBUNE Derbies, however, do not recognize any of the senior divisions of the association which are based on number of points won in sanctioned meets. From the novice intermediate division, skaters advance to Class C when they have won sixty points. Points are awarded for first, second, and third on a scale of thirty, twenty, and ten points. Skaters then advance to Class B upon winning sixty points, and on the same basis they advance to Class AA and then to Class A.

Registration Facts.

Any registered skater competes in Silver Skates according to age, but when he has won a championship he must advance to the next age class regardless of age. Registration with the Illinois Skating association is not required until the age of 16. This registration may be made on the day of the Silver Skates Derbies. All contestants under 16 years of age—boys' midget, boys' juvenile, boys' junior, and girls' junior—may compete without registration with the Illinois Skating association.

Typical of the entry of younger skaters is that of Bill Carnduff, who will represent the Northwest Skating club in the Tribune's Silver Skates Derbies.

Ready to Make Bid.

Carnduff is a freshman at Marshall High school and has been skating two years. He previously has won a Chicago playground championship.

All contestants must remember that to be eligible for this year's Silver Skates races their names and ages must be submitted before midnight, Jan. 9. Individual entries may be sent in on the entry blank which appears daily in these columns. Forms have been prepared for team entries and these may be secured from the Illinois Skating association.

400 Skaters Will Race in Two Events

More than 400 Chicago speed skaters will compete in fifty races this week-end. The first of the events will be held tomorrow afternoon at Humboldt park, when the Sleipner club holds its 45th annual event. The Northwest club Derby, also at Humboldt park, is scheduled for Sunday.

Extensive drilling on the Humboldt park lagoon, where the ice is in good racing condition despite the weather, took place yesterday with the two rival teams—the C. Y. O. and the Northwest Skating club—working out together.

C. Y. O. Drills for Relay.

The C. Y. O. team, coached by Pete Miller, was practicing for the relay, which was won by the Northwest club last Sunday in the C. Y. O. Derby. The relay again is a feature in both of the week-end Derbies. The distance is two miles, with four men on each team.

The two meets probably will alter the individual standings of last Sunday. Vic Ronchetti, with 50 points, now leads. Schroeder is second with 40. Bob Sherman, Tony Neberz, and Bernie Cannata are tied for third place with 30 each and Bob Heckenbach has 20 points.

Mrs. Dyer Leads Women.

In the women's division, Mrs. Eleanor Thell Dyer has 60 points. Her two closest competitors, Misses Elaine Bogda and Shirley Jamison, have 30 each. Although it appears Mrs. Dyer is running away with the women's races on points, she had all she could do to beat Miss Bogda and Miss Jamison in the two events last Sunday in the C. Y. O. Derby.

MOVE WINDY CITY LEAGUE GAMES TO PARK CASINO

The Windy City Basketball league will play its games in the Park Casino, Madison street and Hamlin avenue, beginning next Tuesday. Harmon's Demons will face the Maciejewski Cicero Merchants, and the Chicago Hebrews will meet the Millers National five in the opening program in the league's new quarters.

Time, 1:12 4-5. Two dollar mutuels paid: R. Pinchot, $4.60 straight, $3.20 place, $2.50 show; Milk, $8.40 place, $15.80 show; Mill Pond, $4.00 show. Winner ch. g., 6, by Chatterton-Hurry Home. Owner, Cosgrave stable. Trainer, A. E. Alexander. Start good.

R. PINCHOT broke slowly, worked his way up, slipped through on inside and just got up to win in photo decision. MILK went a bit wide entering stretch but for this might have won. MILL POND ran good race. COUNT MAURICE is worth noting. ZEVANAID flash of early speed.

WISE FOX broke good, was rated along to the far turn where he took lead, opened a wide gap, but when PRESIDENTIAL came alongside, bumped him and then drew away, for which he was disqualified for foul. PRESIDENTIAL began to move up around turn, came to the outside in stretch and was going to win when he was bothered. SANDUSKY trailed far back for the first six furlongs, finished fast. STOP LIGHT had plenty of speed for seven furlongs. TOWN CAR ran well for half a mile. MOORISH improving.

ST. MORITZ broke slow but quickly ran into contention, forced his way through horses, assumed lead and won going away. DISTRACT, unfortunate in early part, was taken wide in stretch, finished with a rush. TUTTICURIO came through on inside and closed fast. WITAN was on the outside all the way. NIGHT RAVEN ran good race.

KINGSBURY, under a perfect ride, broke alertly, was sent to front, saved ground and outgramed BLIND PIG. Latter kept step with pace all the way but boy was of no help to him at finish. HEADIN HOME came with a rush in final furlong and was wearing leaders down. LADY HIGLOSS could not keep up at any part of the race. NO SIR performed poorly.

FAIR WEATHER IS PREDICTED FOR ROSE BOWL GAME

Alabama Likes Prospect of Dry Field.

Pasadena, Cal., Dec. 30.—(AP)—The weather man came through with a forecast today that eased the anxiety of Alabama's football entourage and some 89,000 fans who expect to sit in on the Rose Bowl game New Year's day. The weather man predicted fair weather.

People in southern California like to say, with a faint snicker, that the elements can mean little to California's Golden Bears, the inference being that they are used to anything. Whether true or not, the Bears probably would suffer less if a few drops of rain were to fall in the Rose Bowl Saturday, their running attack being what it is.

Alabama Likes Dry Field.

Alabama, on the other hand, would prefer a field dry and fast. The Alabama outfit makes no secret of its intention to take to the air, and a slippery ball is hard to throw and harder to catch.

Today the two squads went back to drill in the Rose Bowl, California holding forth with continued secrecy in a morning workout and Alabama taking the place over in the afternoon.

Henry Sparks, California reserve end, apparently will not be able to play because of a leg injury, and Jul Callaghan is being readied to step in when the regular end, Willard Dolman, needs a rest.

STARS END DRILL

San Francisco, Cal., Dec. 30.—(AP)—College football stars of 1937 completed training today for the annual East-West charity game here New Year's day. The forty-four stars comprise the pick of the country—from thirty colleges and universities scattered through twenty-one states.

The rival squads tapered off by running through plays on offense. The westerners, drilling at Palo Alto under Coaches Orin Hollingbery of Washington State college and Maj. Biff Jones of Nebraska, rehersed all assignments, particularly an aerial attack with which they hope to offset the stone wall line and ground power of the eastern team.

L. S. U. IS READY

Baton Rouge, La., Dec. 30.—(AP)—Louisiana State's Tigers brushed up on punts and place kicks today in a light drill for the Sugar Bowl football game Saturday.

"I believe we're ready," said Coach Bernie Moore, obviously pleased with the progress of his players after the workout.

The entire squad took part in practicing procedure on kickoffs. Later the players brushed up on offense, both on passing and running plays.

Coach Moore said he will choose a team captain for the Sugar Bowl after L. S. U.'s last light drill for Santa Clara tomorrow afternoon.

OWLS IN GOOD SHAPE

Dallas, Tex., Dec. 30.—(AP)—Not a major injury in a squad of 52 Rice institute Owls was reported as the players piled off a train here today and headed for a practice field to wind up work for Saturday's Cotton Bowl clash with undefeated Colorado.

Meanwhile Coach Bunny Oakes was busy denying rumors at Fort Worth, where the Colorado squad is working, that injuries would alter his starting lineup.

Threats of more rain today after a few hours of sunshine caused workmen to leave the tarpaulin on the gridiron and officials announced it would not be removed until an hour before the kickoff.

MOUNTAINEERS EASE UP

El Paso, Tex., Dec. 30.—(AP)—With Texas Tech's big squad due here tomorrow, the Sun Bowl football picture was about complete tonight—save for picking a winner.

Though Tech reigned a slight favorite in its home territory, the betting odds made neither Tech nor West Virginia anything approaching a certainty.

With Emmett Moan and his receivers in flashy passing form, the Mountaineers coasted into the final day in top condition.

SPARTANS HANDICAPPED

Miami, Fla., Dec. 30.—(AP)—While the Michigan State football forces wound up their heavy practice for the Orange Bowl game on New Year's day their opponents, the Tigers of Auburn, Ala., came to town today.

In the Michigan State camp Coach Charley Bachman still was worried about Ole Nelson, giant end, who has been suffering from a bad ankle. He had been counted on to snag passes from Johnny Pingel and Gene Ciolek as well as to carry the ball himself on end-around plays.

COACHES DECRY RAPID INCREASE OF BOWL GAMES

New Orleans, La., Dec. 30.—(AP)—The public relations committee of the National Football Coaches' association launched an attack today on "certain" post-season bowl games "inimical to the welfare of football."

It also criticized gambling on football games, drinking by spectators, and the attempt of some teams to evade the rule requiring that numbers be placed on both the front and back of players' jersies.

"The various bowl games are creating a situation which needs the attention of this association," Harvey J. Harman, University of Pennsylvania, chairman of the committee, said.

Players Resent Bowl Games.

"Certain of the consequences of the many extra games outstanding teams are called upon to play are distinctly inimical to the welfare of football.

"There is a growing feeling among the players that they are being exploited by these out of season games. This feeling was expressed by a major team when its members were reported to have asked for a sum of money to participate.

"Certainly, we would not wish to dispense with our well established bowl games."

Pools Called a Hazard.

Gambling, especially in the form of pools, was attacked as a "hazard to football," but the committee said it thought wagering decreased this year because the public is getting wise and because fewer coaches gave pre-game forecasts.

"We believe all members of this association should discourage all forms of betting," the committee continued, "and should not indulge in pre-game forecasts."

Drinking was described as a problem for athletic administrators, but the committee said it could recommend to them the "adoption of measures to lighten it."

"Enclosing slips of paper with all ticket sales, requesting that patrons exercise temperance before and during the games has been successful," the report said.

It's Getting to Be a Fad.

"Since the spectator rushed into the Dartmouth lineup against Princeton in 1935, there has been an increasing number of intoxicated spectators trying to go on the field. Strict police supervision is needed until this craze dies down."

The committee's advice to coaches included "frankness at all times, honest information about our teams and lineups, and the omission of bear stories."

JIM BRADDOCK'S MOTHER, 68, DIES OF PNEUMONIA

Hoboken, N. J., Dec. 30.—[Special.]—Mrs. Elizabeth Braddock, mother of James J. Braddock, former heavyweight boxing champion, died today at St. Mary's hospital of pneumonia. She was 68 years old.

At her bedside, besides the former champion, was her husband, Joseph Braddock; four other sons, Joseph Jr., Alfred, Ralph, and John, and two daughters, Mrs. William Mallon of West New York and Mrs. Julia Klenk of Albany.

Mrs. Braddock, born Elizabeth O'Toole, came to the United States from Ireland 45 years ago and was married to Joseph Braddock a year later. She saw her son win the heavyweight title from Max Baer in 1933.

FORTY FIVE MAN PIN TEAMS ENTER SCHALK TOURNEY

Approximately forty outstanding five man bowling teams of the central states are scheduled to compete in Ray Schalk's second annual holiday sweepstakes tournament at Schalk's Beverly recreation, Ashland avenue and 94th street, on Saturday night, Jan. 8, and Sunday afternoon, Jan. 9.

Among the entries are Hank Marino's Heil Products team of Milwaukee, world champion five man match team. In addition there will be top flight bowlers from Detroit, Indianapolis, Milwaukee, Chicago, St. Louis, and Peoria. Marino, individual world champion match bowler, will appear with his own team on the program Saturday night, Jan. 8.

Temple Hands Stanford Its First Defeat, 35 to 31

Philadelphia, Pa., Dec. 30.—(AP)—Temple university's basketball team, playing the entire game without substitutions, tonight handed Stanford's Pacific coast championship team a 35 to 31 defeat before 11,793, the largest crowd ever to see a basketball game in Philadelphia. It was Stanford's first defeat.

N.C.A.A. Picks William Owens of Stanford

New Orleans, La., Dec. 30.—(AP)—Prof. William B. Owens of Leland Stanford university today was elected president of the National Collegiate Athletic association, succeeding Maj. John L. Griffith of Chicago, commissioner of the Western conference.

The NCAA football rules committee, the group that lays down the laws for play, was named as follows:

Walter Okeson of Lehigh university, chairman; W. S. Langford of New York City, secretary; A. A. Stagg, College of Pacific, a life member; W. G. Crowell of Swarthmore; Lew Mahoney of Denver; W. J. Bingham of Harvard; George Veenker of Iowa State; W. A. Alexander of Georgia Tech; F. H. Yost of Michigan; W. O. Hunter of University of Southern California; Dana X. Bible, University of Texas.

Veenker was the only new member selected.

Meet in Chicago in 1938.

The 1938 convention will be held in Chicago during Christmas week.

The association opened its annual meeting with an address by Maj. Griffith and with various round table discussions.

Maj. Griffith expressed his belief that major intercollegiate sports have come of age and will require little further change in their method of regulation.

He warned, however, that college baseball may have to be abandoned unless it is possible to solve the problem of undergraduates signing professional contracts.

Consider Golf Meet.

Maj. Griffith stated that the colleges were considering the sponsorship of a national golf tournament. Under present circumstances the United States Golf association conducts the intercollegiate tournament.

He also protested against a tendency of the Amateur Athletic union to interfere in college affairs. He raised the question of whether it would be better for the colleges to certify to the American Olympic committee as to the eligibility of athletes from the colleges, after which the committee could sign the eligibility blanks.

Defends Football System.

Maj. Griffith defended intercollegiate football against attacks which had been directed at its vast scope. "Bigness and badness are not necessarily correlative terms," he said. He expressed belief that dragging intercollegiate football down to a basis similar to that of intramural athletics wasn't the solution.

"If we think of football in terms of attendance and gate receipts, then football certainly was deëmphasized between 1929 and 1932," Maj. Griffith said. "No one, however, has shown that the intramural program and the minor sports on the intercollegiate list were improved during those years as a result of the leveling down process that football experienced."

Okeson implied that he expects little rules revision when the committee meets Sunday at Gulfport, Miss. Adlai Stevenson president.

HARRIDGE HOLDS OPEN HOUSE AT LEAGUE OFFICES

Will Harridge, president of the American league, yesterday held New Year's open house at the league offices, 310 South Michigan avenue. Singing became an outstanding feature late in the afternoon.

Though the party was a merry one, naught was said of the plight of the National league in the interleague firmament, no one even mentioning the world series at first and Mr. Harridge refraining from making any reference to the anticipated gates at American league ball parks in 1938.

Henry Edwards, veteran baseball scribe and for several years manager of the American league service bureau, led a four-piece orchestra in a concert which played 96 encores on a number entitled "Take Me Out to the Ball Game," which proved a hit with the very first playing and kept getting better with repetition.

BILL BRINGLOE, VETERAN HORSE TRAINER, DIES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TORONTO, Ont., Dec. 30.—Bill Bringloe, one of Canada's veteran horse trainers, died today in San Francisco, according to a message received here tonight. H. C. Hatch of Agincourt, Ont., for whom Bringloe trained, had announced that he would auction off all of his horses now training in the United States when Bringloe became seriously ill two weeks ago. Bringloe had been with the Hatch stable for the last two years following a long term of service with the Seagram stables.

CLANCY QUITS AS MAROONS' COACH; STAYS AS SCOUT

MONTREAL, Que., Dec. 30.—(AP)—Frank [King] Clancy, veteran National Hocky league star, tonight resigned from his post as coach of the Montreal Maroons. He will continue with the club as a scout.

Tommy Gorman, Maroons' president, announced the resignation. Clancy retired as an active player in November, 1936, after ten years of service in the league.

List Crisler as Candidate for Post at Michigan

The name of H. O. [Fritz] Crisler, head coach at Princeton since 1932, was mentioned in connection with the football coaching vacancy at the University of Michigan by Michigan alumni in Chicago yesterday. It was said also that Crisler might bring his line coach, E. E. [Tad] Wieman, with him. Wieman, a former star tackle at Michigan, later line coach there, and, in 1927 and 1928, head coach, has continued to make Ann Arbor his home outside of the football season since he left Michigan.

KOPF IS NAMED FOOTBALL COACH AT MANHATTAN

Leaves Little at Columbia for New Post.

New York, Dec. 30.—[Special.]—Herb Kopf, who refused to desert Lou Little for thirteen years to accept a head coach job, finally did so today when he was appointed football coach at Manhattan college. Brother Patrick, Manhattan president, announced that Kopf had been signed to a three year contract. Terms were not announced, although Kopf declared he received a substantial increase over his salary as assistant to Little at Columbia.

"Naturally, I am pleased with my new job," Kopf said. "It is a great opportunity for me and I know the relations between myself and Manhattan will be very pleasant. It's always been my ambition to be a head coach and I know of no better place to start."

Succeeds Meehan.

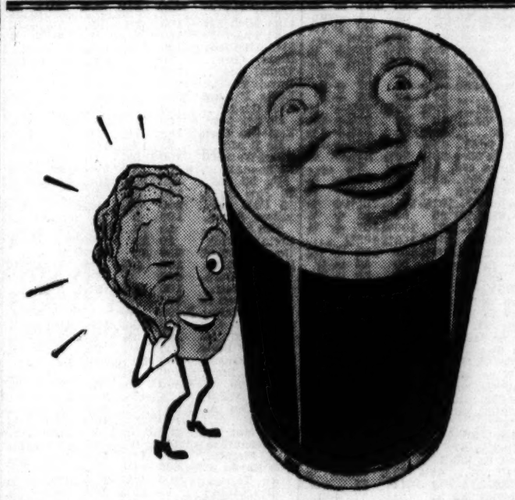
Kopf succeeds Chick Meehan, who resigned Dec. 14, to devote his time to business. The appointment of Kopf has been reported on several occasions since that time. After a preliminary talk last week, Kopf and Brother Patrick had a long conference this afternoon which culminated in the appointment.

Kopf played under Greasy Neale, assistant to Ducky Pond at Yale, at Washington and Jefferson, being graduated in 1924. He played in the Rose Bowl game of 1922 when W. & J. played a scoreless tie with California.

Refused Several Offers.

Kopf went to Georgetown as Little's assistant after graduation and earned his law degree there in 1928. When Little was appointed to the Columbia post in 1930, he brought Kopf with him. The following year, Kopf was made chief assistant to Little.

Since that time Kopf has refused several offers to coach smaller colleges, preferring to remain with Little. Kopf will name his assistants and trainer. None will be chosen, Kopf said, until he has had a chance to study the Manhattan situation more closely and examine the records of applicants.



How to Win Friends and Influence Oysters

OYSTERS, eaten alone, are rather cool and self-possessed. But just eat them with Guinness! You'll be surprised how Guinness can strengthen your friendship for oysters.

Guinness is a hearty natural brew, made from barley malt, hops, yeast and water—nothing else. It is brewed slowly, matured for a year in oak vats and in Bottle.

Natural brewing and slow, unhurried maturing give Guinness certain natural qualities that have made both Guinness and oysters famous. Try the combination and you'll realize why Guinness has become the most popular brew in the world.

Guinness is enjoyed before or during meals, after exercise or when tired, and before retiring. Get it wherever you buy good beer or ale.

RAIL OPERATING INCOME FALLS 55.2 PER CENT

Executives Pessimistic on Current Earnings.

November net operating income of the 141 class one American railroads aggregated $32,440,920, a decline of 55.2 per cent from net operating income of $72,376,522 in November, 1936, the Association of American Railroads reported yesterday.

Gross revenues in November aggregated $318,180,377, against $358,405,564 in the same 1936 month, a decline of 11.2 per cent. November operating expenses were $249,295,347, an increase of one-half of 1 per cent over expenses of $248,174,233 in November, 1936.

Investment Return Shrinks.

The association said that the aggregate November net operating income represented a return of 1.52 per cent on property investments, compared with a return of 3.4 per cent in the same 1936 month.

Presidents of leading railroads, in Washington, D. C., for the meeting of the Association of American Railroads, made pessimistic comments on current earnings. Ralph Budd, president of the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy, said December gross revenues were about 15 per cent under revenues in the same 1936 month.

Freight Loadings Decline.

The New York Central's loadings of revenue freight in December were about 23 per cent under those in December, 1936, F. E. Williamson, president, said.

E. M. Durham, chief operating officer of the Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific railroad, reported that freight revenues in December were 12 to 15 per cent below the same month last year, but that passenger revenues were up slightly, due to inauguration of the six new Rocket trains.

BANK CLEARINGS DECLINE 14.5 PCT. FROM YEAR AGO

New York, Dec. 30. — [Special.] — Bank clearings in twenty-two leading cities of the country in the five day week ended yesterday again were less than in the corresponding five day 1936 period, totaling $4,992,042,000, compared with $5,837,205,000 a year ago, Dun & Bradstreet, Inc., reported today. This is a decline of about 14.5 per cent.

Clearings at New York dropped 17.4 per cent to $3,081,251,000 from $3,370,710,000 last year. The turnover for the other cities was $1,910,791,000, against $2,106,495,000 a year ago, a loss of 9.3 per cent. Clearings at Chicago decreased 10.7 per cent to $289,500,000.

Paramount Pictures, Inc.

Investors' Guide: Please give me a report on Paramount Pictures, Inc.— F. A. H.

Answer: A pioneer in the movie business, this company now is one of the major organizations in the motion picture industry. It operates in all phases of the business from scenario writing and producing to distribution and exhibition of pictures. It owns, leases or operates 1,200 motion picture theaters. Its films are distributed in all countries where movies are shown.

Operations have been profitable since the company was reorganized in 1935, after two years in receivership and bankruptcy. It emerged from the courts with a burdensome debt cut in two and free of numerous subsidiaries and unprofitable theater leases and contract agreements. More simplification of corporate structure and reduction of debt has been achieved since then.

Stock capitalization has shifted considerably in the last year or so as a result of conversion of preferred stock.

As of Oct. 2, there were 2,456,027 shares of $1 par common, 563,291 shares of 60 cent dividend second preferred, and 142,407 shares of $6 dividend first preferred.

Net income was $5,276,000 or $1.78 per common share in the 9 months ended Oct. 2, compared with $455,000 or a loss of 60 cents on the common after preferred requirements in the first nine months of 1936.

For the 53 weeks ended Jan. 2, 1937, net income was $3,889,000 or $1.18 per common share, compared with $3,153,000 or 79 cents a share in the year ended Dec. 28, 1935.

Largely because of increased theater attendance and partly because of better quality pictures, gross income rose from $90,581,000 in the 1935 year to $107,347,000 in the 1936 year.

Inefficient management and waste in production of "super-colossal" films were hit by Joseph P. Kennedy, former chairman of the securities and exchange commission, in a special study of the company in the summer of 1936. Subsequently improved operations are credited to at least partial remedy of these deficiencies.

Theater attendance, previously well ahead of 1936, dropped in November and December to or below levels of the preceding year. Increases in ordinary production costs have been another retarding influence in recent months, but efforts have been made to trim costs, and unless a more serious general business setback occurs. Paramount's outlook seems fair.

The common, on which no dividends have been paid, continues to be speculative.

STOCK MARKET GETS ANOTHER SEC WARNING

Federal Agency Hits at Manipulation.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 30.—(AP)—A sharp reminder to stock exchange men to police their markets "against manipulative and deceptive practices" came from the Securities and Exchange commission in its annual report today.

William O. Douglas.

The report, submitted to congress by Chairman William O. Douglas, indicated that the commission might desire more funds for its enforcement work and other activities. It referred to tens of thousands of margin accounts examined, a delay in the commission's investment company report to congress, and a heavy burden of legal and administrative work.

The job of enforcing margin regulations promulgated by the federal reserve board, the report said, "is one of great magnitude, for which the commission unfortunately only has a limited staf available."

Report Hits Exchanges.

"Our national securities exchanges have not as yet demonstrated the capacity themselves to police their markets effectively against manipulative and deceptive practices," the report said. "In consequence, the burden of detecting and instituting proceedings against such practices has rested almost entirely upon the commission."

The new warning to exchanges followed by a little more than a month the demand of Chairman Douglas to the New York Stock exchange to improve its administration and tighten regulations on undesirable practices or face more control by the commission.

The commission's report, which covered the fiscal year ended June 30, 1937, disclosed that in that period issuance of "well over $1,000,000,000 of securities" has been covered by applications and declarations filed with the commission under the public utility holding company act of 1935.

Plan to Simplify Reports.

The report said that work was under way to standardize requirements in a way which "should materially lessen the problems" confronting prospective registrants.

"During the fiscal year, 107 margin inspections were made, in which 62,876 accounts were examined," the report said. "As a result, a number of cases involving members of exchanges have been referred to such exchanges for disciplinary action."

The commission is making new analyses of trading data and of security transactions of officers, directors, and principal stockholders of companies.

During the fiscal year the commission spent $3,715,538 and had an unexpended balance of $529,462, the latter representing money which had been set aside for enforcement of the public utility holding company act of 1935. The money was not spent because the act was not comprehensively in force, less than 45 per cent of companies subject to the act having registered.

CURTISS-WRIGHT GETS CONTRACT FOR 58 BOMBERS

Washington, D. C., Dec. 30.—(AP)—The navy today awarded a $1,828,051 contract to the Curtiss-Wright Aviation corporation, Curtiss airplane division, Buffalo, N. Y., for fifty-eight scout bombing planes. Engines and propellers will be provided by the navy.

The contract increased to 112 the navy's airplane purchases this month. Twenty-one patrol bombers, costing $5,299,538, were ordered Dec. 23 from the Glenn L. Martin company, Baltimore, and thirty-three patrol bombers were ordered earlier from the Consolidated Aircraft corporation, San Diego, Cal., costing $4,500,000.

MOST MARKETS, BANKS WILL CLOSE TOMORROW FOR NEW YEAR HOLIDAY

Security exchanges, banks, and principal commodity markets of the United States, Canada, and Europe will be closed tomorrow in observance of New Year's day. A few live stock markets, including the big Chicago market, will transact business as usual.

The Chicago Board of Trade will close at noon today instead of the usual time of 1:15 p. m. Other grain exchanges in the United States and the New Orleans Cotton exchange also will close at noon today, Chicago time.

In New York trading will end in cocoa, coffee, sugar, cottonseed oil, metals, rubber, silk, and hides at 11 a. m., Chicago time, today, and trading in cotton and wool tops will end at noon, Chicago time.

The New York Stock exchange, the Chicago Stock exchange and other American security markets will observe regular hours today. In Canada, the Toronto security markets will close at 11:30 a. m., Chicago time.

Stocks Make Moderate Gain in Dull Trade

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Dec. 30.—In a quiet session stock market prices today continued the improvement which got under way in late trading yesterday. Closing prices generally were just under the best quotations of the day, slackening of interest in late afternoon forcing the list to back away slightly from the highest level. Although most net changes were of small proportions, a number of favorite issues advanced 1 and 2 points.

Volume diminished to 913,360 shares, compared with 2,480,000 shares on the preceding session. It was evident throughout the session that the forces at work were those which ordinarily attend the final sessions of the year.

Cash Transaction Prominent.

The main incentive for buying still was the rearmament program. However, much of the day's activity was attributed to cash transactions, an operation utilized because of its speed by those who for tax purposes wished to complete transactions within the current year. However, no material price concessions were believed to have been brought about by this activity.

The so-called "war babies" were in the thick of what little activity there was during the day. Steels, metals, and aviation issues were predominant in this category, although early advances were shaded. United States Steel common, Bethlehem, Republic, and Youngstown were prominent in the steels, closing moderately higher.

Boeing, Douglas, Consolidated Aircraft, and United Aircraft showed the way in the aviation group, with substantial fractional advances. Wright Aero spurted more than 3 points in limited turnover.

General Motors Gains.

Chrysler continued to decline in the motors, easing ¼ point to close at 48, barely 2 points above its low for the year. General Motors gained a fraction in active dealings. Packard bulged a fraction.

The majority of rail issues worked somewhat higher in line with the general list. Utility issues behaved in much the same manner.

Communication issues were comparatively buoyant, Western Union and American Telephone both rising 1½ points. Increases of up to 2 points were scored by chemical shares, with Allied and Du Pont in the lead.

DENIES MIDWEST PRICE BOOST BY OIL DEFENDANTS

Madison, Wis., Dec. 30.—(AP)—A defense witness in the federal government's gasoline price fixing case testified in cross examination today that the average retail price of gasoline in "key" midwestern cities in 1935 was lower than the average in representative cities in other parts of the country.

The government charges that the 16 major oil companies and 37 individuals conspired to raise and fix midwestern wholesale prices at high, arbitrary and noncompetitive levels.

The witness was Sidney Swensrud, of Cleveland, O., assistant to the president of the Standard Oil Company of Ohio, which is not a defendant.

Swensrud, qualified by the defense as a marketing expert, testified that competition within and outside the so-called Standard of Indiana territory—ten midwestern states—would have prevented the defendants from maintaining any artificial price.

OIL FIRMS DEFY MEXICAN WAGE INCREASE ORDER

MEXICO CITY, Mexico, Dec. 30.—(AP)—Mexico's foreign-controled oil industry notified 18,000 employés tonight it would be unable to fulfill recent arbitration award of an estimated $7,300,000 in annual wage increases and other benefits.

The effect of the $400,000,000 industry's action was to defy the government and the workers to enforce the award which had been intended in a year-old dispute between the companies involved and their employés.

The arbitration verdict, handed down by a three man board twelve days ago, was scheduled to become effective Jan. 1, but the notices, which went out in the workers' pay envelopes, declared the "award imposes terms impossible of fulfilment."

This apparently presaged a showdown struggle between the companies, most of which are American, and their employés.

LOANS, MONEY CIRCULATION FALL IN WEEK

Bank loans in New York and Chicago declined and currency in circulation decreased throughout the country in the week ended Wednesday, the federal reserve board reported yesterday.

Commercial loans of New York banks fell 7 millions from the preceding week. Loans of Chicago banks were 2 millions less than a week earlier. Total currency in circulation contracted 110 millions with the ebbing of holiday season need. Bank reserve funds expanded sharply with the return of currency to the banks. Reserves were estimated by the board to be 1 billion 160 millions more than legally required, an increase of 150 millions for the week.

Dixie-Vortex Co. to Open New South Carolina Plant

Easton, Pa., Dec. 30.—[Special.]—The Dixie-Vortex company, manufacturers of paper drinking cups and containers, will open a new plant at Darlington, S. C., it was announced here today.

Gen'l Motors Chief Prepares for Job Probe

Detroit, Mich., Dec. 30.—[Special.]—William S. Knudsen, president of the General Motors corporation, today delayed a projected nation-wide business trip in order to meet a request to testify before the senate committee on unemployment relief at Washington, D. C., Jan. 6. Knudsen was asked to go to Washington after he announced last Tuesday that the General Motors corporation would lay off about 30,000 workers Jan. 1 as the result of declining business.

Knudsen previously had planned to make the business trip during January and had asked the senate committee if he could postpone his appearance until Jan. 28.

Senator Sends Telegram.

However, Knudsen changed his plans today upon receipt of a telegram from Senator James F. Byrnes [D., S. C.], chairman of the committee.

"While not wishing to inconvenience you," Senator Byrnes wired Knudsen, "my committee considers it exceedingly important to hear from you at the opening of our investigation next week, particularly in view of reported unemployment in the automobile industry."

The 30,000 to be laid off by General Motors will be employés of its various plants throughout the country, with about 20,000 in the Detroit region affected.

Thousands Cut Off Pay Roll.

Anderson, Ind., Dec. 30.—[Special.]—General Motors' order to reduce employment at its various plants already has taken effect here, it was disclosed today. Several thousand persons are now idle because of the curtailed production at the General Motors Delco-Remy and Guide Lamp plants.

At the Delco-Remy plant, where 9,000 persons have been employed, only a few hundred were at work today, and it is reported the shutdown will be complete by Jan. 1.

Layoff in Schenectady.

Schenectady, N. Y., Dec. 30.—[Special.]—The General Electric company has laid off between 200 and 300 employés at its plant here because of the business decline, it was said here today. An official of the company said layoffs of from 100 to 150 may be made each month until business picks up again.

Douglas Builds 36 Planes in Month; Sets a Record

Los Angeles, Cal., Dec. 30.—[Special.]—An all time record for planes delivered in one month by the Douglas Aircraft company was established in December, the company said today. Thirty-six airplanes and parts valued at $2,700,000 were built and delivered from the Santa Monica plant, Harry H. Wetzel, vice president and general manager, announced.

MEATS FALL TO NEW 1937 LOWS; CONSUMER PURCHASING FADES

Another decline occurred in practically all markets for live stock and meats yesterday and many kinds were forced to new 1937 low levels.

Declines of mostly $1.00 per hundred pounds were registered in wholesale lamb meat, and beef and pork sold weak to 50 cents lower. With consumer demand falling and unemployment steadily increasing, packers took a bearish attitude toward all classes of meat animals.

Cattle and lambs led the break. The steer market developed unevenly 25 to 75 cents lower. Lambs tumbled fully 50 cents to the lowest levels in almost 2½ years. Heavy "lard hogs" declined 10 to 25 cents, some kinds touching new three year lows. Lights were steady to 10 cents lower.

Some salesmen locked up supplies to be carried over until next week rather than accept the sharp discounts. Packers had sufficient numbers to keep their killing gangs busy until late this afternoon, so any additional supplies would have to be carried several days before being slaughtered, which contributed to the pressure on prices.

FRANC STEADIES ON SETTLEMENT OF PARIS STRIKE

French currency steadied in foreign exchange transactions yesterday following the settlement of the public utilities strike in Paris. The franc closed at 3,39125 cents in New York unchanged from the preceding day's figure. The British pound declined ⅛ cent to $4.99¾.

Sumner Wells, undersecretary of state, said yesterday in Washington that the new restrictions on foreign exchange adopted by Brazil would not affect the reciprocal trade agreement between that country and the United States. There is no indication, he said, that Brazil will abrogate the treaty, as had been indicated by dispatches from Rio de Janeiro.

BRITAIN BOOSTS GOLD HOLDINGS, REPORT REVEALS

LONDON, Dec. 30.—(AP)—The treasury announced today Great Britain had increased its gold holdings nearly a half billion dollars during the six months ended Sept. 30.

The exchange equalization fund held 39,854,000 fine ounces of gold, worth $1,394,890,000 on that date, compared with 26,674,000 ounces, worth $933,590,000 on March 30. The Bank of England on Sept. 30 held 76,843,000 fine ounces of gold, worth $2,689,505,000, compared with 73,842,000 ounces, worth $2,584,470,000, held on March 30.

The total fund of the bank on Sept. 30, including the equalization moneys, was worth $4,084,395,000, compared with $3,518,060,000 on March 30.

Ickes Renews U. S. Attacks on Business

Washington, D. C., Dec. 30.—(AP)—Secretary Ickes, continuing the administration's attack on business, asserted tonight that the power of concentrated wealth "must be compelled to conform to our laws" at the coming session of congress.

An "irreconcilable conflict" between "the power of money and the power of the democratic instinct" has reached such an intensity in recent months, he said, that it is "clear that it must be fought through to a finish—until plutocracy or democracy, until America's 60 families or America's 120 million people win."

Ickes spoke over a nation-wide radio hookup. His speech was the third assault on business to come from within the inner administration circle in a week. Two such addresses were delivered previously by Robert H. Jackson, assistant attorney general. All of these addresses are regarded as a prelude to President Roosevelt's message to congress and a drive for anti-monopoly legislation.

Views Business on Strike.

Like Jackson, Ickes accused concentrated economic power of going on a strike against the administration, or threatening to do no business, unless governmental restraints upon business are removed. Referring to capital as "America's 60 families," a phrase borrowed from a book by Ferdinand Lundberg, he said:

"To the 120 million people of the United States they have made the threat that unless they are free to speculate free of regulations to protect the people's money, unless they are free to accumulate through legal tricks, by means of corporations, without paying their share of taxes; unless they are free to dominate the rest of us without restrictions on their financial or economic power; unless they are once more free to do all these things, then the United States is to have its first general sit-down strike—not of labor—not of the American people—but of the sixty families and of the capital created by the whole American people, of which the sixty families have obtained control.

Give Advice to People.

"If the American people call this bluff then the America that is to be will be a democratic America, a free America. If the American people yield to this bluff, then the America that is to be will be a business Fascist America—an enslaved America."

Ickes called upon business to purge itself of "its Fords, its Girdlers, and its Rands" before "it presumes to tell the people what they should or should not do about troubles caused by labor laws."

$100 HIGHEST BID ON LEASEHOLD OF HAMILTON CLUB

A bid of $100 was the highest made yesterday for the leasehold of the Hamilton club, 20 South Dearborn street, when it was offered for sale by Referee in Bankruptcy Charles True Adams. The club, which was founded 47 years ago and for many years was a headquarters for Republican politicians, is being liquidated by order of Federal Judge William H. Holly.

Attorney Grover C. McLaren, representing the fee owners of the club site, made the $100 bid to clear his client's position in negotiating with possible tenants for the property. The leasehold, at an annual rental of $40,000, has been defaulted, McLaren said, and back rent and taxes amount to more than $400,000.

TextileCompany to Resume Full Time Work on Monday

Powdrell & Alexander, Inc., textile manufacturers, with plants in Connecticut and Massachusetts, will resume full time operations Monday, it was announced yesterday. The 1,200 employés of the company have worked on short time since last August.

A. F. of L. Report Expresses Belief Slump Is Near End

Washington, D. C., Dec. 30.—[Special.]—There are indications that the business recession which began in September is "nearing the bottom," said the monthly survey of business issued tonight by the American Federation of Labor.

U. S. Managed Money Policies Termed Failure as Stabilizer

Atlantic City, N. J., Dec. 30.—[Special.] — Recent developments have proved that the present American system of managed money and banking will not prevent booms and depressions, Dr. Melchior Palyi, University of Chicago economist, asserted in an address here today. Dr. Palyi addressed a joint meeting of the American Statistical and Farm Economic associations.

The Chicagoan said federal management of money and banking greatly reduced the threats of a runaway industrial boom at one time and wholesale bank failures at another, but he added that new threats to business and banking have developed.

Dr. Palyi said many governmental organs are competing with the reserve system for control and declared this competition is one of the present threats to banking. It creates a lack of unified banking leadership, he said.

Warns of Entanglements.

Another threat to the banking system, said Dr. Palyi, is its entanglement in the financing of government deficits through purchase of federal bonds. There is danger also, he asserted, in assumption that government credit is impregnable and that the government cannot reach the limit of its borrowing power. He compared this assumption to "the outmoded belief in the infallibility of industrial finance."

Dr. Palyi asserted that in handling the potential inflationary boom of late 1936 and early 1937 the federal reserve board was a victim of the "psychology of the stock market speculator who never anticipates a sudden change in the prevailing market tendency."

"It took an unnecessarily long time before it was recognized that a boom was impending," he said, "and action had been delayed until the boom actually developed. Then, its character and portent were misjudged.

Criticizes Reserve Action.

"It was 'the expectation of the board,' as its chairman pointed out early in 1937 before the house banking and currency committee, 'that there will be substantially more activity in bank loans in the year ahead because of the anticipated expansion of business.'"

The board also failed to anticipate the effect on the market for government bonds of raising reserve requirements, Dr. Palyi said, adding that instead of borrowing from the federal reserve banks, the member banks began to liquidate government bonds.

U. S. WILL BUY MORE SILVER TO HOLD UP PRICE

Policy Outlined by Treasury Head.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 30.—(AP)—The United States will continue to buy foreign silver and support the world price during at least part of the next year, Secretary Morgenthau announced today. He disclosed that the July 9, 1937, understanding for the purchase of Chinese silver has been extended until July 1, 1938, and that, in accordance with the custom of conducting month to month dealings with Canada and Mexico, the United States had made a commitment to buy silver from these countries in January.

A treasury spokesman added that 1938 silver offers from Peru and other countries with whom no formal understanding exists will be considered individually, as in the past.

Controled World Price.

For the last four years the United States, as the largest buyer of the metal, has virtually controled the world silver price, lately fixing it at about 45 cents an ounce. This country also has carried out virtually single-handedly the London silver agreement of 1933, which pledged eight nations to support the price by keeping large quantities of the metal off the market. The London agreement will expire tomorrow night, but today's announcements indicated the lapse will cause no immediate change in United States policy.

The developments left only next year's price for domestic silver to be cleared up. President Roosevelt is expected to announce tomorrow whether the present price for newly mined domestic metal will be continued at 77.57 cents an ounce, or reduced.

China Sells Much Silver.

It was learned authoritatively that since July China has sold large quantities of silver to the United States and has received dollar credits with which it could pay for goods. Part of the credits, however, have been used by China to buy American gold to strengthen that nation's monetary reserves.

Secretary Morgenthau asserted the decision to continue buying silver was dictated by the terms of the silver purchase act of 1934, under which the treasury is short about $1,455,000,000 worth of silver. The act required the treasury to acquire a dollar of silver for every 3 dollars of gold it owned. Present silver stocks, valued at the legal rate of $1.29 an ounce, total about $2,800,000,000, and gold stocks about $12,760,000,000.

Silver Price Rises.

London silver brokers raised their price to 47.74 cents an ounce on the strength of the Washington news. On the preceding day the metal was quoted in London at 41.46 cents. Speculators covering short sales in the London market were said to have paid ½ penny an ounce over the fixed price to obtain silver.

Reports that the treasury is planning to release more of its "sterilized" gold brought a statement from Morgenthau that the treasury has not given any information to congress or any one else regarding its future gold plans. Senator Thomas [D., Okla.] was quoted earlier as saying that he had "positive" information that the treasury would "desterilize" a large amount of gold.

LIBERTY LEGION CHIEF EXPLAINS STAND ON LABOR

St. Louis, Mo., Dec. 30.—(AP)—Thurlow H. Grey, of Dearborn, Mich., executive secretary and treasurer of the Liberty Legion of America, explained its purposes today at a national labor relations board hearing of C. I. O. union complaints against the Ford Motor company. The Legion, incorporated in Michigan last Aug. 11, has 65,000 members in 11 plants, including seven Ford factories, he said.

Claiming to represent a majority of the employés of Ford's St. Louis assembly unit, the organization intervened in the labor board's hearing of charges filed against the company by the United Automobile Workers.

Grey identified the Legion's articles of incorporation, which set out its aims were to "encourage Americanism," combat "radicalism, communism and other forms of subversive activity," support legislation against sitdown strikes, and promote better understanding between employer and employé.

Approve 31 Cent Newsprint Freight Rate for Railroads

Washington, D. C., Dec. 30.—[Special.]—The interstate commerce commission today granted the application of nine railroads for authority to establish a rate of 31 cents per 100 pounds on shipments of newsprint from Donnacona, Que., to Chicago between May 1 and Nov. 30 of each year, to meet water competition. The order also permits carriers to charge higher rates to intermediate points, but only when the increases are authorized by the commission.

Firestone Tire Profit in Year Is $9,269,177

The Firestone Tire and Rubber company yesterday reported profit for the fiscal year ended Oct. 31 of $9,269,177, equal after preferred dividends to $3.33 a common share, compared with a profit of $9,142,654, or $3.28 a common share, in the preceding year.

Profit in the year just ended was the largest since 1927 when the company earned $13,715,523. In 1929 profit was $7,694,919. Sales in the year just ended were $156,823,094, the largest in the company's history, and an increase of 15 per cent over sales of $135,701,916 in the year ended Oct. 31, 1936.

Loew's Earns $14,426,062.

Loew's, Inc., reported net earnings of $14,426,062 for the fiscal year ended Aug. 31, 1937, after all deductions, including federal surplus profits tax, compared to $11,076,823 in the preceding year. The earnings were equal to $8.62 a share on the common stock, compared to $6.79 a share in the preceding year. Gross operating revenues totaled $121,828,606, compared to $108,780,542 in the preceding year.

The Beatrice Creamery company reported profit for three months ended Nov. 30 of $279,615, equal after preferred dividends to 42 cents a common share, compared with profit of $360,599, or 57 cents a share, in the same period a year ago.

In the twelve months ended Nov. 30, Beatrice Creamery earned $1,625,089, or $2.92 a common share, compared with $1,279,432, or $2.03 a share, in the preceding twelve months. The company's fiscal year ends Jan. 31.

BANK SAVINGS DEPOSITS RISE TO 24½ BILLIONS

Savings deposits in banks and trust companies throughout the United States totaled $24,499,448,000 on June 30, 1937, an increase of $1,035,863,000, or 4.4 per cent, over deposits on the corresponding date of 1936, the American Bankers' association reported yesterday.

This was $3,373,914,000 above the low point of deposits in 1933. All states except six showed an increase in savings deposit volume for the year.

The number of individual depositors increased from 42,396,712 on June 30, 1936, to 44,226,178 on June 30, 1937, an increase of 4.55 per cent. Only five states showed a decrease in the number of depositors. The total, however, remained 4,000,000 below the figure of ten years ago, and 8,962,170 below the all-time high of 1928.

Average per capita savings increased $7 to $191. This compares with the 1933 average of only $168 per inhabitant and with the all-time high of $237 reached in 1928.

COURT ORDERS ACTION TAKEN TO SELL COAL FIRM

Danville, Ill., Dec. 30.—(AP)—Federal Judge Walter C. Lindley today ordered Louis Clements of Danville and John Dillavou of Chicago, trustees, to file a petition to sell the properties of the Interstate Coal company, operated under a receivership since 1929.

Liabilities of the company were reported to include a $1,500,000 bond issue, $300,000 in receiver certificates, and approximately $225,000 in other debts.

Properties owned by the company are located at Sessor, West Frankfort, Tamaroa, Pinckneyville, Jamestown, and Cutler, and include about 10,000 acres of reserve coal land in Jefferson county.

Buick Output This Year Exceeds 1936 by 27 Pct.

Detroit, Mich., Dec. 30.—[Special.]—The Buick division of the General Motors corporation produced 233,923 units in 1937, an increase of 27 per cent as compared with the 184,255 cars produced during 1936, officials of the company announced today. December output was 18,360 cars.

URGES U. S. LET INDUSTRY SOLVE UNEMPLOYMENT

Steel Leader Asks Business to Act.

New York, Dec. 30.—[Special.]—Commerce and industry must set itself to the task of finding work for the nation's unemployed, a task which government was never intended to assume, Myron C. Taylor, chairman of the board of the United States Steel corporation, said today in a year-end review of business conditions.

Myron C. Taylor.

To shift the burdens of setting in motion the wheels which symbolize work, wages, comfort, and happiness to government, as many would do, he said, would mean the end of individual freedom.

"Neither should government interfere, deter, or discourage us in our efforts to conquer the ills from which we suffer," Taylor asserted.

Holds Employment Vital.

"As we enter the new year," the head of the world's largest steel company said, "it is timely for us to reflect, in order to recall some of the primary elements which control our physical well being, that the chief base of our economic structure rests upon employment.

"Through it raw materials are brought into use, goods are produced or converted, transportation facilities are engaged, distributors come into action, construction flourishes, and individuals in all groups have earnings to pay their debts, to spend, and to undertake new enterprises. Correspondingly the need for public and private work or relief declines, the federal, state, and city governments have reduced demands, debt increases come to a halt, and ultimately the burden of taxation is lightened while the standard of living rises.

Recalls Depression Measures.

"The recession which set in during the latter part of 1929 was accompanied by employment problems which severely taxed the resourcefulness and fortitude of employers and employés alike. It was early in 1930 that some of us in industry first resorted to the spreading of available work so that the largest practicable number of our workers would have some employment, although at times this was woefully little.

"Shortly thereafter the municipalities and subsequently the state and federal governments took a hand in relieving the situation. It had grown beyond the resources of private agencies to cope with it."

Taylor said that during the whole period of the depression industry never slackened in its effort to create employment. A slow but steady improvement in the volume of business and employment opportunities started in 1933 and continued without interruption until the last quarter of this year.

Once again, he concluded, all groups are confused and concerned by the employment problem, although it is difficult for most to believe that the recession is more than temporary.

OIL ROYALTIES OPERATOR SEEKS TO REORGANIZE

New York, Dec. 30.—[Special.]—J. Edward Jones, operator in oil royalties, who won a Supreme court victory over the Securities and Exchange commission in April, 1936, and a year later beat the government in a mail-fraud prosecution, has encountered hard times, it was revealed today.

The J. Edward Jones Petroleum corporation, of which Jones is president, filed in federal court a petition for authority to reorganize under section 77B of the bankruptcy act. Liabilities were listed at $241,267 and assets, consisting mostly of oil and gas leases in Louisiana, at $612,500.

The listed assets were larger than the liabilities. The petition set forth, however, that actual assets on hand consisted of 2,000 barrels of oil in storage, worth $2,500," and "oil runs due from pipe line companies, worth $10,000," plus some minor items.

Stocks, Bonds

New York Bonds.

New York, Dec. 30.—(AP)—Rail liens guided the corporate division of the bond market to a higher plane today, but United States government issues slid further.

Individual gains in the rail list ranged from 1 to 2 points accompanied by fair volume. Buyers appeared to lean to the theory something would come of the recent disposition of Washington authorities to help the roads out of present difficulties. Among substantial gainers were Illinois Central 4¾s, Baltimore and Ohio 4½s, Rock Island general 4s, and Missouri Pacific 5s [F].

In the industrial and utility divisions, Shell Union Oil 3½s, Western Union 5s, Loew's 3½s, and Studebaker 6s had advanced up to 2¼ points. Declines in the government list ranged from 1-32d to 7-32ds.

Foreign issues moved divergently.

Chicago Stocks.

Prices improved on the Chicago Stock exchange yesterday. Of the 115 shares traded, 52 advanced, 26 declined, and 37 finished unchanged. Sales were 49,000 shares, against 73,000 in the preceding session.

Middle West capital stock, actively traded, advanced ½ point to 5%, and Commonwealth Edison, also active, climbed ½ to 26¼. Marshall Field declined ⅛ to 7⅝. Fifty shares of Bank Stocks.

Chicago bank stocks were steady to stronger yesterday. First National shares were quoted $3 to $4 higher by various dealers, Continental Illinois gained $7, and City National was quoted $2 to $4 higher. Terminal National was unchanged to $2 higher. Others were steady.

WHEAT EASIER; CORN HIGHER ON EXPORT BUYING

Prices Move Erratically in Pre-Holiday Trade.

CHICAGO GRAIN FUTURES

Closing prices on the May delivery of principal grains on the Chicago Board of Trade yesterday:

	Yes'day.	Wed'day.	Year ago.
Wheat	$ .90	$ .90¼	$1.35½
Corn	.61¾	.61¾	1.08¾
Oats	.30¾	.30¾	.51⅞
Rye	.71⅝	.71	1.15⅝
Soy beans	.97	.96	1.55¼

Grain prices fluctuated in an erratic manner yesterday. Wheat advanced fractionally early, but reacted about 1 cent a bushel from the high point and closed ¼ cent lower. Corn had a range of less than ½ cent a bushel, closing at gains of ⅝ cent.

A revival in the foreign demand for American cash corn, with sales placed as high as 500,000 bushels in all positions, had considerable influence in determining the trend of that grain. Houses which frequently act for exporters bought the May delivery, and there also was further spreading through selling wheat against purchases of corn, which narrowed the price difference between the two grains to 28¾ cents a bushel, compared with 36½ cents on Dec. 8.

Brief Spell of Activity.

There was a brief spell of activity in the wheat market at the start. Scattered buying was based on firmness in the Liverpool, Winnipeg, and Buenos Aires markets, and other purchases were attributed to the removal of hedges against export sales. Late in the session it was estimated about 350,000 bushels of American hard winter and 250,000 bushels of Canadian cash wheat had been sold to Europe. About 125,000 bushels of Australian wheat were reported to have been sold for shipment to Calcutta, Spain.

Houses with Chicago connections were reported to have been good buyers of December wheat in Winnipeg, and with the removal of hedges against export sales that delivery closed 1 cent a bushel higher.

African Buying Expected.

Africa is expected to enter the world market as a buyer shortly, as the wheat crop of that country is officially estimated at 12,000,000 bushels, the smallest in years and about 6,000,000 bushels less than average annual requirements.

Buying of rye futures attributed to cash interests resulted in an advance of ½ to ⅝ cent a bushel in that grain. Nothing was heard, however, regarding export business. Soy bean futures advanced ½ to 1 cent a bushel on scattered buying.

DECLINE IN FARM LOANS REPORTED BY U. S. AGENCY

Washington, D. C., Dec. 30.—[Special.]—Although total farm loans through institutions operating under the Farm Credit corporation declined from $677,000,000 in 1936 to $653,000,000 in 1937, the condition of the farmers' business appeared to have continued on an "even keel" during the last year, F. F. Hill, deputy governor said today.

"Most of the new money borrowed by farmers during the last year was used, as in 1936," he said, "for crop and livestock production and for other short term purposes."

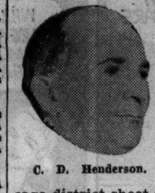
BUSINESS BITS



C. D. Henderson.

Appointment of C. D. Henderson as assistant works auditor of the Gary works of the Carnegie-Illinois Steel corporation was announced yesterday. The appointment is effective Jan. 1. Henderson has been superintendent of industrial relations for the corporation's Chicago district sheet and tin mills since last April. He has been with United States Steel corporation subsidiaries since 1906, when he was first employed as a clerk at the La Belle works of the former American Sheet and Tin Plate company.

A. L. Varley, vice president of Wilcox and Follett company, dealers in educational textbooks, will retire effective Jan. 1 after forty-eight years of service with the organization.

Charles B. Robbins, Cedar Rapids, Ia., has been redesignated as chairman of the Federal Home Loan bank of Des Moines for a one year term.

Due to a typographical error, the executive changes in the Illinois Brick company were incorrectly reported in Thursday's Tribune. William Schlake resigned as president of the company and was elected chairman of the board, a newly created post. He was succeeded as president by his son, William F. Schlake, former vice president. John Goodridge was elected vice president.

Federal Agents Seize California Murder Yacht—Boy Promises Home for Mother, 12, and Baby

REVEAL TWO DEATHS IN FIGHTS ON SEA AS YACHT IS TOWED TO PORT— The Aafje, owned by Dwight Faulding of Santa Barbara, Cal., as it was in tow of coast guard cutter yesterday bound for San Pedro. Six members of once gay party were on cutter as it was revealed that Faulding was shot to death in gun duel with Jack Morgan, another member of party. Morgan was beaten by a crew member and thrown overboard.

CHICAGO TRIBUNE STARTS INSTALLATION OF TWO NEW HIGH SPEED PRESSES— Some of the units of one of the new presses which have been built at the Goss factory in Chicago and are now being dismantled and moved to the pressroom under W-G-N radio station. One of the new presses will be used to print color comics and the other, shown in this picture, will print 60,000 papers of 48 pages per hour, including four pages in four color process. The presses, costing $600,000, are installed on "cushions" to prevent vibration from interfering with radio broadcasting from W-G-N.

MOTHER, AGE 12, AND HER BABY— Betty June Lacer of Linton, Ind., with her 10½ pound son. The father of the baby, Tommy Chapman, age 13, yesterday said he wanted to marry Betty June as soon as it is legally possible.

HOW NEW TRIBUNE PRESSES ARE "FLOATED" TO AVOID VIBRATION— The installation of section of foundation for one of new units in Tribune pressroom under W-G-N studio. The presses will rest on special spring steel bars with rubber insulation, which prevent vibrations from traveling to delicate radio apparatus in building.
